BRITAIN WINNING IN AERIAL WARFARE

Gains Slight Edge Over Nazis With Systematic Raids

British Secure Supremacy Over Nazis Despite Having Warplanes In Action On Three Major War Fronts

By DREW MIDDLETON

LONDON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—British air sources said today the Royal Air Force is winning a "slight edge" in the aerial conflict which they expect to decide the success or failure of any German invasion attempt.

Britain holds supremacy, they said, because of continuous and systematic bombing of German industry and communications, because of a slight advantage over the Nazis in the vital races for altitude and because of the increased number of planes coming from British and United States factories.

"It must be remembered," one informant said, "that this position is being held despite engagements on three fronts, Greek, North African and home, and at a time when most American factories are not near maximum production."

Since the start of air warfare, one source said, British planes have attacked Nazi military targets with such regularity "the Germans never got a chance to rebuild them."

This inability to repair damage, it was said, has considerable effect on the methodical Germans.

Augmenting these bombings now are recent daylight forays by fighter-escorted bombers against troops in Germany and Nazi-occupied countries and against communications.

R.A.F. Machine-Guns Troops On Coast

LONDON, Jan. 13.—(CP)—Day and night air attacks on both axis allies, from swooping assaults on troops in trenches near the German-held French coast to diving bomb raids on oil refineries near Venice, were announced by the Air Ministry today.

Night fliers, it said, hit at the harbors of Brest, Le Havre and Lo-

Today's War Moves

TODAY'S announcement that General Cavallero has succeeded General Soddu as commander-in-chief of the Italian forces in Albania marks the third successive appointment to that position since Mussolini's war against Greece began 11 weeks ago. There is no modern precedent for such rapid changes of Generals.

The substitutions indicate a confused condition in the Italian war plans as well as lack of confidence in Il Duce's appointments. It does not appear that the Italian high command had contemplated defensive fighting in the Albanian mountains and only opportunist strategy seems to be available for the Fascist army.

Had the Italian general staff prepared in advance for all possible emergencies in the Greek war, the collapse of the commanding officers should not have occurred to the present extent. It is apparent that the Fascist plan of campaign has

INTERCEPTED FRENCH SHIP AT SEA AGAIN

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Jan 13.—(AP)—The French freighter Mendoza, which returned to Uruguayan territorial waters after being halted at sea by the British auxiliary cruiser Asturias, was reported by Foreign Minister Alberto Guani to have put to sea again today.

The 8,000-ton vessel left Montevideo last night in an attempt to run the British blockade, but returned to Maldahado Bay, east of Montevideo, this morning, after being intercepted. The British ship was understood to be some distance off-shore. There were reports the Asturias had been "detaining" the Mendoza.

Guani said he was investigating to determine whether the interception occurred in Uruguayan territory waters, with the possibility of lodging a protest with the British government.

GERMANS PLAN BALKAN DRIVE AT EARLY DATE

Mechanized Push Likely When Weather Permits Use In Balkans

By HAROLD FAIR

LONDON, Jan. 13—(CP)—The Nazis are believed to be poised for a Balkan drive as soon as weather permits movement of their heavy mechanized units.

Bulgaria considered here to be most threatened point, now is a sea of mud as the result of a sudden thaw, but informed sources are convinced "something is going to happen in the Balkans" once the ground hardens.

TWO-PRONGED DRIVE

Some sources believe the German drive will be two-pronged with the intention of scoring a swift triumph in Albania and Bulgaria, in the hopes of terrifying Turkey into permitting the entry of German troops for thrusts against the British oil fields of Iran as well as the Suez canal.

Germany has been pouring troops steadily into Rumania and there have been unconfirmed reports — possibly Nazi-inspired — that a large number of armed Nazi civilians are already concentrated in Bulgaria.

It is not regarded as likely the Bulgarians will receive aid from Russia, but it is generally considered a certainty Turkey will help her neighbor. Turkey, it is held, cannot permit the Germans to march through the Persian oil fields without opposition.

NO BEARING SEEN

British-Turkish staff talks starting at Ankara today were said to have no bearing on the immediate Balkan situation. They were arranged some time ago, it was stated. These same sources said that undoubtedly all developments will be considered.

The possibility of a Nazi Balkan drive does not remove the danger of invasion here. Hitler's only hope of ultimate victory, it is said, lies in striking at Britain directly. Some observers say, however, he may launch an eastern campaign to the hope Britain's "life lines" would be rendered so shaky a peace offer might be considered.

PREMIER ASKS FOR ECONOMIC MOVE AT MEET

Aberhart Urges Action On Domestic Problems At Ottawa

WINNIPEG, Jan. 13.—(CP)—Premier Aberhar. of Alberta in a statement issued here Sunday urged that "some unified action be discussed" regarding economic and post-war problems when representatives of the provincial and federal governments meet Tuesday in Ottawa.

He said the Dominion-provincial conference to deal with the Rowell-Sirois report's recommendations is the proper step to be taken."

In addressing 500 persons at a Manitoba Social Credit League public meeting Saturday night the premier expressed the belief that in the past "Canada's economic progress has been greatly hindered by lack of co-operation between the east and west." Before Mr. Aberhart left for Ottawa last night he spoke to a St. Boniface Social Credit meeting.

UNIFIED ACTION

In his statement Mr. Aberhart said "although many of us feel that this is a poor time to try to establish an amended or a new constitution, still the economic problems of the moment and the preparation that must be made for post-war reconstruction are so great, that some unified action should be discussed in regards to them.

"I am very anxious to hear what the other premiers have to say on these matters. I am satisfied that we will get a good cross-section of the general public opinion in Canada from them."

In his illustrated address the premier made no reference to his brief to be presented to the Dominion-provincial conference. In urging more sympathy between Ontario and Western Canada, he said, "Ontario should know she cannot buy her coal from Russia, China and the United States, her butter from New Zealand and other raw products from alien nations, and continue to sell her manufactured goods to the west."

FIGHT AGAINST GREED

Then he urged Canadians to unite and compel the Dominion government to seize money power from the banks and to issue "debt free, interest free money." He objected to and urged a fight against greed, selfishness, poverty and Hitlerism.

Dr. W. W. Cross, Alberta minister of health and public welfare, told the audience that he wondered why Canadians had not "risen in a body" to demand insertion in the British North America Act of a clause guaranteeing social justice.

At the Sunday address Hon. Lucien Maynard, Alberta minister of municipal affairs, addressed the St. Boniface audience in French.

Hon. Solon E. Low, Alberta provincial treasurer, Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines, Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works, and J. F. Percival, deputy provincial treasurer, did not stop here but continued on to Ottawa, where they will be joined later by Mr. Aberhart, Mr. Maynard and Dr. Cross.

Remaking Of Dominion's Constitution Enters First Crucial Phase On Tuesday

Representatives Of Dominion and Provinces Meet To Discuss Sirois Royal Commission Report

By GRANT DEXTER
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, Jan. 13.—The remaking of Canada's constitution begun in 1937 by the Sirois Royal Commission, continued down the years to the accompaniment of a great public discussion, enters the first crucial phase Tuesday morning in the House of Commons, when representatives of the Dominion and the nine provinces meet to discuss the commission's report.

Thus the constitution drawn up 76 years ago in a London hotel goes under the knife of Canada's statesmen surgeons.

Twenty-four hours in advance of the opening, the prospects for success seem just as remote as they did in years leading up to the first meeting of "fathers" in Charlottetown in September, 1864. Yet, the necessity which drives Canada today towards a remoulding of her system of government is just as urgent, just as inescapable, just as remorseless as it was in the days when British North America comprised a group of fragment colonies. And if today's prospects seem hopeless, it will be recalled that many pre-confederation failures led finally to success.

CONFERENCE FAILED

The Charlottetown conference failed, adjourned to Halifax and then Saint John. It reconvened in October of the same year at Quebec on the rock that is the Gibraltar of this continent. It broke up without any written or agreed record of its findings, to reconvene yet again two years later in London in the closing days of 1866. There the B.N.A. Act was drafted and enacted by the mother of parliaments.

Regardless of how bleak the prospects are for the present conference, the true successor to the conferences of three quarters of a century ago, the road to success promises to be both shorter and less controversial.

It is not possible, of course, to anticipate the positions which the principals to tomorrow's conference will take. But judging only by the public declarations so far made and by reliable information coming from provincial headquarters, the conference will divide on plan 1 of the commission as follows:

For the report — the Dominion government, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and the three Maritime provinces.

Against the report — Ontario, British Columbia and Alberta.

Quebec's position is uncertain but the influence of Premier Godbout will undoubtedly be thrown on the side of delay, against the exerting of pressure to come to an immediate decision.

EXCHANGE OF VIEWS

Under these circumstances, it may be predicted that the conference will not be allowed to fail outright. There will be an exchange of views and perhaps some discussion in the committees which are to be set up to deal with various phases of the report. This will be followed by adjournment until the session of parliament is finished. Then the conference will be resumed and a further exchange of views will take place.

Meantime, Premier Mackenzie King, in opening the conference, is expected to come out unequivocally for the report. He will place his support of it on the ground stated in his letter to the provinces: "It is the view of the government that adop-

GERMANS FAIL IN MAJOR RAID OVER LONDON

Nazis Are Driven Off By Planes, Anti-Aircraft Fire During Night

By WILLIAM R. DOWNS

LONDON, Jan. 13.—(CP)—A coastal town in southwest England was attacked in force early tonight by German raiders who followed their old tactics of first dropping fire bombs, then high explosives.

Other outlying areas were raided after dark, but London had been free of alerts long past the usual time for the appearance of the night raiders. The Liverpool area was among those reporting raids.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—(BUP)—Night fighter patrol planes and anti-aircraft gun batteries held back many German bombers during what apparently was intended to be an unusually heavy attack on London during the night.

The German raid fizzled out after about 3½ hours. Considerable damage was done but the drone of British fighter planes, and the furore of gunfire far in the outskirts, indicated that most of the German planes were headed off.

Volunteer fire spotters aided firemen in putting out fires started by incendiary bombs.

The air and home security ministries said that London and the Thames estuary bore the main attack and that some damage was done by fire but that fires were controlled quickly.

There was some light bombing in other areas.

Royal Engineers directed the work through the week-end of trying to extricate bodies of many persons believed buried in the ruins of a shelter under a traffic center.

A bomb which struck Saturday night blew a hole 30 feet deep in almost the exact center of a maze of street crossings under which many persons were sheltering in a subway station. The bomb tore up great chunks of concrete. Derricks and a big caterpillar tractor were used to lift or drag chunks of broken concrete away, and the entire block around the shelter was cordoned by police as demolition squads with acetylene torches and pneumatic drills broke up steel girders and concrete mixed in the debris.

LEADERS WIN FIRST BATTLE ON F.D.R. BILL

House Approves Plan To Rush Consideration Of Measure

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The United States administration won today the first congressional skirmish over its lease-lend bill for aiding Britain when the House of Representatives upheld procedure chartered by the leadership for rushing consideration of the measure.

By a voice vote Speaker Sam Rayburn's assignment of the bill to the foreign affairs committee was approved and an effort by the military committee to bring the measure under its control was defeated.

HEARINGS TOMORROW

The vote was taken without debate, house rules permitting no argumennt on such an issue. The balloting was the first involving the British-aid bill introduced in the new Congress Friday. The outcome cleared the way for Chairman Sol Bloom (Dem., New York) of the foreign affairs committee to start hearings tomorrow with State Secretary Cordell Hull as the first witness.

Chairman Andrew May (Dem., Kentucky) had acted on instructions from his military committee in moving that the speaker be overruled. He had contended that since the measure was concerned with national defence it should be referred to his committee.

A short time before the house session started, Rayburn declared that he "certainly wouldn't oppose" a time limitation on powers granted in the bill "if the limit ran concurrently with the emergency."

WILLKIE WANTS LIMIT

Wendell L. Willkie, 1940 Republican presidential nominee, and others have suggested the extraordinary powers which would be assigned to the chief executive should be given only for a specified period. Some Republican leaders in the Senate have discussed proposing a two-year limit.

DRASTIC CHANGES ARE HINTED FOR TRAINING SCHEME

By B. T. RICHARDSON
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, Jan 13.—Instructions have been issued by the department of national war services to local registration boards that farm boys shall receive every consideration in postponement of training in military camps this winter, where absence of the boy would work hardship in maintaining a farm in operation.

Under signature of Hon. J. G. Gardiner, a letter was sent within the past two weeks to chairmen of local boards administering the reserve training scheme. It is understood the letter has the authority of an order-in-council behind it. The letter instructed the boards to give applications for postponement of training in cases of farm boys every benefit of the doubt, in view of probable revision of the training scheme.

The letter constitutes an important relaxation of the training scheme, it is understood, possibly indicating that drastic changes are to be made in the whole scheme.

Originally, the plan was for farm boys to go to camp in winter, allowing time in summer for farm work. But numerous cases arose where farm boys could not be spared. Revision of the training plan is expected following return from England of Hon. J. L. Ralston, who has already indicated the training period may be four months.

Greatest Offensive Of War In Albania Is Said In Progress

Greek Troops Sweeping Forward Without Serious Check—Tepeleni Capture Expected Momentarily

ATHENS, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Greek warriors closing in on Valona, the Italians' only remaining port of entry into southern Albania, were reported sweeping forward without serious check today in what Greeks described as the greatest offensive of the war.

The spearhead of the Greek drive was said to have reached the vicinity of Tepeleni, ancient fortress town 10 miles southwest of captured Klisura. Its fall was expected momentarily.

Reports from the Yugoslav frontier said Tepeleni, guardian sentinel of an Italian-built road leading to Valona, already had been captured, but this lacked official confirmation in Athens.

Further Greek advances were reported on the northern sector of the Albanian battlefront in the Pogradetz sector, with fierce hand-to-hand engagements in progress. A large number of Fascist pack mules were captured on this front, Greek advices said, adding that the Italian supply situation had become precarious there because it would be impossible to bring additional animals up through snow clogged passes.

A Greek spokesman declared last night that the Greek drive had shaped into three spearheads: One toward Valona along the Tepeleni road, the second toward Valona along the coast where large new gains were reported, and the third toward Beratl and the central Albanian oilfields north of Klisura.

BRITISH GUNS POUND TOBRUK DEFENCE LINES

Members Of Garrison Are Now Badly In Need Of Water Is Belief

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 13.—(AP)—A British patrol routed an Italian force in the Metemma area of Ethiopia, east of Gallabat, Anglo Egyptian Sudan, it was reported today. The Italians left 40 dead and many wounded. British casualties were small.

CAIRO, Jan 13.—(AP)—Big British field guns which helped crack Italian resistance at Bardia joined the ring of cannon pounding defences of the beleaguered Libyan seaport of Tobruk today.

Other British forces reported cutting off the important Fascist outpost at Giarabub Oasis.

The guns were pulled 70 miles across the sand from captured Bardia to increase the fire power being brought to bear on Tobruk's outer fortifications, including the garrison's vital wells.

CERTAIN TO FALL

Thousands of Italians, cut off from reinforcements by the British band of steel around the city, were believed badly in need of water, British reports said.

Some members of the garrison were reported walking as much as three miles through the heavy British artillery fire to get water.

As at Giarabub, on the other hand, water is plentiful but the problem of supply is difficult even in peacetime and military sources said it was only a question of time before the outpost, 150 miles due south of Bardia near the Egyptian border, would fall.

British authorities said thus far

EXPANSION OF TREASURY UNIT IS ANNOUNCED

Flexible Barter System Is Outlined Here By Manning

Expansion of the provincial treasury branch system and introduction of certain new features was announced Monday by Hon. Ernest C. Manning, minister of trade and industry and acting premier, on behalf of Hon. Solon E. Low, provincial treasurer, who is on his way to Ottawa to attend the Dominion - Provincial conference on the Rowell-Sirois report.

Basic principle involved in the expansion is akin to the proposed United States aid to Britain, namely, a flexible barter system permitting exchange of goods without actual use of money, thus relieving the present strain on the monetary system.

The following statement on the proposed expansion was released by Mr. Manning, over Mr. Low's signature.

OPERATE SOON

Following my statement a few days ago, I am pleased to announce that plans for an extension of the Interim Program are nearing completion. These will go into operation within the next three or four weeks.

Persons having deposits with treasury branches will be informed fully, through the mail, about the new features which are being introduced.

The basic principle involved in this further expansion is similar to that which President Roosevelt suggested recently in regard to the terms on which the U.S.A. could provide Great Britain with war supplies—namely, a fexible barter system which would permit

LONDON TAKES LITTLE STOCK IN NAZI PACT

New Russo-German Pact Considered Of Small Value

By HAROLD FAIR

LONDON, Jan. 13—(CP)—Nazi trumpeting of the significance of the new Russo-German economic agreement is viewed skeptically in London.

Informed sources said the trade agreement extending one expiring in February is "not worth the paper which it is written on," although the German radio boasted that Russia undertook to supply the largest quantity of grain ever provided by one country for another.

While Russia agreed to boost the totals of grain and raw materials shipped to Germany, this source points to the transportation problem as the "nigger in the woodpile."

It was explained that the Russian transport system has never been efficient, while German railway facilities have been impaired by Royal Air Force bombing and the British blockade which forces the Nazis to burden their rail routes with the bulk of goods formerly brought by boat from southeast Europe.

Russia sent raw materials, grain and oil to Germany last year, but the amount of oil supplied or to be supplied is understood to be small as Russia has little surplus oil. In addition Russia is supplying China with wheat and gasoline.

they have refrained from bombing the oasis, since it contains buildings and relics sacred to the Senussi sect of Moslems. The Italian garrison there was believed to be less than a brigade.

The R.A.F. reported last night that Italian planes had been driven from five air bases in Eastern Libya-Nerna, Matruba, El Tmimi, Gazala and Bomba.

In addition airdromes at Benina and Berka were raided; Bengasi, the capital at Cirenaica, was bombed again; and attacks were made on Italian positions in Somaliland and in Italian East Africa. The fleet air arm reported hitting one merchant ship and possibly damaging four others in a raid on Palermo, Sicily.

THREE MEN DIE IN AIR CRASH NEAR WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG, Jan. 13—(CP)—A Royal Canadian Air Force court of inquiry Sunday investigated the crash of a new twin-motored training plane that failed to come out of a test nose-dive Saturday. Three men were instantly killed—an R.C.A.F. flying officer and two civilian mechanics near Grosse Isle, Man.

The machine burned but the bodies of PO R. S. (Bob) Dixon, 33, of Lulu Island, Vancouver, a famed Canadian athlete, and mechanics Stanley Muddeman, 25, of Winnipeg, and Leo Matalka of Wichita, Kas., were thrown clear.

An eye-witness, Jack Warburton, said the plane, which had just been delivered from the Cessna Aircraft Manufacturing Company at Wichita, to the No. 2 air command at Winnipeg, crashed after a series of stunts.

The machine fell into a clump of willows and was immediately enveloped in flames.

Both motors were buried about three feet in the frozen ground and the charred fuselage twisted into a mass of metal.

LACK OF DEFENCES

The successful Greek offensive not only seems to have taken the Italians by surprise but also to have uncovered an astonishing lack of effective defences which should have been ready before the start of the war. When the Italian retreat began, the Italian high command seems to have lost control of the strategic situation and never regained it.

That fact probably accounts for the failures of the Italian generals who have found the shifting battlegrounds too difficult for co-ordinated defence. It would seem as if defensive strategy in the mountain terrain of Albania would not be hard to improvise, but the snow and intense cold have injected elements against which the Italians were not prepared.

The fortitude of the Italian troops cannot be the same as the Greeks. The later are fighting to defend their country against conquest and that knowledge undoubtedly is giving them a spirit of endurance superior to the Italians, who have no such incitement to sacrifice.

The swift change in the Greek war, from the initial Italian offensive to continuous retirement, too, cannot have failed to affect the Fascist fighting morale. The generals have had this difficult condition to handicap their efforts which has been beyond their control to rectify.

LOSE CONFIDENCE

It is always disconcerting for an army to lose confidence in its commanders. The replacement of general after general causes troops to believe they are being sacrifices to ignorance in its officers.

When this psychological condition begins to spread, it saps the vitality of the soldiers and disintegrates the command. The troops become critical and fight to save themselves rather than to gain victory.

HARD SITUATION

General Cavallero will have this hard situation facing him on his arrival in Albania. He succeeds to the command of an army which must be temperamentally reorganized if the Italians are to halt permanently the slow but persistent pressure of the Greeks.

General Cavallero does not rank high as a strategist nor as an active field commander. He is a military diplomatist rather than a great soldier.

It is possible that the Italian army in Albania requires at this immediate time a diplomatic commander more than a strategist, to re-establish co-ordination among the officers. That would be the first step toward trying to spread self-confidence in the ranks.

However, with the victorious Greeks getting closer and closer to Valona and also moving along the road toward Tirana, the capital, the problem of a strong defense likewise is essential. Yet, before the Italians can increase their combat power, a mental change is essential, and that must become General Cavallero's primary purpose.

Interpreting War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

BRITISH seizure in the Libyan campaign of a fleet of grounded Italian planes raises again the question of Fascist oil resources, and the extent to which Italian reverses both in Africa and Albania may be traceable to lack of fuel.

This seems the major explanation for the poor showing Italy has made in the air and at sea, in Libya and in Albania. Indeed, there appears to be an oil scarcity for both members of the Axis.

The relative lull for three nights in Nazi air attacks on Britain last week well might be due more to oil and gasoline difficulties than to bad weather. The weather did not prevent British bombers from crossing the channel to batter the invasion coast those same nights.

It may be that Nazi leadership welcomed a weather excuse for slowing up its air force while oil and gasoline stocks were accumulated for later operations by air and sea. A heavy raid followed the lull.

Italian planes taken by British forces at abandoned air bases west of Tobruk were reported left behind by the retiring Fascists because of damage inflicted by British air raids. That does not explain, however, how they happened to be caught on the ground in the first instance.

At one base the attackers found 40 ships, crippled before they could get into the air, at another 35 or so. There is reason to believe it was lack of fuel that grounded them.

COMPLETELY CUT OFF

A successful Italian invasion of Greece to reach ports on the Greek Aegean coast might have opened new oil resources for Italy even if Britain retained control from Crete, at the mouth of the Aegean sea. Control of the upper Aegean would have given Italy a gasoline filling station.

As it is she is completely cut off from Rumanian or Russian sources except through Germany.

the exchange of goods without the use of actual money, thereby relieving the present strain on the monetary system.

With the limitations imposed by the monetary system, the foundation of the economic order of the future can be laid only by means of some such temporary expedient until the necessary monetary reform along scientific lines is carried out.

May I remind you of the dominating considerations which we have kept in mind in organizing these extended services:

1—The responsibility resting on the province to direct the development of its economy to the dominating task of making a maximum contribution to the national war effort.

2—The need for laying strong foundations now to meet the problems of post-war reconstruction.

3—The growing necessity for relieving our people—particularly farmers—of the acute economic conditions arising out of the agricultural situation.

4—The need to incur no expenditure which does not constitute a sound economic investment.

5—The importance of avoiding any action which might impair the national unity so essential at this time.

The right to barter their own goods is an unquestionable property right of our people and, therefore, within provincial jurisdiction without a shadow of doubt. We have seen how much conflict can arise from any action which involves the financial system—and we are most anxious that no such controversy should be perpetuated at the present time when the need for national unity and full support for the federal government in our war effort are so essential.

We are confident that no such conflict will arise if our people merely exercise their constitutional property rights by using a barter system of their own, which does not interfere with the monetary system but rather acts as an auxiliary to ensure that it operates more efficiently.

To meet modern needs, such a system of barter must operate smoothly—it must be "streamlined" to give those using it a service free from any avoidable restrictions.

FEW CHANGES

At first this may appear to be a complete and far reaching departure from the present treasury branches scheme. Actually, it will involve very few changes and will be nothing more than an expansion of the present services with the introduction of certain new features.

The new features being introduced are:

1—Existing transfer voucher deposits will automatically become cash deposits from a date to be announced later.

2—A new non-negotiable transfer voucher will be introduced for the transfer of "trade claims."

3—"Trade claims" will be claims on goods and services as between persons having accounts with the treasury branches. They will not be a claim on cash.

4—Persons may acquire trade claims for goods or for services or from treasury branches for money. Such money received by the treasury branches for trade claims will be available for obtaining goods which have to be brought into the province or which cannot be obtained for trade claims or barter.

5—Retail merchants accepting trade claims for their goods will be assured of satisfactory arrangements for the replacement of such goods.

5% BONUS

6—Consumers obtaining goods from co-operating retail merchants with non-negotiable transfer vouchers will be entitled to a 5% bonus in trade claims on the price of all such goods bearing the Alberta Trade Mark and on a like amount of other goods obtained with transfer vouchers in any month.

7—Arrangements will be made to provide proper facilities for retail merchants, wholesale merchants, manufacturers and producers, in order that they may participate in the benefits of the program with a minimum of inconvenience to themselves.

8—Contingencies such as leaving the province for residence elsewhere, travel, etc., will be provided for in the case of depositors accumulating trade claims.

9—In order to assure no disruption of the treasury branch services a period of a full month will be provided for the introduction of these new features and the signing of new agreements.

NEW FEATURES

I should emphasize that the operation of the interim program will continue to be absolutely voluntary and the new features like those at present in operation will depend solely upon their merits to win the support and co-operation of all.

The foregoing preliminary announcement is necessarily only a bare outline of the main features. Further details will be announced later.

We are inviting the most searching scrutiny of the new features by business men in every sphere of production and trade. Already we have had valuable assistance from the suggestions and constructive criticisms which some of these have made. I am confident that when the new services go into operation and the people have an opportunity of studying them fully and carefully, they will realize their great possibilities for the future not only of Alberta but of all Canada.

TEPELINI BASE REPORTED TO BE CAPTURED

whose capture the Greeks announced last Friday.

Reports On Border Tepeleni Has Fallen

BELGRADE, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The capture by Greek troops of the mountain village of Tepeleni, which the Greeks said meant a definite break of the whole Italian front in central Albania, was reported last night in Yugoslav border advices.

Frontier reports said the town fell with hardly any Fascist resistance and that the main Italian army is fleeing to the mountains northwest of Tepeleni.

The fall of Tepeleni, if verified, means the Greeks have achieved the object of a two-pronged offensive against Tepeleni and Klisura, 10 miles east of Tepeleni. Klisura was captured Friday.

(Tepeleni is 55 miles south of the important port of Valona, on the Adriatic sea. The two are connected by a highway built by the Italians during the last war.)

Border reports said the Greeks entered Tepeleni from the south and encountered little resistance, th city already having been evacuated by the Italians.

(With the good road connecting Tepeleni and Valona, the Greeks apparently will use Tepeleni as a springboard for a fresh drive on Valona.)

Tepeleni commands the valleys of the Viossa, Drin and Bensa rivers. It has a population of 500.

It possesses the most extensive ruin in Albania, the great castle of Ali Pasha, the Lion of Tepeleni, who became the most powerful Pasha of the Ottoman empire and an ally of Napoleon. Ali garnered greater treasures and the fortress at Tepeleni was said to have been valued at one time at $10,000,000.

Many Italians Taken In Drive

By BEN AMES

ATHENS, Greece, Jan. 13.—(BUP)—Greek troops driving up the south Albanian coast road toward Valona have captured seven Italian officers and 114 men who were cut off from their supply bases and were half-starved, a government spokesman said today.

At another sector (unspecified but believed to be the Tepelini-Klisura region, where fighting has been heaviest), Greek troops attacked the rear of Italian fortified positions and found 40 dead Italians still in battle positions, the spokesman said. The rest of the Italian force had fled, leaving behind eight mortars, 10 machine guns and ammunition, he said.

WHOLE BATTALION TAKEN

(Reports from Struga, on the Yugoslav border, said Greeks captured five Italian officers and 280 men, three light field guns and eight machine guns in a fierce fight near the Greek-held village of Suka, two miles northwest of Klisura, on the road to Berat.

(Struga reports said that Italians, reinforced by mechanized units from Valona, recaptured the village of Dorza, 14 miles northwest of Tepelini and 18 miles southeast of Valona, which the Greeks had captured Dec. 18. The Italians captured three Greek officers and 230 men and the rest of the Greeks fled toward Zemblan, on the northern slope of the Griba mountains, the report said.

(In the north sector, according to Struga reports, Greeks captured a whole Italian battalion with all officers and equipment, in repulsing an Italian attempt to break through the Greek lines between Brzesda, in the Skumbi Valley, two miles south of the Lin-Elbasan road, and Kjuks, two miles southeast of Brzesda.)

TOWN DEMOLISHED

A dispatch from Mary Merlin, British United Press correspondent with the Greeks in the Tepelini sector, said the Italians were being driven from heights around the town, although the town itself, consisting of a few hundred yellowish stone houses, was completely demolished.

She said Greek scouts entered the town during the weekend and found it sacked and abandoned.

"The reason for the reluctance of the Greek general staff to reveal names and positions of Greek-held villages became clear to me this (Sunday) afternoon when I watched 36 heavy Italian bombers wheel overhead in a bright sun, then unload their high explosives among their own positions," Miss Merlin's dispatch said.

"The Greek air force's work in bombing retreating Italians along the narrow mountain roads has heartened the Greek troops, but the Italians still have a large numerical advantage."

PLANE CRASHES

She said one of the latest type Italian planes had crashed into a mountain, killing its crew, when the pilot tried a bombing dive.

(Reports from Struga said Greek and British planes had bombed Durazzo, main Albanian port, killing eight and wounding seven persons, and Elbasan, killing 10 and wounding 27. Port works at Durazzo, an Italian ship in the harbor and gasoline storage tank of the Italian company, Agip, were damaged, according to the reports. During the raid on Elbasan five Italian planes were said to have gone up to fight the attackers. One Greek bomber was reported shot down in flames five miles east of Elbasan and one Italian fighter was believed shot down, the dispatch said.)

Quebec Churches Join In Prayer For War Victory

MONTREAL, Jan. 13—(CP)—The United Church of Canada in the province of Quebec will observe Feb. 9 as a day of prayer for victory in response to the request of the Lieutenant-Governor, Sir Eugene Fiset, church officials announced Saturday.

The lieutenant-governor proclaimed the date as a day of prayer for victory in the Roman Catholic church earlier this week and asked other denominations to join the observance.

R.A.F. PLANES MACHINE-GUN NAZI TROOPS

rient—much-raided Nazi submarine bases—and at oil targets at Porto Marghera, in northeastern Italy, the German city of Regensburg and the Belgian port of Ostend.

The daylight attack on the German-held channel coast Sunday—the fourth in as many days—was pictured not only as an attempt to break up any Nazi invasion plans, but also as preparations for the time when Britain might feel strong enough to carry the fight to the continent.

DISRUPTING TROOPS

The low-level raids by day on the entrenched Germans, designed to dove-tail with night bombing of the channel ports, were said to be aimed at disrupting the organization and breaking the morale of the Nazi occupation forces.

With bombs dropping from only a few hundred feet and machine guns firing "almost at ground level," the air ministry described heavy damage to Porto Marghera, including the destruction of two large buildings.

"Anti-aircraft defences first were silenced by machine-gun fire from a few hundred feet," its communique said. "Then a heavy bomb was released from very low level and blew up one of the largest refinery buildings.

"More bombs set oil stroage tanks on fire. A second large building nearby was hit by two bombs and seen to collapse and fall in pieces.

"Finally, sheds and workshops were machine-gunned from almost ground level. The target was left blazing."

Several fires also were caused at Regensburg, it said, and at Ostend "a large explosion followed by fire was observed." From these night attacks, the communique said, one British plane failed to return.

Fires and bomb bursts were sighted at the three Nazi-occupied ports. German airdromes at Vannes, Chartres, Evreux and Morlaix also were attacked last night. Fires were set and some planes on the ground hit, a communique said.

Shipping and ground defences were assaulted in the daylight raid yesterday, the fourth in succession by British bombers and fighters, and informed sources said they were designed to hamper preparations for the nightly Nazi assaults on Britain.

SIGNIFICANT SIGN

The Press Association commented "It is significant that, since the first daylight raids upon the airdromes nearest our shores, the enemy's night attacks have been of briefer duration."

The ministry reported three fighter planes lost in the daylight attacks yesterday.

The entrenched troops were understood to be stationed in defence lines around emplacements of large guns used to bombard the Dover coast and ship conviys in the channel.

An authoritative source said the daylight gunning of German troops along the French coast was part of a campaign to force Nazi defences back from the channel by "making it hot for them."

In daylight raids on enemy shipping off the Norwegian coast, it was added, direct hits were made on two merchant vessels.

WATCH FOR INVASION TRY

Earlier, an authoritative source reported that in offensive operations last night British aircraft attacked objectives in Northern Italy as well as "invasion ports" and airdromes in German-occupied territory.

The Royal Air Force has been giving increasing attention to "invasion" areas across the English Channel where unusual activity has been reported lately.

That activity has lent weight to a growing feeling in many circles in London that long-expected German invasion attempts may be launched in the spring or sooner.

One source in discussing the new tactics—for the R.A.F.—of daylight raids described them as an outgrowth of increasing air strength.

"You can be sure that if we were seriously short of planes," he said, "we would not dare to risk losses in continuous daylight raids."

E-BOATS ATTACKED

An air ministry news service statement on the raid by the Hurricanes said:

"Hurricanes of the R.A.F. fighter command yesterday swept low over the Belgian and French coast and machine-gunned enemy troops and shipping.

"The first patrol, led by a squadron leader with a D.S.O. and D.F.C., who came to sea level twice, attacked an E-boat (small, fast motor torpedo boat) 800 yards off shore. The Hurricanes swept the deck with bullets and then attacked a drifter.

"Another patrol attacked a second E-boat from astern from sea level and the boat made for shore.

FIGHTERS ENGAGED

"The patrol continued across the coast and machine-gunned troops in trenches near the beach.

"Two other small ships were machine-gunned.

"A third patrol attacked a large two-masted schooner and a number of small vessels.

"Heavy and accurate anti-aircraft fire was encountered and 18 ME109's (Messerschmitts) sent up to intercept were engaged.

"Two of our pilots are missing. One pilot thought he had been hit for he looked into his mirror and saw what seemed to be damage to an elevator tip. When he landed he found a bird entangled in the aerial."

Last night's raids followed Saturday night attacks on numerous objectives along the Netherlands and Belgian coasts and on shipping at Wilhelmshaven, Germany, as well as a furious raid over Italy in which the royal arsenal at Turin was blasted.

In the Saturday Italian raid one British crew found ice had formed on the bomb doors of its plane so that it could not release the missiles over the chosen objective. On the return journey the ice thawed in time for the bomb layer to release his load on a factory at another point. Fires resulted which were followed in a few moments by a huge explosion.

The number of planes taking part in the raids was not disclosed, but Geneva and other Swiss cities reported they had undergone numerous air raid alerts during the week-end, including one sounded after dawn today.

The Swiss general staff issued a communique in which it asserted air space above Switzerland had been violated by unidentified foreign aircraft "not once but many times."

CONFERENCE ON SIROIS REPORT OPENS TUESDAY

tion of the commission's recommendations is necessary to put our country in a position to pursue a policy which will achieve the maximum war effort and at the same time to lay a sound foundation for post war reconstruction."

CANNOT CONTINUE

It will be pointed out, either by Mr. King in his opening address or, later on by Hon. J. L. Ilsley, minister of finance, that hitherto in financing the war the dominion has strictly avoided measures which injure the provinces. It is now evident that this cannot continue. So great are the demands of the war that the dominion will have to seek revenue wherever it can be obtained, without regard for the provinces. It would be best to adopt the report, put the provinces in a sound position financially, and then proceed to mobilize the full resources of the nation for war.

The dominion is not expecting results from this conference but it is hoped that after the next budget comes down the viewpoint of the antagonistic provinces may be modified.

Meantime, the dominion will exert no pressure on the provinces. It will act only upon agreement. But it will not accept any alternative schemes. It will have to be plan 1 or adjournment.

Chief interest attaches to the disgruntled provinces. What are they against?

B.C. ABSOLUTELY OPPOSED

Of course, the two provinces which benefit least obviously from the report are Ontario and British Columbia. The Pattullo government is said to be absolutely opposed and to have come here determined not even to carry the conference to the committee stage. The Pattullo government considers the report to be against British Columbia's best interests, to entail intolerable sacrifices.

The Ontario government has opposed the re-making of the constitution from the outset. Premier Hepburn assailed the commission when it met to take evidence from his government. He has never wavered in bitter hostility to it. What is not now clear, however, is the form his opposition will take. He is unpredictable and every effort by federal ministers to sound him out has failed.

The Aberhart government has gone on record as being opposed to the report because it would centralize power and entrench bureaucracy.

The Godbout government has never breathed a word of criticism of the report, although Mr. Godbout last week pledged himself not to surrender any of the autonomy of his province. This is a meaningless statement inasmuch as the report does not impinge on the minority rights; indeed it strengthens them. But it is common knowledge that the nationalist movement in Quebec has flared up menacingly and has greatly embarrassed the government. It is judged to be vital, at this time, that Quebec should not be disturbed. The war situation demands care in not giving whip-handles to the nationalist minority and rather than risk a major disturbance the Godbout government is believed to be counselling an adjournment of the conference until mid-summer. It is notable that the Montreal Gazette switched today from support of the report to opposition. The Gazette now believes the report should be pigeon-holed until after the war.

Under these circumstances, no striking progress is likely to be achieved at this conference. Much publicity will be given to the report and public discussion will be stimulated. There was not war, 76 years ago to complicate the discussions of the fathers. And, if for the moment, the war seems to be a hindrance to progress today, it may well supply the power which will compel action a few months hence.

City Of Wagner Festivals Bombed

BERLIN, Jan. 13—(AP)—Bayreuth, Bavarian city noted for the Wagner music festivals, was attacked by British bombers last night. German authorities claimed only a few bombs were dropped and there was no appreciable damage. The Festival House, they added, was not endangered nor was the villa where Wagner was buried.

(Bayreuth, 125 miles north of Munich, is an important railway junction.)

Delegates Now Arriving In Ottawa

OTTAWA, Jan. 13—(CP)—Delegations from Ontario, Saskatchewan, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia arrived in Ottawa to join the army of provincial ministers and advisers here for the Dominion Provincial conference on the Rowell-Sirois commission report.

It is expected well over 100 provincial representatives will be seated with the Dominion delegation of 40 when the conference opens at 10 a.m. tomorrow in the House of Commons Chamber.

Premier Hepburn of Ontario brought a delegation of 14 while Premier MacMillan's Nova Scotia delegation totalled nine ministers and officials.

ARRANGE SEATING

The Alberta delegation was expected to arrive during the day, those from Prince Edward Island, Quebec, Manitoba and British Columbia having arrived yesterday.

Members of the conference organizing committee busily allotted rooms in the parliament building for the provincial delegates, and arranged the seats in the commons chamber.

As General Conference Chairman Prime Minister Mackenzie King will sit at the head of the clerk's table in the centre of the chamber.

Provincial premiers will sit at either side of the table, in order of precedence decided by the sequence in which the provinces entered confederation.

This will bring Mr. Hepburn on the prime minister's right and Premier Godbout of Quebec on his left. Alberta, last province to enter, will be at the foot of the table.

Provincial delegates will occupy members' desks, grouped immediately behind their premiers.

GEORGE CROSS AWARDED FOR DUTY IN RAIDS

LONDON, Jan. 13—(CP)—Award of the George Cross, for great gallantry and undaunted devotion to duty in the German aerial attack, to three men of the Royal Navy, an aviator and an engineer, has been announced in the London Gazette. In three cases the hero was honored for an act that cost his life.

The men of the navy honored were Lt. Cmdr. Richard John Hammersley Ryan and Chief Petty Officer Reginald Vincent Ellingworth, both of whom were killed, and Sub-Lt. Peter Victor Danckwerts. No details were issued.

The airman was Acting Squadron-Leader Eric Lawrence Moxey. He volunteered last August to remove two bombs embedded in an airdrome. One bomb exploded and Moxey was killed.

Roy T. Harris, Croydon Corporation engineer, was awarded the cross "for conspicuous bravery in carrying out dangerous duties."

Told of the distinction, Harris remarked: "I've only been doing my job."

Kiwanis Meet

Speaking on English, Irish relations at a luncheon meeting of the Edmonton Kiwanis Club in the Macdonald hotel Monday, R. D. Tighe, K.C., Edmonton barrister, declared that Eamon de Valera, born of Spanish-American parentage, does not represent the real Irishman. Brought up in slums and immersed from his very youth with a deep, unreasonable hate for the English, de Valera, the speaker said, has no right to stand as a representative of Irish thought and feeling.

NIGHT BOMBER SOLUTION MAY BE NEAR, SAID

LONDON, Jan. 13—(CP)—The Press Association's air correspondent said Sunday Germany's admission that six planes failed to return from Friday night's raids, in which the British air ministry claimed only two, may mean "progress is being made in the search for a thoroughly convincing answer to the night bomber."

The writer added that scientific search is being made by the best brains of Britain for methods of locating high-flying raiders and there is reason to believe British instruments already in use are "in advance of anything yet evolved by the enemy."

The Press Association's correspondent quoted one senior army expert as saying "I shall not be content until we bring down 10 per cent of all night raiders."

Experts, the correspondent added, are not overlooking the possibility that the German air force may be using sub-stratosphere raiders when lower altitudes become too hot for them.

Already against low-flying raiders the Bofors gun, equipped with a new predictor, has shown itself to be an absolute "killer," scoring a hit in every 20 rounds the correspondent said.

ITALO CHIEF IN ALBANIA QUITS DUE TO 'HEALTH'

By REYNOLDS PACKARD

ROME, Jan. 13.—(BUP)—Gen. Ubaldo Soddu, made commander in chief of the Italian forces in Albania only nine weeks ago, has resigned "for reasons of health" and will be succeeded by Gen. Ugo Cavallero, chief of the general staff, it was announced today.

Cavallero, who succeeded Marshal Pietro Badoglio as chief of staff in the shake-up of Dec. 6, will retain that post.

After the first Italian reverses in Greece, it was announced on Nov. 9 that Soddu, then under secretary of war, had succeeded Gen. Sebastiano Prasca as commander in chief in Albania. It was said at the time that Soddu was favorably known as a practical soldier who had served with distinction in the world war, and as an energetic leader, whereas Prasca had been known as a strategist.

KING RECEIVES HARRY HOPKINS, F.D.R. EMISSARY

LONDON, Jan. 13.—(BUP)—King George received Harry Hopkins, personal emissary of President Roosevelt, at Buckingham Palace today.

Hopkins remained with the King for more than 30 minutes.

Earlier the King received Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Lord Halifax, who is to leave soon to take up his new post of ambassador to the United States. Churchill's meeting with the King was the first since Christmas.

For Science

MOSCOW, Jan. 13.—(AP)—About 17,000,000 rubles will be granted this month as "Stalinist premiums" for outstanding achievements in art, science and invention in Soviet Russia.

So Who's Who?

OSLO—(CP)—An article in the "Morgenbladet"—Oslo daily—calls attention to the "rats" in Norway. The paper says Norwegians do not want to share their food, already scarce, with the "rats," which are not identified as vermin or human.

People Of Martinique Sit On Pile Of Gold While All Necessities Are Lacking

By PETER C. RHODES

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—(BUP)—Martinique today, short on food, clothing and other necessities because French credits in the United States are frozen, is sitting on a "mountain of gold"—$945,232,344 worth.

That gold represents a large slice of the Bank of France gold reserves. The French government, anxious to keep it out of German hands during the military collapse, sent the gold first to Canada, and then to Martinique. It is locked away in the Fort De Saix at Fort-De-France Martinique, guarded by all the available power the French have been able to muster.

United States observers regard the gold as a source of danger, because any of the present belligerents might regard it as more valuable than a military victory. The French are determined to prevent it falling into foreign hands.

HAS WILD ODYSSEY

The gold had a wild Odyssey before coming to rest in Martinique. It was loaded aboard the cruiser Emile Bertin at Brest on June 12. Commander Robert Batet was ordered to Halifax and turn it over to French and Canadian authorities there. He arrived June 18. As he entered the port he received instructions advising him that Marshal Henri Philippe Petain had already begun negotiations for an armistice with the German army. He was ordered to Martinique before the armistice was signed and the gold seized.

Canadian authorities came aboard to tell Batet that a special train was waiting on the dock to take the gold to Montreal. Batet stalled for nearly two days. Finally he is reported to have threatened to shoot his way out of the harbor. He got away five days before the armistice was signed.

Eluding British warships which followed him that night, the Bertin docked in Fort-De-France on June 22. On June 24 the armistice was signed—but the gold was stored away under Fort De Saix's guns.

The Bertin brought 14,000 sacks of gold coins and bullion, each weighing 600 kilos. All were marked with the stamp of the Le Puy branch of the Bank of France, where France's gold reserve had been stored at the outbreak of war.

IMPORTANT TO FRANCE

That gold, the men in charge of it say, is almost as important to France as the French fleet and the French colonies. If it had fallen to British hands in Halifax, they say, it might have gone into war purchases. If it were shipped piecemeal on freighters to North Africa either the British blockade patrol or German raiders might seize the ships. Reports went out that the Cuba, carrying 1,500 demobilized soldiers and sailors to Casablanca also carried part of the gold. British seized the ship and brought it to Freetown, Sierra Leone.

The French in Martinique insisted that Germany had no lien on this gold, even under the original armistice terms. The gold would still permit France to fight again, if she had to, without becoming an auxiliary force of any other power, a sort of French foreign Legion at the service of another nation, they say. The gold, I was told, has been one of the essential factors in Marshal Petain's recent resistance to excessive German demands.

The United States, it is understood, has expressed its concern that the gold might be shipped to South America for the purchase of war materials or for propaganda purposes, or back to Europe, and thus aid Germany in her fight.

CHECKED BY U.S.

When the American delegation led by Admiral John W. Greenslade visited Martinique on Nov. 1 to discuss all Martinique problems, Greenslade was taken to Fort De Saix and shown the gold. Since then American representatives have been allowed to make periodic checks to be sure the French are living up to their word not to send that gold away. The American naval patrol keeps its eye open for anyone trying to get it.

The gold is likely to stay in Martinique till some final settlement is made with France—perhaps until the end of the war. Its presence probably accounts for the reinforced measures of defense taken on the island in recent weeks.

Sitting on this fortune which is almost all that France can still call its own money, Martinique almost starved in the first few months after the armistice. The British blockaded the island for a month, and then the United States put on an unofficial blockade. The U.S. treasury, by freezing some millions of French dollar credits in American banks prevented food and supplies from being bought for Martinique as well as France.

AGREEMENT REACHED

Finally, a general agreement concerning the airplanes, gold and warships in the French West Indies was reached with the United States.

The agreement was reached just in time, for the first load of American flour arrived in Martinique four days after bread had run out. A few minor fights and demonstrations, which might easily have developed into riots, marked those four days when there was no bread.

BULGARIA MAY YET FACE WAR PREMIER SAYS

Must Be Prepared To Defend Vital Interests, People Warned

RUSE, Bulgaria, Jan. 13—(AP)—Premier Bogdan Philoff told the Bulgarian people Sunday night that they might yet be brought into the war but he said he was sure they "would not forgive anybody who tried to make Bulgaria National Socialist (Nazi), Communist or Fascist."

In a speech at this frontier town, just across the Danube from Rumania (where hundreds of thousands of German soldiers are massed), the premier avoided reference to reports abroad of German pressure on Bulgaria but said specifically that Bulgaria wants to follow her own traditions.

NOT FOR BULGARS

"National Socialism, Fascism and Communism may be good for Germany, Italy and Russia," he said, "but they cannot be transplanted to Bulgarian soil."

President Roosevelt's recent statements, he said, reflect the dangers of the present "gigantic battle which threatens to go around the whole world."

The President's message to the United States Congress, he went on, "unquestionably" is an indication of a long war which is likely to spread to other parts of the world.

The aims of Bulgarian foreign policy, he said, are "to guard the people from the terror of war and in general to keep Bulgaria and all the Balkans at peace," but he added:

"To keep the peace does not depend on Bulgaria. We must realize that one day we may have to enter the war."

MUST BE PREPARED

Stressing that "the people must be prepared to defend their vital interests," the premier thanked Italy, Germany and Russia for settlement of the Dobruja question. Southern Dobruja, by Axis arbitration, was returned to Bulgaria by Rumania some weeks ago.

He spoke in friendly fashion of Rumania and said Bulgaria hopes to obtain her other revisionist claims by peaceful means.

The general impression among Bulgarians was that Philoff foresaw that a power such as Germany might enter Bulgaria, but it would be under Bulgarian protest. Should this involve other powers, they said, Bulgaria must defend her interest, if need be.

Philoff said the army is better equipped than even in the last war, when Bulgaria was a German ally, or in the Balkan wars, although rearmament has been under way only two years.

Philoff's address was broadcast. His audience was estimated at 10,000 persons. Other ministers of the government spoke along similar lines in other cities.

U.S. RED CROSS PLANS HOSPITAL FOR BRITAIN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—(AP)—The pre-fabricated frame-work of 22 buildings will be shipped to Britain soon to be pieced together into a 126-bed "siege" hospital at an unnamed site in the southwestern part of England, the American Red Cross announced Sunday.

The hospital, a joint project of the Red Cross and Harvard university, is expected to be set up next month. It will be used as a laboratory for the study of communicable diseases under war-time conditions and its findings will be reported to the United States army, navy and public health service.

The Red Cross said the buildings would be constructed of five-ply building board "sandwiched" between fire-resistant sheets. Ventilation experts have devised a system to circulate fresh air into the rooms during the nightly "lock-up" for blackouts.

Dr. John E. Gordon, of Harvard Medical school, will be director general of the undertaking. The staff will consist of 75 American physicians, Red Cross nurses and laboratory technicians.

Duke Of Windsor Sees Air Races

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 13—(AP)—The Duke of Windsor flew here Saturday for a two-hour visit at the all-American air manoeuvres, then left in an Amphibian plane on the return trip to Cat Cay, Bahamas. The Duke watched the stunts and races on his second visit to the United States since becoming Governor of the Bahama Islands.

Death Sentence

ARDENAL, Norway (Via Berlin), Jan. 13. — (AP) — A 25-year old workman, Rolf Hansen, was sentenced to death Saturday by a court martial. He was charged with attacking a German soldier.

Two Drown

LAC DU BONNET, Man., Jan. 13. —(CP)—Two men drowned in the Winnipeg river Tuesday when their tractor crashed through the ice near Great Falls, about 80 miles northeast of Winnipeg. The men ere, Eugene Kenney, 28, of St. Norbert, Man., and Andre Desautels, 29, of St. Jean, Man.

NETHERLANDS STAND FIRMLY WITH BRITAIN

Eager To Fight With Empire Allies Minister Tells Canada

OTTAWA, Jan. 13—(CP)—Hon. F. E. Groenman, Netherlands minister to Canada, assured Canadians Sunday night that Netherlands armies "are eager to stand shoulder to shoulder" with their empire allies in the war of liberation.

"The sorry part which some individuals may be playing must never make us forget that Canada and Holland are friends," the minister said. "You will not forget, will you, that we are your friends? You will not allow anybody to divide us?"

Mr. Groenman spoke on the weekly "We Are Not Alone" series arranged by G. H. Lash, director of public information. The address was heard over a national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

TRUE FRIEND

Germany's action in invading the low countries May 10, 1940, compelled Netherlanders "To lay aside all trust in humanity and decency" as far as the aggressors were concerned, Mr. Groenman said.

Mr. Groenman said all the armed forces of The Netherlands and those civilians who "till keep up a sturdy resistance against the aggressor" were true friends of Canada.

Netherlands fishermen, peasants in the Netherland Indies, and soldiers of The Netherlands Legions in Europe and in Canada—all these were Canada's friends, the minister said.

The Netherlands legion in Canada shortly to begin training at Stratford, Ont., was not large by comparison with Empire forces. He was confident, however, that whatever it lacked in size it "would make up in spirit."

Turning to the invasion of Holland by Germany last May, Mr. Groenman said Netherlands military authorities sounded the "cease fire" only because they realized further fighting would mean "wholesale destruction" of about one-sixth of the civilian population.

CANADA NOT ALONE

Germany had "accomplices" but not a single friend in the world.

"But Canada is not alone. The bonds of Empire to which she belongs are not wide enough to contain the hearts that beat widely for her cause."

The minister warned Canadians against allowing "certain smart foreign publications to "sow suspicion between ally and ally." Two such insinuations, designed to entice the Netherlands away from the Allies, were made after the fall of Holland.

"It was untruly said 'Holland's water defences are dry.' They were not—they kept the enemy back."

The other accusation was that Holland harbored a fifth column. Such a fifth column did exist, he admitted, but most of its members were Germans living in Holland.

TRAINING PLAN IS EXPANSION EXISTING WORK

CALGARY, Jan. 13.—(CP)—Announcement of the government plan to speed up training of men and boys for Canadian war industries, with an objective of training 100,000 workers in 1941, will be merely an expansion of the present scheme as far as Alberta is concerned, and should not change the type of instruction being offered or the manner in which it is being handled, according to J. H. Ross, provincial director of youth training.

Main difference in the scheme is the fact that the government is encouraging older people to take the courses where formerly youth had been encouraged, he believed. Provisions for allowances for married men would also make it easier for them to take advantage of the course.

While it would appear that Calgary shops were working to capacity, Mr. Ross believed training could be expanded.

Banff Carnival Queen

Wearing the jewelled crown of office, Miss Catherine Betts, Spokane, is ready to preside as Queen of the Banff Winter Carnival which will open in Banff, Alta., Thursday, February 13. A committee representing Banff, Calgary, Edmonton and Spokane is working on the plans to make the 25th annual winter sports carnival in the Canadian Rockies the best in history. James McCluskey, Spokane, will choose the members of the "court" to accompany "Queen" Catherine to Banff.

Labor's Viewpoint — Article III.

By GRANT DEXTER

Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

This is the third of a series of articles by Grant Dexter of The Bulletin's Ottawa Bureau on "Labor's Viewpoint" in relation to war industry. Other articles will follow.—EDITOR.

OTTAWA, Jan. 13.—In the late summer and fall of 1940 another source of difficulty arose between Labor and the Department of Labor.

The government had awarded numerous construction contracts on the basis of a declared schedule of wages. The contractors bid for these jobs on these wage rates and were legally bound to pay them. Many of the contractors did not do so. They paid less than the schedule called for and in due course complaint to this effect came to Labor executives at Ottawa and were forwarded to the Labor department.

The Labor department sent inspectors to investigate these complaints and in many cases the complaints were found to be true. The inspectors thereupon instructed the contractors to find the employees who had been mistreated and pay them the amounts coming to them under the schedule.

TRANSIENT LABOR

Most of this labor, unfortunately, was transient and many contractors were unable to locate former employees who, in effect, had been cheated. When unable to make restitution, the contractors were allowed to pocket the money. Later on, the inspectors took the unpaid wages from the contractors and themselves tried to find the men to whom the money should have been paid and make restitution. They, too, failed in many cases and having failed they then handed back the money to the contractors.

According to union officials complaint after complaint went to the Labor department but no effective action was taken. It is said that there are dozens of these cases.

And then, on November 27, 1940, Hon. Norman McLarty announced that an order-in-council had been passed authorizing the Labor department to take steps to ensure payment of fair wages as authorized by law to workers employed on government contracts. The order sets out clearly the crime and the penalty devised to correct it.

"The deputy labor minister shall be responsible for investigation of all claims for payment of wages at rates set out in the fair wage schedule embodied in government contracts and in any case where the actual rates have been less than the rates so set out in the fair wage schedule, he shall ascertain the difference between the amounts actually paid to employees and the amounts which they would have received had they been paid at the rates set out in the fair wage schedule.

DELIVER CHEQUE

"The contractor shall deliver to the deputy Labor minister a cheque payable to the receiver-general of Canada for the total amount of the differences ascertained under regulation 1, or if settlement has not yet been made with the contractor concerned, then the government department concerned with the contract shall withhold payment of such amount from the contractor and shall deliver to the deputy minister a cheque in the required amount payable to the receiver-general of Canada."

This decision was entirely satisfactory to Labor but it was made only after Dr. Bryce Stewart became the deputy minister and long after repeated complaints of misconduct and unjust treatment of workers had been made, investigated and confirmed. In labor's opinion this procrastination while contractors benefitted with the express approval of the Labor department (which returned the boodle to the contractors), requires a great deal more explanation that has hitherto been forthcoming.

TRAINING NECESSARY

With respect to general war policy, Labor leaders at the outset realized that a vast increase in industrial training, the co-ordination of past sporadic efforts in this line, was imperatively necessary. They said so. As war orders began to flood in upon Canadian industry, the advice given by Labor leaders to the Department of Labor became more pointed. In July, in a statement on labor supply for war industries, the official organ of the Trades and Labor Congress said: "Training schemes have been inaugurated and in some instances training facilities provided by private industries and numerous other measures taken to increase the number of available skilled workers. All these efforts have so far, however, been unco-ordinated and in many instances initiated without any accurate knowledge of the actual requirements." That was in July.

About the same time Tom Moore, president of the Trades and Labor Congress, made a statement containing this comment: "Training of youth has been woefully neglected in the past and however vigorously undertaken now, cannot immediately produce recruits for the more highly skilled occupations. Notwithstanding this, training schemes should be accelerated and extended and apprenticeship training given to the greatest possible extent." He went on to point out that another rich source of reserve labor would be found among the older men who had retired from the machines but would gladly return to do their bit.

At the Trades and Labor Congress in Vancouver in September a resolution was passed urging the government to adopt an expanded apprenticeship system to provide a "constant supply of skilled workers."

The training of workers, as is now well known, was neglected with the result that bottlenecks now exist and a general labor shortage may arise in the near future. No part of the blame for failure to foresee the existing shortages and to take adequate measures to forstall them rests upon Labor. That is the undivided responsibility of the Department of Labor. This has played no part in worsening relations between government and Labor but deserves mention to show that Labor was alive to this problem and ready to do its part.

WILLKIE SEES MERIT IN AID POLICY F.D.R.

Defeated U.S. Republican Candidate Approves "Lend-Lease" Plan

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—Wendell Willkie announced Sunday his personal approval "with modification" of President Roosevelt's "lend-lease" arms bill and said he would go to Great Britain as a private citizen to make a survey of the situation there.

The defeated Republican presidential candidate said:

"The so-called 'lend-lease' bill now before congress asks for an enormous grant of executive power. . . . It is the duty of the opposition to examine every provision thoroughly.

GOING TO LONDON

"I have examined this bill in the light of the current emergency, and I personally have come to the conclusion that with modification it should be adopted."

Willkie, emphasizing in an interview that he is going to London purely as a private citizen, said he would make the trip by Clipper. He will leave "in the near future" and stay for two or three weeks.

Willkie disclosed he already has received permission from Secretary of State Hull to fly to England.

During the interview, Willkie issued a 1,200-word statement which, although it did not mention by name Alfred M. Landon, the 1936 Republican presidential candidate, took exception to Landon's recent statement regarding national security with the declaration:

REFUTES STATEMENT

"I refute the statement that our national security is not involved in a British defeat. The difference between a British defeat or victory is not only military but economic."

Willkie recommended that congress carefully discuss and review the bill and said congress "must not be harried" into quick passage.

"The bill," he said, "should be subjected to thorough debate and such amendments should be made as congress, representing the people, may deem necessary to retain in its own hands the fundamental power to declare war."

Willkie did not amplify his suggestions regarding modification, but said he might have further recommendations later. However, he said it was mainly a matter for congress to decide along non-partisan lines.

TOPEKA, Kas., Jan. 13—Alf M. Landon, commenting on Wendell Willkie's modified approval of President Roosevelt's "lend-lease" arms bill, said Sunday night "If Mr. Willkie had revealed that to be his position before the Republican National convention he would not have been nominated."

COLLAPSE SEEN WHEN DICTATOR MYTH EXPLODED

VANCOUVER, Jan. 13—(CP)—Sir Walter Citrine, general secretary of the British Trades Union Congress, believes that the axis collapse will come when the "Hitler legend" is exploded and the people of Germany and Italy realize the holocaust into which their dictator leaders have plunged them.

"If invasion is attempted it will result in a major military disaster for Germany, and the sooner they attempt it the better," he told a Vancouver and district audience Saturday night in an address sponsored by the Vancouver and District Trades and Labor Council.

Sir Walter arrived in Vancouver after an extensive tour of United States industrial cities.

"Britain has chosen a course of standing up to the threat against democracy," he said, "and we will go on standing up to it."

He said the trade union movement in Great Britain has proved its value and that "trade unionism is something government does not control."

"I say there is deeper class distinction on the American continent," Sir Walter said, "than in Great Britain which is supposed to be governed by the aristocracy. I am one of these, and I come from the workshops."

Labor To Emerge Stronger After War Says Citrine

VANCOUVER, Jan. 13.—(CP)—Labor is maintaining its status despite the war and will emerge from the conflict stronger than ever, Sir Walter Citrine, general secretary of the British Trades Union Congress, said in an interview here last night.

"We have fought hard for our privileges and we have given them up voluntarily whenever that is necessary to bring victory nearer," he said. "But those rights which labor has won it will hold forever and we will emerge from the second great war as we emerged from the first, stronger than ever."

Sir Walter will address a public meeting here tonight and Monday will speak to a Canadian club luncheon.

War Production

MELBOURNE, Jan. 13.—(AP)—War production in Australia is being directed towards equipping a recently-announced armored corps. The minister of munitions, Senator McBride, said some mechanized equipment for the corps already is in production and progress is being made toward production of cruiser tanks.

Canucks Show Initiative, Speed In Solving Problems Of Wartime Engineering

By BRIAN A. TOBIN

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Jan. 13.—(BUP)—Canadians show the same speed and initiative in solving wartime engineering problems as they do in solving the problems which confront them in developing the natural resources of their homeland.

This fact was made evident at a recent demonstration of bridge-building put on by two companies of a Canadian army engineering unit and witnessed by Major-General Victor Odlum and officers of the second Canadian division.

The problem was to convey men, vehicles and materials across a water gap too deep to ford, and it was soon obvious that the Canucks knew what to do and just how to do it.

Enlisted mainly from Ontario districts, with a few men from Vancouver and Montreal, the personnel of the units included workers from many different Canadian industries. There were loggers, ironmoulders, carpenters, metal workers, miners and men of a dozen other useful occupations represented. While enlistment was not restricted to any particular types of employment, it was mostly men of these callings who joined up with the engineers.

HAVE NOT SUFFERED

Apparently they have not suffered so much from lack of action against the enemy which has disappointed so many of the Canadian troops.

"We get moved around a lot and there are so many new things to learn we haven't had much time to become fed up," a group of young engineers from Windsor, Ont., said. "Right now we are getting the best practical training we have had. There seems to be something new every day."

The engineers demonstrated construction of bridges, from small, float-supported foot-bridges to large pontoon bridges designed to carry the heaviest lorries or tanks.

Such large bridges are built from units consisting of two pontoons attached together to form a raft. The rafts serve as bridge sections, or they may be used to ferry men and equipment across the water obstacle.

COMPETE IN RACE

Two groups competed in a race to assemble rafts. The time trial was scheduled to take about 15 minutes, but both groups finished in one-third the allotted time.

The competitive element showed again when three boatloads of men set out to paddle across the body of water. They had no sooner started than they made a race of it. They drove those boats across as hard as they could paddle.

The demonstration showed the uses of various types of boats. There were small, folding reconnaissance boats to carry two men; larger frame and canvas boats which would hold six to eight troops; and still larger folding boats used in assembling the rafts. There were also giant pontoons used end to end as supporting units for heavy-duty bridges. The equipment is transported on lorries.

INTERESTING COMPARISON

The material was interesting to compare with somewhat similar German equipment I saw shortly before the outbreak of the war. That equipment played an important role in the blitzkrieg tactics employed against Poland and the Low Countries.

Outstanding amongst the German developments were large steel pontoons carried stacked on caterpillar lorries and trailers. Accompanying them were launches about the size of ship's lifeboats. These were powered with inboard motors and could be used for both reconnaissance and towing purposes.

The Canadian equipment can be rowed or power-driven. The powerful portable engines used can push along at a good speed a raft carrying a light tank.

In marked contrast to the great pontoons shown at the demonstration were tiny inflated rubber rafts designed to hold two men.

Significant was the simiultaneous comment of two infantry majors from eastern Canada when they caught sight of them:

"Say, wouldn't those be swell for duck-hunting!"

Germans Launch Another Attack On Christianity

LONDON, Jan. 13. — (CP) — The British Broadcasting Corporation, quoting the German radio, said Sunday the Nazis "have chosen Sunday for another attack on Christianity."

The BBC quoted the German radio as saying: "We believe in the nation and the Fuehrer. We believe in youth, we believe in the nobility of the people, in the righteousness of our arms and our flag, in God who stands by the brave, in Germany's greatness, in eternity.

"But what of the old creed? What of the Scriptures? The Scriptures are dead. The creed of our times draws from the sources of past ages, but we need no fairy tales, no legends in this age of modern machines and arms."

Irish Author Is Dead Following Operation, Zurich

ZURICH, Jan. 13.—(AP)—James Joyce, Irish author, died early today in Zurich hospital. He was 58.

He became worse last night and the doctors began giving blood transfusions.

WAR CLIMAX COMING SOON DALTON SAYS

Minister Of Economic Warfare Predicts Developments Shortly

LONDON, Jan. 13. — (CP) — Hugh Dalton, minister of economic warfare, told an audience Saturday night that the war would move to a climax in the "next few months, perhaps in the next few weeks."

Hitler, he said, "cannot afford much longer to remain passive while his junior partner in crime is being hammered in Africa, Albania, on the seas and in the air."

He declared the axis must face "the steadily increasing support, both moral and material, which comes to reinforce our cause from the United States."

Mr. Dalton pledged his ministry to "intensify the economic war on all its fronts" and revealed that "only in the last few days the navy has picked up a number of would-be-blockade runners."

He declared American supplies which Britain is allowing to pass through the blockade to unoccupied France would be limited to medical supplies "in the strict sense," vitamin concentrates, preserved milk and baby clothes.

"There will be strict safeguards against the abuse of there arrangements," he said. "We reserve the right at any time to stop further shipments if the conditions which we have laid down are not observed."

DEFENCE SITES ARE APPROVED BRITAIN, U.S.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—State Secretary Hull announced Saturday night that agreement has been reached by the United States and Great Britain on sites for eight United States air and naval bases to be constructed on British possessions in the western hemisphere. Formal 99-year, rent-free, leases will be signed.

The sites agreed upon were those recommended by a board of American experts, headed by Rear-Admiral John W. Greenslade.

In return from leases on the eight bases, the United States has turned over to Britain 50 destroyers built during the last war.

State department officials said actual construction work has been started on the Newfoundland base, and that survey and preliminary engineering work has been completed or is in progress at Bermuda, the Bahamas, Jamaica, Trinidad, St. Lucia, Antigua and British Guiana.

MINISTERS MAY REVIVE ACTION OF PROSPECTOR

OTTAWA, Jan. 13.—(CP)—Provincial mining ministers and their deputies will meet Dominion mines department officials today to seek a plan which will send prospectors back to work. Hon. T. A. Crerar, minister of mines and resources, will preside at the meeting in the main parliament buildings.

A decade or so ago, each spring saw hundreds of prospectors going into the Pre-Cambrian shield which stretches across northern Canada and into many rocky stretches in British Columbia and the Maritimes searching for indications of minerals.

Last year and the year before, however, most prospectors were unable to continue their work and, with the exception of those sent out by mining companies, few prospectors were employed, according to officials here.

The former practice was for syndicates to "grub-stake" prospectors who generally were unable to finance their operations without assistance.

Taxation for which the Dominion is responsible and security control regulations on the sale of mining stock for which the provinces are responsible, are chiefly blamed for the falling off in prospecting. Lack of uniformity in securing control, and the entire taxation on mining is expected to be reviewed at today's conference.

Food Supplies Pass

At the request of President Roosevelt, supplies of clothing and food for children may be shipped from the United States into Unoccupied France, the American Red Cross undertaking to see that these go to French children, and not to Germany by trans-shipment. Clothing and food for French adults would beyond doubt also be allowed to pass the blockade if it could be equally well assured these would not be stolen by the Nazis or equivalent amounts taken away from the French.

From a Spanish port the other day came news that wheat ships had arrived there from Argentina, by arrangement with the blockade authorities. Spain, like unoccupied France, is not garrisoned by Nazi troops. It is thus possible to see that Spaniards eat the wheat, and that corresponding amounts of potatoes or other militarily useful commodities are not shipped out to Germany or Italy.

Before they thought about boasting the efficiency of Nazi economy by saying they could feed everybody in Europe, the gentlemen at Berlin used to say the brutal British were threatening to starve a good part of the population of the continent. They know now what to do if want should appear in any of the countries they have overrun. All they have to do is to get out, and arrangements can be made to let food get in.

Another Turn of the Screw

Russia and Germany have renewed their barter agreement. As Moscow is doing the celebrating, it is to be inferred the new bargain is substantially more favorable to it than the old one. This would be in accord with the history of the dealings, and with the quite obvious purpose Stalin had in mind when he made the first concession to the Nazi plea for supplies.

In August of 1939 Stalin achieved notoriety of a sort by negotiating for Russian support at one and the same time with Germany and with the British-French Allies. He emerged from the auction with a trade agreement with Berlin, no doubt dictated by himself, and publicized as exceptionally profitable to Russia.

But it was not a long term agreement. It ran for only about six months. It was revised and renewed last February, in the light of Germany's then far expanded and far more urgent need of Russian oil, wheat and other materials. Nor was this a long term treaty. It expires next month. So it has been again revised—as the condition of renewal, with German needs of vital Russian supplies three or five times what they were a year ago. No doubt Moscow has good reason to be elated at the terms exacted from Berlin in the new bargain.

And once again there is a not remote time limit, when it will again be necessary to consider the terms if the bartering is to go on. August 1st, 1942, is the new deadline, when if Germany still needs supplies the price is due to go up again. Stalin continues to do pretty well out of Hitler's war.

A Big Scale Defeat

Nothing in the despatches has more clearly pictured the disaster that has overtaken Graziani's forces than a correspondent's description of the assembling of equipment for the attack on Tobruk. He tells of seeing a dust cloud a mile long, stirred up by the wheels of Italian tanks and trucks, burning Italian gasoline—and hauling up British-Allied guns to shell the new Italian position.

These vehicles comprised a fraction only of the mechanized equipment captured at Sidi Barrani and Bardia. Other captured trucks, burning captured oil, were at the same time bringing up loads of infantry, while still others were carrying Italian prisoners back toward Egypt. And in every desert airdrome, the correspondent adds, were dozens of Italian grounded planes, some damaged, some wrecked, some burnt out.

This great haul of equipment still in condition for use tells a story of demoralization, as well as defeat. If order had not been lost and confusion reigning everywhere, these tanks and trucks and planes would have been destroyed beyond possibility of repair. Their capture is a clear gain to Wavell's forces, and increases by so much the striking power that can be brought against the remnants of the Graziani army.

In his famous explanation to Il Duce, the Marshal said the enemy got the jump on him while he was waiting for mechanized weapons and transport. Laymen at least will wonder what on earth he would have done with more. He had six hundred miles of desert highway strung with tanks, trucks and planes, and seemingly endless supplies of all kinds. His army was outfitted for a full-gauged blitzkrieg. Its destruction is a disaster of major proportions.

"Shreds And Tatters"

If they are allowed to know what has really happened and is happening in the Italian colony of Libya just across the Mediterranean, strange thoughts must stir in the minds of people in Italy as they recall the message of good-will which Mr. Churchill broadcast to them two weeks ago. He reminded them of the historic friendship that has existed between Italy and Britain, told them — as they well know — there was no cause for quarrel between the two peoples. But since the will of one ambitious man had set the countries at war, Italy's colonial empire must be torn to "shreds and tatters."

That very thing is taking place in Libya, and what is taking place in Libya is the symbol and forecast of what will take place in East Africa also. Just across the sea in which Italian warships do not dare to sail, a great Italian army has been broken and is being destroyed. Fifteen thousand Italians and native subjects of Italy have been killed or wounded, 75,000 taken prisoner, great stores of munitions and supplies bought with Italian taxes captured. The colony itself is lost—forever unless it is given back in generosity when the war is done.

The story from Libya is the story from Albania repeated.

Italian arms have gone down in defeat, thousands of Italy's sons are dead or suffering wounds, many thousands are interned in prison camps. Italy itself has been arraigned before the judgment of mankind as guilty of treachery against a friendly and neighbor state, its prestige has collapsed; all because an unscrupulous dictator launched unprovoked war against nations which desired nothing of Italy but that they be left alone.

Pondering these things, and remembering that but for him they would now be enjoying peace, trade and world respect, Italians must surely feel that they have paid as heavy a price as they should consent to pay for the follies and crimes of Benito Mussolini.

Australian and New Zealand authorities are starting a hunt for fifth-columnists who have been supplying information to German raiders in the Pacific. It is to be hoped they will be caught, and that be the last ever heard of them. That species should be helped on the road to extinction by all practicable means.

In a vast air training scheme it is inevitable that some accidents happen, and some fliers meet death. These die at the post of duty, no less than if they were shot down by an enemy, for it is only at the training fields that proficiency can be gained. Nor is their sacrifice in vain. From these mishaps other men learn how to navigate their planes safely and effectively.

A former surgeon at the American hospital at Paris, who thus had good opportunity to study Nazi methods at close range, thinks Germany will declare war against the United States in a month or so, and probably try to bomb New York. Wild as the idea sounds, he may be right. The Kaiser wasn't satisfied until he got the United States into the other war, and his successor is as reckless as Wilhelm ever was.

The Saturday Night Review

The text of a broadcast delivered over radio station CFRN at 8 p.m. Saturday, January 11, by The Bulletin's associate editor.

Harold L. Weir

So many malevolent things have been said in recent days by the Germans about British aims in this war, that tonight I should like to speak briefly, if I may—and can—about some of the underlying reasons why we Canadians should be thankful, at the present time, that we belong to that peculiar and anomalous congregation of peoples known as the British Empire.

I should not like to adopt the tone of that noted Quaker who is said to have remarked to his wife that "all the world is daft save thee and me—and sometimes I have doubts about thee."

I should not like to infer that all that is British is good and all that is foreign is bad, nor, indeed, to indulge in any of those empty racial vauntings that are abhorrent to any person of restraint or taste.

But it seems to me that the difference between the present conduct of Great Britain and the conduct of Germanic Europe is so marked in one particular, quite unconnected with the war, that this difference should be discussed.

I do not refer particularly to the different standards of truth and decency and humanity that prevail in Britain and in Germany. Nor do I refer, specifically, to the opposing methods of waging war.

But what I have in mind is the notable lack in Britain of that quixotic meddlesomeness that impels the nations with queer ideals of government to seek to impose those same weird doctrines upon other nations.

One could not by any stretch of fancy, for instance, imagine Britain rushing about Europe, as Hitler does, trying to cram her conceptions of democracy down other nations' throats.

There is in Britain an utter absence of the mischievous proselyting spirit.

I believe it is this genius for minding her own affairs and for respecting the affairs of others that is the fundamental rock upon which British character stands.

Now I do not mean for one minute that the Englishman lacks the intensity of feeling that restlessly urges the German to impose his fantastic notions on the world.

Indeed, I can think of no people in whom the public sense is deeper or more lively than in the English. Sometimes that public sense amounts almost to a religious instinct.

The British public, for example, senses in one moment when a leader or a party is wrong and has no hesitation in cleaning house. But the Britisher's reverence for his principles is too deep and fundamental to be converted into a political plaything.

The Britisher cherishes his democracy with a quiet fervency that prevents him from plastering Europe with it. The Englishman would as soon pour his vintage wine down a gutter as to pass his feelings around for the examination of strangers. He would no more internationally proclaim the virtues of his democracy than he would publicly proclaim the chastity of his wife.

One action is as unthinkable as the other.

So, since the political convictions of the British are so much deeper and so much more jealously guarded and so much more sacredly held than the political convictions of the Nazi and Fascist nations, we are driven to the logical conclusion that the British convictions are of a finer and more stable quality than the rest.

It is this stability and this quiet depth of conviction that give Canadians reliance and confidence in the course of the British Empire.

It is almost six years since I stood in the rich and shaded depths of Westminster Abbey while a service was in progress. About me were the tombs of kings and queens and knights and bishops whose bones had long since moldered into dust.

There, behind the High Altar, was the resting place of Edward the Confessor whose thousand years of sleep in that holy place are surely not an insignificant token of permanence.

Within those hallowed walls were brought together all factions and shades of English opinion of the past. Lancastrian slept by Yorkist and in the serenity of death the red rose was mingled with the white.

Close together lay the graves of Elizabeth and of that unhappy Mary whom jealousy and rancor had robbed of a lovely head.

Those bluff Plantagenets who despised letters lay but a strone's throw from Marlowe and Browning and rare Ben Jonson and Charles Dickens who once held the heart of England in the hollow of his hand.

As the age-old music of the Church of England, music that in that place was neither Anglican nor Roman nor Methodist nor Presbyterian, but a subtle blending of all religious feeling as befits a service that voices the yearnings of a nation rather than a creed—as that music rose and swelled into the vaults and groins of the Abbey, passed gustily over the bodies of the mighty monarchs and touched tenderly upon the graves of the wise, the valiant and the beautiful, I felt that never before had I sensed and never again might I feel the true spirit of England and in a larger centrifugal way the spirit of the Empire.

For the spirit of that Empire and of ourselves is a spirit that links the finest events of the past with the finest promises of the future.

We are not leaping into any maelstrom of political thought that discards the lessons of bygone ages. We are not tearing up the fundaments of our souls to build a fantastic world that has no foundation in proven fact.

Millions of our forbears have been born and died that our progress might arrive at its present point. We are content with the evolutionary necessity that millions more may die before we arrive at perfection.

This is the past and present tone of Britain's thinking. It is the tone of sound

The Passing Show

By J. S. Cowper

Attempts by covert enemies of Britain in the United States to stir up resentment over the war debts has resulted in a better understanding and appreciation of Britain's position. One critic who declared that Britain had not even kept up token payments was met with the fact that token payments were stopped by request of the U.S. Treasury, after the passage of the Johnson Act, and after Britain had paid in gold over 50 per cent of the debt of $4.074.818.358. So often our critics prove helpful.

It's still a fair question for discussion whether the man who is early on the job and uses his neighbors' fire extinguisher to help beat off the flames that threaten the properties of both of them, should be required by his legarthic neighbor, to pay for the extinguisher in an impossible medium of exchange. Britain never raised the question of whether her contribution of blood and lives equalled her ally's contribution of goods. Britain paid $2.042.348.000 in gold in a gald-starved world. With the two token payments of $17.500.518 in gold in 1933 came warnings from Premier Baldwin that further payments in gold would have catastrophic effects upon the financial structure of the nations. In the following April, the Johnson Act was passed providing that credits in future should not be extended to nations in default of their war debts. This was followed in turn by notification from the U.S. Treasury that further token payments would not be accepted.

Britain denuded herself of gold, offered to pay in goods and when this was refused, proposed to continue token payments to keep the debt alive until such time as she was able to discharge the balance in gold.

Helpful Comparisons.

Britain's payment of over 50 per cent of her war debt, after she had forgiven an equal amount to her other allies, compares very favorably with the 12 per cent paid by France and the 5 per cent paid by Italy.

Germany, an old debtor to United States to the extent of $400.000.000 has not repaid a single pfennig.

Nor is the oft-quoted comparison of "little Finland" which to date has repaid $5.975 395 on a so-called "war debt" of $8,281,926 a comparison at all. The small annual payments required of Finland can be paid in gold without upsetting the gold basis of the financial system. Strictly speaking, the debt of Finland is not a war debt at all. It was not assumed for shipments of munitions to use against the common enemy. It represents purchases of grain and other foodstuffs made in 1919—well after the war was over.

Intelligent Americans are coming to appreciate the sincere effort made by Britain to meet the United States' claim for munitions supplied to Britain for the use of herself and allies, without any quibble over the moral liability.

Well, Tastes Differ!

Selection of "Grapes of Wrath" by the seventeen New York film critics in their annual balloting for the outstanding film of the year interests me. The film version had to omit the outstanding incident on which the book closes, and the spicy narrations and philosophy of the chief chararter—the itinerant preacher who had lost his faith—but otherwise followed the book more closely than do most film versions of novels.

My interest in the selection harks back to last March when I saw "Grapes of Wrath" showing at the Rialto theatre in Edmonton. It followed, if my memory is reliable, a few days after John Steinbeck's other outstanding story "Of Mice and Men."

Two women sat behind me, and one could scarcely conceal her impatience with the film. As it ended and I rose to leave, I heard her remark to her friend in disgust. "I don't know what they want to show such films for?"

Later on, retailing the incident to Manager "Bill" Long—whose new Vogue theatre is nearing completion in Vancouver—he told me that the two Steinbeck films showed to poor houses. "We followed 'Grapes of Wrath' with Laurel and Hardy in 'Two Saps at Oxford' and filled the house all week," he said.

All of which goes to show that theatre managers have their troubles in choosing films to suit their patrons. I'm not gifted with the critical faculty and can only name my personal choices. Had I been one of the balloting critics I'd have voted Thornton Wilder's "Our Town" as the most pleasing film of the year, and for Martha Scott for the most pleasing performance in it—though I haven't seen "The Philaelephia Story" in which the critics award Katharine Hepburn the palm for her performance.

The Anzac Army.

The word "Anzac" became a byword for bravery in the last war, and the mixture of brawn, courage and initiative is as potent today as it was a score of years ago. The work of the Anzacs in North Africa has caused come of our American neighbors to do some figuring. With 250,000 men under arms, (more than 125,000 volunteering for service overseas) and an air force of 57,000 men, they learn with amaze that translated into the population figures of United States, it would mean an army of 4,750,000 fighting men, of whom 2,330,000 would be volunteers, and an air force of over 1,000,000.

"Comparisons are odious," says the proverb. In this case they are helpful.

Book Of Books

The Gospel According to St. Matthew—Chapter 23

Then spake Jesus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

Saying, The scribes and the Pharisees sit in Moses seat:

All therefore whatsoever they bid you observe, that observe and do; but do not ye after their works: for they say, and do not.

For they bind heavy burdens and grievous to be borne, and lay them on men's shoulders; but they themselves will not move them with one of their fingers.

But all their works they do for to be seen of men: they make broad their phylacteries, and enlarge the borders of their garments,

And love the uppermost rooms at feasts, and the chief seats in the synagogues,

And greetings in the markets, and to be called of men, Rabbi, Rabbi.

But be not ye called Rabbi: for one is your Master, even Christ; and all ye are brethren.

And call no man your father upon the earth: for one is your Father, which is in heaven.

Neither be ye called masters: for one is your Master, even Christ.

But he that is greatest among you, shall be your servant.

And whosoever shall exalt himself, shall be abased; and he that shall humble himself, shall be exalted.

New "War of Nerves?"

From The Manchester Guardian

Truthful Joe Goebbels is now reported to have gone off to Norway to carry out a tour of inspection—possibly in order to see for himself what connection there is between landslides and sabotage.

But he must have left the propaganda business at home in good hands, because in an article headed "The Crazy British," which appears in one of the Nazi party newssheets, it is again argued that the English are really a most impossible and illogical people in their determination to continue the present war.

"The problem of finding a solution to this war," it is explained, "is no longer one of politics but of psychology." That sounds like the Goebbels touch, for "psychology" was ever Joe's strong suit. It may be remembered that for weeks before the actual hostilities began he was pulling the most horrible faces imaginable in the hope that the whole thing could be confined to a "war of nerves."

In spite of his notable failure in that effort he now seems to think that a little more "psychology" may yet settle the business.

But the trouble is that the Germans are such exceedingly bad psychologists where other countries are concerned; apparently the very ease with which they can deceive their own people handicaps them greatly when they try to understand their more resolute and independent neighbors.

They never realize how heartily they are disliked. If "psychology" could win this war Germany would have lost it before it ever started.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Does American Democracy Work?

The message of the President formally makes it the official policy of the United States to support the struggle for a free order in our world and to resist the establishment of a totalitarian order. For eight months—since the invasion of Holland in May—this policy has been before the American people and on all the occasions when they could express themselves responsibly, their verdict has been in favor of this policy.

This policy was the controlling issue at the Republican convention in June. But for the fact that Mr. Wendell Willkie alone among the candidates was clearly committed to this policy, he would never have been nominated against the field. It was the controlling consideration at the Democratic convention. But for Mr. Roosevelt's clear identification with the whole problem of the war, it is in the highest degree unlikely that he would have been nominated for a third term by a virtually unanimous convention. The issue was presented to the voters not once but repeatedly by both Mr. Willkie and Mr. Roosevelt, and when the voters went to the polls they knew that the winner of the election would declare the policy that the President has now declared. Moreover, during the summer the Congress by repeated votes—for a two-ocean navy, for a greater air force and for conscription in time of peace—committed itself to the view that the United States must be defended against a victory of the triple Axis.

This, then, is no unexpected declaration of policy by President Roosevelt as an individual person. This is a national policy, considered for three-quarters of a year by free discussion in the press and on the platform, through political conventions, through Congressional proceedings and finally through a national election. If ever there was a case of the full employment of the process of democracy to settle a national policy, this is it. No one can suggest that this policy has not been openly and freely placed before the people. No one can suggest that this policy has not been subjected to every procedure known to democracy. No one can deny that by every means available under the institutions and customs of democracy, this policy has received the conscious and deliberate approval of the nation.

Is it now to be suggested that the decision so taken is not to be acted upon, that the whole question is to be debated again and thrown open to another agitation as if it were a new question which had never before been submitted to the people? To take this view of the rights and duties of Congress is to argue that while democracy requires that the people shall debate their policies, they are not to reach a decision as a result of their debate. For if now we have to argue all over again what we have been arguing for eight months then we shall make democracy ridiculous; we shall prove that democracies can only talk themselves into inaction and confusion.

The issue before Congress and the country today is not whether America shall be defended by supporting those who resist aggression. The people have spent eight months settling that issue, and therefore in all reason the only question left is how to do effectively and wisely what has been decided and promised. There is here no undetermined question of principle. In principle the only issue now is whether the decision of the people that this shall be American policy is to be overthrown and reversed—or, what is even worse, the carrying out of their decision delayed and thus defeated.

The issue is whether democracy works—whether deliberate debate can produce effective decisions and whether effective decisions can then produce practical results. It is a momentous issue. For if democracy does not work in America because it gets itself bogged down in unending agitation and repetitive debate and a legislative filibuster, then it is defeated here, and it will not survive the test to which it is subjected.

Possibilities in Syria

From The Spectator

The importance of Syria is presumably being recognized by the War Cabinet, but some confirmation of the assumption would be reassuring.

The position in that highly important strategic area, so far as is known, is that an administration still recognizing Vichy, but containing a number of officials sympathizing strongly with General de Gaulle, is still in control; that an Italian armistice commission is on the spot, but compelled to move discreetly owing to the great hostility it aroused; that the Arab population, which after all matters a great deal more than the relatively small body of Frenchmen administering what was the mandate, is restive and apprehensive, and radically opposed to any kind of Italian overlordship.

Syria lies between Turkish territory and Palestine, and it would obviously be of the greatest strategic value if it came under Allied control, thus enabling direct geographical contact to be established between British and Turkish territories.

Only firm and resolute action, and a policy calculated to commend itself to the Arabs, could achieve that, but there is no reason at all why such action should not be taken.

British forces, co-operating with General de Gaulle, could secure possession of Syria without grave difficulty, and they should do so with the avowed and proclaimed intention of establishing Syrian independence, fortified by alliance with Britain and the new France; the advance to independence, as happened in Iraq, was always implicit in the mandate.

That change could not become effective till after the war, but the promise of it, with subjection to Italy as an alternative, would have decisive effects on the native population.

Our Gallant Lady

By Ursula Bloom in the Ottawa Journal

Have you, as a loyal citizen of Britain, ever realized how much you owed to that Royal Lady who is giving every moment of her time in the cause of freedom?

Quen Elizabeth is doing a magnificent job. Wherever there is trouble and distress she is there to help, to give cheer and sympathy and comfort. She has not spared herself. She is among refugees, she walks on the ruins of houses, and does her best for the homeless and the helpless. It was the Queen who, recognizing their difficulties, was the first to send furniture from Buckingham Palace for their aid.

Every moment of her day is booked.

It is easy for her, some of you may say.

Have you ever thought?

How many miles a day do you suppose the Queen walks? She walks aound factories and establishments, through encampments, along ruined streets. She must never show the least sign of fatigue, and she must never be bored.

Always Interested

Perhaps that is her greatest attribute. She is not bored. Watch her on the films, she is enormously interested in everything that she sees, practically interested. She asks questions about shells and ammunition, and she knows the right thing to say beside the cot of some rather shy little child who has been bombed.

I remember when she became queen. At that time there were very difficult circumstances in England, and there was much talk. Somebody said, "The King's greatest attribute lies in the Queen", and it was true.

It must have been very hard to follow in the footsteps of a Queen so beloved as was Queen Mary. And to find that she was reigning under much the same circumstances, only perhaps even more difficult ones, for war had come again.

She is the first citizeness of a great Empire, and she is giving everything she can to that Empire.

Only the other day I was talking to a woman in the hotel where I live. It was 10 o'clock. She couldn't get up before 10 in these hard times, because "the war took it out of her so." And it struck me suddenly, that the first lady in the land, out of whom the war took infinitely more, had been then up about for two and a half hours!

Her day begins earlier than ours, and ends later. She has not the comfort of being able to relax, because she is nearly always on show. She can never look tired, because instantly there would be Job's comforters who would prophesy defeat because "didn't you see how worried the Queen looked?"

I don't think she gets nearly enough appreciation.

She was not born to be queen, and probably would have preferred the quiet country life which once was hers, where she could have lived peacefully and enjoy the society of husband and children through these perilous times. But the highest place became hers, and she took it without a murmur, though it meant goodbye to the things that every woman holds dearest.

Dauntless Queen

She has never flinched. She is the one woman in Europe to whom everybody looks for example, and is confident that they will get it. Her crown is not only the crown of England. It is of sympathy, and love, and understanding.

She has done more than any other woman in England for this war, because she has given every moment of her time and every effort that she could for it. More than all else has been the magnificent example of courage and endurance, the fearless cleaving to duty. That smile, that handshake, that word of encouragement which carries the downhearted forward more than all else.

A message was sent to her from the evacuees at Windsor, when she had visited their temporary homes. Her visit, they said, had given them extreme pleasure.

To be a queen is not an easy task; to be a good queen is harder still, but to be a queen who walks upon the burning ruins of houses, who turns lovingly to subjects who have suffered the greatest tribulations that England has ever been called upon to suffer, is to be supreme.

Glance at her the next time you see her pass by, or catch a glimpse of her picture on the silver screen. She is the leader of the women of the Empire. We owe her a tremendous debt.

And Why Not?

From the Windsor Star

High school students at Winnipeg have passed a resolution complaining that teachers are "dictatorial." Perhaps these modern youths are more advanced than was the last generation, but the people who are running this country and all its business and industry today are the products of schools where the teachers were, and were expected to be, absolute dictators.

Many of those students of a generation back have turned out pretty well.

and stable thought throughout the world.

Speaking of national thought brings the reflection that American thinking has undergone a revolutionary change during the past month.

Up to that time, the American people conceived themselves as spectators at the ringside of a great fight. They were interested spectators, it is true. Most of them were thoroughly biased and prejudiced spectators. But even with the most bitter feeling towards Germany and the most friendly feeling towards Britain, they still clung to a measure of aloofness. Theoretically, they admitted it was their war. Actually, they were reluctant to have any physical part in it.

Today the people of the United States are rushing, deliberately and with passionate conviction, into definite participation in the struggle. They may not yet be technically at war. But their President has enlisted and is on the firing line as surely as any machine-gunner in England.

The situation is this:

If the United States can spend a huge budget on military preparedness which merely begins with an appropriation of seventeen and a half billion dollars; if she can bring her navy to full wartime strength; if she can convoy war supplies to Britain or even carry those supplies in her own bottoms; if she can undertake to repair British warships in American drydocks; if she can do all or any of these things without eventually establishing a state of war between herself and Germany, well, she will have achieved a masterly legalistic evasion beside which the devices of income-tax dodgers will look like a game of hide-and-seek.

Nor is this all.

Yesterday evening, Virginio Gayda, the barking Italian dog who bays at the moon for his jackal Italian master, accused Britain and the United States of plotting to dominate the world.

Signor Gayda is perfectly right. Such a plot exists. And it will be carried to consummation. Since somebody, apparently, must dominate the world, it will have to be nations which possess a sense of human values.

Germany has polluted the entire continent of Europe with an abominable realism which is quite as fantastic as it is ghastly.

Now realism is all right in its way provided we don't take it too seriously. We must face apparent facts foursquare when those facts involve treachery and sudden death. There are times when we must meet violence with violence and brutality with brutality.

But it is a monstrous thing to assume that these things are the end and purpose of life, or to assume that this life, with all its squalor and misery, is the end of man.

Only that nation is truly great and capable of a splendid destiny which has the moral resilience to spring back, after these periodical and sodden adventures in blood, to the realization that the ultimate voice of civilization is the music of the tinkling bells in shining ivory towers.

The power of civilization is the ability to hope. The glory of civilization is faith in dreams.

Britain has always possessed this power and this glory. Her people have always had the subtle knowledge that realism was unreal and that if they were good and ate their spiritual spinach they would somewhere and sometime find their tower of ivory.

We have been wont, on the other hand, to think of the United States as selfish, crass and materialistic.

The clatter of a myriad of rivetters in American shipyards, the roar of thousands of new planes, the tramp of American marching feet and the voices of American statesmen rise in a chorus to prove that conception wrong.

Americans have their ideals of duty; they have their dreams of liberty; they wear the crown of faith and hope.

When the war broke out and I saw the lights of high romance and gracious living wink out in Europe, I said: "Farewell to Carcassonne."

I have realized today, with a shock of surprise, that Carcassonne has moved to Illinois.

For out of this welter of many nations, this Babel of many tongues, out of this amazing experiment in human freedom has arisen a new chivalry comparable to anything in the history of the world. Paladins of the factory, Galahads of the mill and knights of the cornfield, arming themselves to move with Britain in the crusade to unchain mankind.

There is realism here, stark and deadly realism; but it is not the realism of Germany which cannot see behind the grotesque false-face of fact.

Rather is it the determination to march on gloriously over injustice and brutality to the end of this life when all that is real shall pass away and out of the mists shall float some ivory tower to be our home among the mansions in our Father's house forever and ever.

I commented in my column earlier this week on the extraordinary measures adopted by Japan to increase her population.

It has been announced in Tokyo that the Japanese government will loan sums of money to selected Japanese couples who are expected to produce children.

Those brides who show indications of a blessed event in six months will not be required to pay interest on these loans. For every child born to them the government will knock off twenty per cent of the principal.

This is not the first time premiums have been paid on procreation.

Ever since the advent of Hitler, the Germans have been offering prizes for the mass production of children. Boys' and girls' camps have been established in proximity to each other in order to create opportunities for illicit adventure.

In order to spur on the instincts of these young animals, the Nazi state even offered to clothe, feed and educate the illegitimate offspring born of these rather grimy unions.

The project was a huge success. Illegitimacy increased in Germany to an extent that must have delighted the muddy soul of Der Fuehrer.

The puzzling part of it is this: Why is it that those nations, such as Germany and Japan, which complain so bitterly about overpopulation and the crowded condition of their territories are the very ones that make such nauseating efforts to increase their populations and aggravate congestion even more?

There is another consideration, too. What kind of children must be these which are born, not of love, but of a promissory note?

They must possess all the tender home instinct of a chicken hatched in an incubator. They must know the same delights of family life as are enjoyed by a litter of pigs farrowed anonymously in a strawstack behind the barn.

The complete answer to all this dreadful travesty on the beauty of human reproduction is supplied by an old-time friend of mine, who gives me two lines of Davidson's which, he says, constitute the proudest boast of our race:

"We are the sons of English brides
Who married Englishmen for love."

Marshall says his group is pro-American only. Mr. White heads the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies.

Norway Traitor Wants Regiment Battle Britain

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The newspapers of Oslo, German-occupied Norway, will carry an appeal to "all national Norwegians" by Vidkun Quisling, the Norwegian traitor, today to form a regiment to fight against Britain.

The regiment, Quisling's statement will say, would be formed in Germany under the name of "Regiment Nordland." Quisling himself would lead it.

"George" Fund

CORNWALL, Ont., Jan. 3.—(CP)—A unique organization, the Georges of Canada Hurricane fund, reported Sunday that more than $500 had been subscribed to the fund started by George Arthur Phillips of Cornwall. Mr. Phillips, in starting his fund, asked all persons named George to subscribe.

Manager of the local branch of the Royal Bank, Mr. Filleul, designed a greeting card several months ago on which could be attached war savings stamps. Word from the main Post Office has been received to the effect that the scheme has been responsible for the selling of some 500,000 stamps during the Christmas season.

DONALDA

John Clement, pioneer farmer of the Science Mound district, died Thursday morning. Mr. Clement has been in poor health for several years. He is survived by his wife; one son, Henry; two daughters, Voleta and Ray; a brother, Wesley Clement, of Science Mound; and a sister, Mrs. Dunlop, of Red Willow.

Interment will be made in the Donalda cemetery.

MUSIC DISTURBS SCHOOL STUDENTS OBJECTORS SAY

A letter of objection has been sent to the Town Council from members of the P. B. I. in connection with music supplied by officials of the local skating rink.

The objectors said that the music is "disturbing" to school students and asked that something be done about it.

The music that is supplied is band music, used this year for the first time. Popular with the skaters, the music is said by officials of the rink to be "turned off" after 10 p.m.

Red Cross Local Has New Method Of Raising Cash

The Enilda and district branch of the Red Cross, recently organized, has a new method of raising cash and increasing membership.

Starting with some ten charter members, a fine of 25 cents was imposed on each member who fails to present the name of a possible member. This means that in the end, each member will pay a double membership fee. The plan is reported to be working well.

Officers of the local are: Betty Geyde, president; Lorne Church, secretary; W. Kirkpatrick, treasurer and the directors.

DONALDA

At the annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the United Church, held at the home of Mrs. O. H. Anderson recently, officers elected were: Mrs. S. C. Otteson, president; Mrs O. H. Anderson; vice-president; Miss Margaret Matheson, secretary-treasurer.

During the past year much has been accomplished. In addition to the regular work of keeping up the manse (the exterior of the manse has been painted), $100 was donated to the church budget.

McCoy Health Service

This condition may cause considerable swelling in the knee but not always is there any pain. It is actually a bursitis, or inflammation of a bursa which is a serous lined compartment placed in various parts of the body between the superficial soft parts and the underlying firmer parts, where friction is most apt to be. From single or frequent injuries, the bursa may become inflamed and this will produce pain when the surfaces pass over each other as in movement. However under certain conditions fluid-containing sacks are formed and these are seldom very painful. This condition of bursitis has various names according to the location of the inflammation and the occupation of the individual. For instance miners are often affected in the elbow, and it is then known as miner's elbow. When a hod-carrier's shoulder is affected, it is known as hod-carrier's shoulder, and so on.

The knee joint is perhaps the most often affected, and one anatomist counted over 70 bursa in this region. When one of these becomes injured and inflamed, the infection may spread to the others, and in the early stage the condition might be quite painful, until visible swelling occurs, when it becomes painless. The bunion is actually a bursa and these develop in parts of the body which are constantly exposed to pressure. Others may develop a bursitis about the heel or between the toes, but the treatment for all of these conditions is invariably the same. In the acute forms, absolute rest is required and the affected part should not be moved. Every attempt should be made to cleanse the body by a suitable dietary, and local applications may be used for temporary relief. The organs of elimination should be kept working, especially the colon, and this by the use of the plain warm water enema. In fact this condition of bursitis really belongs with the toxemia group such as rheumatism, arthritis, lumbago and similar disorders. The use of the diathermy will not only relieve the pain, but will promote the absorption of the lime deposits which may cause considerable trouble later on. Those readers who would like to have further information on the subject are invited to send for Dr. Frank McCoy's article "Housemaid's Knee" which may be obtained by writing to the McCoy Health Service and enclosing 5 cents in stamps and a large self-addressed envelope. This article contains a wealth of material which may save much suffering.

Questions and Answers

Question—Mrs. T. W. F. writes: "I am 32 years of age and ever since my last baby was born two years ago I have a heart beat that is so fast that it scares me. Please write about this in your column soon."

Answer — There are several causes of a rapid heart beat, and from your description of course it is not possible for me to give you any satisfactory information. However sometimes the condition is merely a functional disturbance and not dangerous, on the other hand the best plan is to have a good heart examination by a physician who uses the electro-cardiograph which is a special instrument for aiding in diagnosing heart conditions. In this manner, if there is anything seriously wrong, he will advise you exactly what to do in your particular case.

Question—Mr. Y. F. writes: "Would you explain the disease called Paget's Disease?"

Answer—This condition is known as osteitis deformans and was named Paget's disease after the doctor who first described it over 70 years ago. It is a general weakness or tenderness in the bony structures with consequent deformity. Sometimes the condition clears up spontaneously but the outlook is not very hopeful. Pain is often relieved by the use of local physiotherapy.

Flyer Power Plays Click For 4-3 Win Over Oilers

by JACK KELLY

EDMONTONIANS took a good long look at the Saskatoon Junior Quakers over the weekend, on Saturday night as they edged out a 7-6 win over the Maple Leafs and on Sunday afternoon as they defeated the E.A.C. 8-3.

The consensus of opinion seems to be that the Saskatoon youngsters are very promising, but not quite heavy enough to make a serious bid for dominion honors this season. Among these hustling kids there are three or four who seem to have the stamp of future big time stars on them.

If you didn't see the two games the Quakers played here, you will get an entirely wrong impression from the scores. Saturday night the Maple Leafs should have beaten the Quakers by at least three goals. For some reason or other Ken McAuley was having a terrible night in goal. If he had been stopping rubber as well as Derlell was doing for Saskatoon, the Leafs would have won easily by at least 7-4.

Sunday's game saw the E.A.C. go into a third-period trance that was inexplainable. They led the Quakers 2-1 at the end of the first period, were trailing 4-3 at the end of the second and then came out sleepwalking in the third frame. In the first two frames, E.A.C. dominated play. The Edmonton goaling in this game was also something no one will be writing home about.

Edmonton fans, 2,700 paying customers on Saturday and a good 5,000 on Sunday, gave the Saskatoon boys plenty of encouragement. If they had been playing at home, they would not have received any fairer treatment. They displayed a lot of smart hockey and they got full credit for it. The Quakers played fast, clean, open hockey that was a treat to watch—the western game at its best.

Only one incident occurred that in any way detracted from the fine display of sportsmanship by the Quakers. Livingstone was handed a penalty on Sunday by Runge. It was open to question but Livingstone carried his questioning a bit too far—so far that he made a pass at Runge. However nothing more came of it.

While the Saskatoon lads will present a tough obstacle in the western playdowns, either Maple Leafs or E.A.C. have an even chance of beating them—if they get down to business. The two exhibition games should do the Edmonton teams a world of good. Their weaknesses were shown up glaringly. If they go to work now to eliminate these shortcomings, they may go quite a way in the playdowns. If they don't, then they'll be packing their hockey togs in moth balls right after they run into the Quakers.

Flyers In Choice Spot

EDMONTON FLYERS rose again to second place in Alberta Senior League standings by beating the Oilers Saturday night and now they are in an envious position to strengthen their position by defeating Calgary here on Wednesday night.

Stampeders have been idle for a long stretch—and long layoffs slow up hockey teams regardless of how much practising they do. If the Flyers can take Calgary in this next tilt, they will have a four-point lead and be within striking distance of Lethbridge.

Incidentally the standings of the Alberta Senior League are worth looking at carefully. In something like 36 games, there has not been a single tie. So far as I can discover, the American Association is the only other league on the continent that has played this many games without some ties. There has been no draw in the Kootenay loop, but it has had only half as many games as the Alberta League.

The National Hockey League is notorious for ties this season. Out of 89 games there have been 17 draws, and that is 19 per cent or roughly one out of five. You have to have a big sucker population to get away with that kind of hockey.

Lacombe Athletics Score 6-3 Win Over Varsity Bears

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

LACOMBE, Jan. 13.—Showing better team work, and more finish around the nets, Lacombe Athletics swept to a decisive 6-3 victory over University of Alberta Golden Bears, in a fast exhibition hockey game here Saturday night. The victory was sweet to the A's, tieing up their series at one game apiece. The Bears previously defeated Lacombe 8-4, in an exhibition tilt here about two months ago.

The Edmontonians appeared to be slightly out of condition, possibly due to the fact that they have played so few games this season.

Sticky ice kept both teams from showing their real stuff in a scoreless first period, but early in the second frame, Lacombe jumped into a 1-0 lead on Roberts' goal. Five minutes later, Miles made the count 2-0 on a long shot while Roberts dented the twine at the 6:33 mark to put Lacombe ahead 3-0, and Torry increased their lead to 4-0 a few minutes later. Minchin finally counted Varsity's first goal, but Lacombe scored another to lead 5-1 as the second session ended.

Varsity's combination plays were clicking better in the last frame, and they put on plenty of pressure to cut down the lead. In spite of this, Lacombe made it 6-1 about the five-minute mark, but the desperate Bears closed in with two goals within 25 seconds of each other, a few minutes later.

McCool was outstanding to hold off the Varsity crew for the last 12 minutes of play.

Calgary Has January Rugby

CALGARY, Jan. 13.—(CP)—Playing on frozen turf but favored with ideal weather, teams representing Australia and New Zealand made sport history in Calgary on Saturday when they staged a rugby game at Currie Barracks Athletic Field.

Australia triumphed 6-3. The squads were made up of members of the Air Force.

CALGARY TIGERS TIE STAMPEDERS

CALGARY, Jan. 13.—(CP)—Calgary Tigers, including Sam Timmins, Jack Arbour, Tony Savage and Gordon McFarlane, reinstated pros, held the senior Stampeders to a 3-3 draw in an exhibition game at the Arena Sunday night.

Tigers have intermediate ranking and are aiming at the western Canada championship. Stampeders were forced to come from behind to deadlock the score in the latter stages of the event.

The game that provided wide open hockey, thrilled a crowd of over 3,500 enthusiasts. Cam Burke (2) and Jimmy Jempson scored for Stampeders, while George Black, Albert McDougall and Ollie Dahl tallied for Tigers. Duchak secured two assists for the seniors and Savage two for the intermediates.

Mioland Takes Rich Handicap

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Mioland once again proved Saturday that he will be a powerful contender in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap March 1.

Charles S. Howard's four-year-old defeated eight rivals in the $10,000 San Pasqual handicap before 30,000 fans at Santa Anita Park.

Packing top weight of 130 pounds for the first time in his career, Mioland won by four lengths over his next favored rival W. B. Simpson's General Manager. The victory was worth $8,900 to Howard. Valdina Groom, owned by Valdina Farms, finished third.

Mioland ran the 1⅛ miles in one minute 51 3-5 seconds and paid $4.20, $3.20 and $2.80.

Wins Hialeah

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 13.—(AP)—F. J. Buchanan's colt Zacatine came up from behind Saturday to win the $5,000 added Hialeah Stakes by a head over Circle M Ranch's Battle Colors.

Zacatine, a $6.80 for $2 shot, stepped the six furlongs in 1:11 3-5 and took the $4,830 winner's share of the purse.

Samuel Tufano's Market Wise was third.

SPORTS BULLETIN

INDIANS LOSE TO PROVIDENCE

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Providence Reds whipped Springfield Indians 4-1 in an overtime game Sunday night.

Three goals in the overtime period gave the Reds their victory. Young, Giroux and Wilson scored them.

Gustafson, Providence centre, and Mason of the Indians deadlocked the count with second period goals.

PLAY OVERTIME

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 13.—(AP)—New Haven Eagles and Philadelphia Ramblers battled to a 4-4 overtime tie in an American Hockey League game Sunday night.

Herb Foster with two, Norm Calladine and Lude Wareing scored for Ramblers. Earl Robinson got two goals and George Mantha and Don Willson one each for Eagles.

2-2 IN OVERTIME

BUFFALO, N.Y., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Cleveland Barons, leaders of the western division of the American Hockey League, held Buffalo Bisons to a 2-2 overtime tie Sunday.

Earl Bartholome scored both Baron goals.

CAPS BEAT HORNETS

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Paced by Kenny Kilrea and Bill Jennings, who each scored twice, Indianapolis Capitals defeated the Pittsburgh Hornets 6-2 in an American Hockey League game here Sunday night. Behling and Jackson were the other goal-getters for the Capitals while Convey notched both Pittsburgh goals.

BARONS WIN 3-2

CLEVELAND, Jan. 13.—(CP)—Cleveland Barons strengthened their first-place margin in the American Hockey League's western division Saturday night, defeating Indianapolis Capitals 3-2.

Jack Milford, young Cleveland left winger, tallied the winning goal at 14:20 of the final period. Bill Mackenzie and Joffre Desilets got other Baron goals and Connie Brown and Ken Kilrea scored for Indianapolis.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 13.—(CP)—Charley Rayner, Springfield's sensational rookie goaler, scored his fifth shutout of the American Hockey League season Saturday night as the second-place Indians scored an easy 5-0 verdict over Philadelphia Ramblers.

Glenn Brydson with four goals and Pete Kelly scored.

BEARS TIE BISONS

HERSHEY, Pa., Jan. 13.—(CP)—Hershey Bears and Buffalo Bisons battled to a 3-3 overtime tie Saturday night in an American Hockey League game. The Bisons tied the score in the third period on Chuck Shannon's goal. Maxie Bennett and Loren Mercer each tallied for Buffalo. Howard Mackie, Harry Frost and Bobby Kirk counted for Hershey.

NEW HAVEN 5-4

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 13.—(CP)—New Haven Eagles, eastern division leaders of the American Hockey League, eked out a 5-4 victory over Pittsburgh Hornets Saturday night.

Hornets, behind 4-1 in the third period, scored twice within 30 seconds on goals by Mickey Blake and Harry Currie to pull up within 4-3 of the Eagles.

George Mantha, Mark Maveety, Allan Shields and Gus Mancuso and Earl Rache scored New Haven's points. Buddy Hellyer and Norm Schultz got Pittsburgh's goals.

Ladies' Bonspiel Starts Tuesday

Nova Scotia Loop

TRURO, N.S., Jan. 13.—(CP)—Truro Bearcats defeated Highlanders 3-0 and the Army Service Corps edged Winnipeg Regiment 2-1 in an Antigonish - Pictou - Colchester Hockey League double-header here Saturday. Chadderton averted a shutout for Winnipeg with a third period goal.

This Takes Balance

Surf riding is a popular water sport for winter vacationists, but you have to be an expert to be able to stand up under the pounding waves for any length of time. These two surf jockeys are Donnie Grannis and John Kerwin, snapped off Hermosa Beach, California.

Lethbridge Maple Leafs Rally To Beat Nelson 4-3

NELSON, B.C., Jan. 13.—(CP)—Recovering from their 8-2 walloping by Trail Smoke Eaters Friday, the Alberta Senior Amateur League leaders, Lethbridge Maple Leafs, registered a 4-3 victory in a fast inter-league game with the Nelson Maple Leafs Saturday night to bring their current tour record to a win and a loss.

The Albertans get a chance for another victory tonight when they play the third-place Kimberley Dynamiters at Kimberley.

Lethbridge came from behind to register the victory against the second-place Nelson sextet, with Ken Stewart scoring three of the goals and Harvey Barnes getting the other. Jakie Mann and Bus Algar scored for the British Columbians in the opening period, with Jakie Mann getting their final marker on a power play while Lethbridge was two men short in the final period.

GOALIE HOT

The margin of the Albertans' victory might have been much higher but for the spectacular work of Jesse Seaby in the Nelson nets who time and again kicked out rubber marked for the goal.

The first break of a tight first period came when Alex Kaleta tripped Bob Proulx. Nelson tried to organize a power play but for the first minute the visitors checked them to a standstill.

Len Bicknell robbing the puck from Ken Stewart wheeled around to the Lethbridge blue line, passed to Kilpatrick who in turn relayed the puck to Jakie Mann. Mann beat Andy Young for the first goal of the game.

While Kaleta was still off, Darling beat Jess Seaby on a breakaway, but it was offside.

BUS SCORES BEST GOAL

At 15:33 Bus Algar scored the prettiest goal of the game. He wound up at centre ice, wheeling around to evade his check, squeezed through the Lethbridge defence broke into the clear, and although off balance, he drove home the puck.

With two minutes to go in the first period, Ken Stewart blazed in the first prairie goal on a dazzling solo. He went around the defence, circled the net, and hooked the puck behind Seaby around the goal post.

Harvey Barnes squared things for Lethbridge early in the second period as he took Kaleta's pass. The Nelson team was outplayed in this session and Seaby staged a brilliant goal display.

Lethbridge went ahead near the three-quarter mark in the period when Stewart shot home a short rebound shot, March Darling and Doug Lane drawing assists.

STEWART CINCHES IT

Lethbridge salted away the game at the halfway mark in the third when Stewart notched his third goal of the night. It was a perfect passout from Whitey Rimstad, Stewart firing in to the open side of the net from about four feet.

Nelson got an opportunity to go ahead when Lunde and Lane went off for high sticking and tripping respectively. It was during this stage that Nelson wound up the scoring. Mann parked unchecked in front of the Lethbridge net, deflected Len Bicknells' pass from the blue line into a corner of the net. Jerry Pettigrew also picked up an assist on the play.

LINEUPS

Lethbridge—Young; Barnes, Lane; Kaleta; Lunde, Culley. Subs: Stewart, Gray, Rimstad, Joyce, P. Young, Darling.

Nelson—Seaby; Bicknell, Pettigrew; Proulx; Sturk. Subs: Kilpatrick, Haire, Mann, Boothman, Gilmour, Bonneville, Euerby.

Officials: Referee, Ty Culley; judge of play, Rene Morin.

SUMMARY

Third period: 6—Lethbridge, Stewart (Rimstad), 9:10; 7—Nelson, Mann (Bicknell-Pettigrew), 12:22. Penalties: Rimstad, Lunde, Lane.

OAKLAND'S OPEN NEEDS PLAYOFF FOR TRIPLE TIE

OAKLAND, Calif., Jan. 13.—(AP)—The Oakland $5,000 open golf tournament ended in a triple tie Sunday among E. J. (Dutch) Harrision, of Little Rock, Ark., Leonard Dodson, of Kansas City, Mo., and Ben Hogan of White Plains, N.Y. Each scored 276 for the 72 holes and will meet in an 18-hole play-off today.

Hogan, last to finish, missed a three-foot putt on the 18th green which would have given him the lead. Harrision had similar bad luck on the same hole, missing a four-footer. Each chalked up par fives on this hole.

Hogan scored a two-over-par 72 for the Sequoyah Course on his final round. Harrision, leader of the second and third rounds carded a 73 and Dodson a par 70.

A crowd of some 5,000 fans, witnessed the matches, played on a soggy course.

An amateur showed the way to the country's leading professionals in the last round. Marvin (Bud) Ward, of Spokane, former National Amateur champion, turned in a 66, four under par for a total of 282. He was out in 32 and home in 34. The only other subpar for the round belonged to Mark Fry, home club pro, with a 68.

Jimmy Demaret, of Houston, Texas, defending champion, finished in a four-way tie at 282, with a par 70 Sunday. He won $230 compared with $1,200 a year ago.

Kovacs Takes Dixie Tennis

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Frankie Kovacs, Oakland Calif., blasted out a straight set victory over Eddie Alloo, Winter Park, Fla., to take the singles crown in the 17th annual Dixie tournament Sunday. Kovacs trimmed the little Rollins College star 6-0, 6-3, 6-2.

Miss Pauline Betz, of Rollins College, won the women's singles title when she beat Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke of Brookline, Mass., 6-4, 6-3, 6-2.

Don McNeill of Oklahoma City and Jack Kramer of Los Angeles, teamed to win the doubles crown from Sussial Bobbitt of Atlanta and Frank Guernsey of Orlando, Fla., 6-1, 7-5, 6-2.

Trainer Dies

IOWA CITY, Ia., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Harold M. Childs, 77, trotting horse trainer who developed three Hambletonian winners while connected with the Ben F. White stables, died in hospital here Thursday night.

SET BASKETBALL PLAYOFF DATES

VANCOUVER, Jan. 13.—(CP)—The 1940-41 series for the men's senior Canadian Basketball championship will be a best of five affair at the home of the western representatives, April 23, 25, 26, 28 and 29 it was announced here Saturday night.

The dates were released by E. W. Bowering, western secretary of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association who also announced dates of Saskatchewan and Alberta playoffs and the western final.

The western final will be at the home of the British Columbia winners, a best of three affair April 12, 14 and 15.

The Saskatchewan playoffs will be a two-game total point series April 14 and 15.

Alberta will decide its representative in the playdowns in a two-game total point series April 8 and 9.

However, if Saskatchewan does not enter the playdowns the Alberta playoff will be a best of three series April 5, 7 and 8.

No dates have been set for British Columbia.

SPOKANE TOPS LEAGUE AGAIN

SPOKANE, Wash., Jan. 13.—(CP)—Spokane Bombers banged in three final-period goals Sunday night to hand the Seattle Olympics a 4-2 defeat and go into undisputed first place in the tight Pacific Coast Hockey League race.

The victory gives the Bombers a one-point margin over Vancouver Lions and Portland Buckaroos, tied for second place. The Olympics are in third spot, another point back.

Joey Johns gave Seattle a first-period lead and Jean Pusie added another for Olympics in the second before Aubrey Webster put the Bombers in the scoring column.

Then in the final period, Webster and Bill Gauf made the play for Blyth to score the tying goal and Glen Vickers and Gauf each whipped in another marker to cinch the victory.

LINEUPS

Seattle: Gauthier; Lofvendahl, Pusie, Burron; McCartney, Daley. Subs: Tabor, Tomsen, Johns, Coulter.

SPOKANE: Levine; Steeves, Emery; Scharfe; Palm, Vickers. Subs: McAdam, Norris, Blyth, Gauf, Webster.

Officials: Pat Murphy, referee; Al Galipeau, linesman.

Red Deer Wins Juvenile Game From Lacombe

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

RED DEER, Jan. 13.—The Red Deer Juveniles trimmed the visiting Lacombe aggregation by the tune of 7-5 in an exhibition game played here Saturday night.

Both teams played heads up hockey and brought the crowd to their feet several times to cheer the fast rushes and smart goal tending which were a feature of the game.

A total of 10 penalties were handed out.

Murray and McArthur led the Red Deer point getters with the two goals apiece, Card, Gay and Knight being the other scorers, while Orton, Lindskog and Minkler notched Lacombe's counters.

LINEUPS

Lacombe: Chapman, Minkler, Lindskog, Orton, Ostercamp, Derr, Shannon, Corban, Rose, B. Chapman, Hoppus, Marble, Sharp, Campbell.

Red Deer: Setters, Sharman, Little, Wight, Murray, Gibson, Knight, Gay, McArthur, Card, Cuthbertson.

SUMMARY

First Period: 1—Red Deer, Murray (Gibson) 8:11; 2—Red Deer, Card (Gay) 9:38; 3—Lacombe, Minkler 13:04; 4—Lacombe, Orton, 14:03; 5—Red Deer, Gay, 15:24; 6—Lacombe, Orton, 17:04. Penalties: Sharp, Orton, Little.

Second Period: 7—Red Deer, McArthur, 7:18; 8—Lacombe, Lindskog, 7:40; 9—Red Deer, Murray, 18:10; 10—Red Deer McArthur (Little) 19:59. Penalties: Hoppus, Orton, Sharman.

Third Period: 11—Red Deer, Knight, 12:21; 12—Lacombe, Orton, 17:10. Penalties: Sharp, Sharman, Gibson, McArthur.

Saskatoon Beats Flin Flon Twice

FLIN FLON, Man., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Saskatoon Quakers duplicated an early November performance to make a clean sweep of their two Saskatchewan Senior Hockey league games with Flin Flon Bombers here this week-end. They downed Bombers 4-1 Saturday night and marked up a 6-3 decision Sunday night.

The victories raised Quakers into second place, one point behind the league-leading Regina Rangers who have a game in hand.

Ross Kraeling netted two as Ab Welsh and Mel Neilson each scored one for Quakers, Saturday. Bob Kirkpatrick got the lone Bomber goal.

On Sunday, Tommy Reid, Welsh, Ken Hunter, Dune Farmer, Neilson and Kraeling scored for Saskatoon, while Kirkpatrick, Hal Brown and Ernie Strongman tallied for Flin Flon.

Edmonton Club Climbs To Second Place In Standings

CALGARY, Jan. 13.—(CP)—Capitalizing on a tripping penalty imposed on Defenceman Pete Ettinger, Edmonton Flyers, through well executed power plays, tallied two goals within 19 seconds during the third period at the Arena Saturday night when they defeated the cellar occupants, Turner Valley Oilers, 4-3.

The victory advanced Flyers into second place ahead of the Stampeders in the standing of the Alberta Senior Hockey League.

In a close checking contest that lacked interest, Flyers came from behind to tie the score at 1-1 in the first period and again in the second to make it 2-2. Well on in the final session Ettinger was banished for tripping Pete Yanew and Flyers with their added man power, lost no time in clicking for two straight counters.

Oilers had all but goalie Roche up on the attack from then on and while they managed to score, they were one goal behind when the bell sounded for full time.

Les Bird, Riley Mullen, Ducky Skinner and Eddie O'Keefe scored for Flyers while Bill Cousins, Pete Atkinson and Meyer Flett tallied for Oilers.

ONLY THREE PENALTIES

Despite the close checking only three penalties were handed out, two to Turner Valley and one to Edmonton.

The Valley club was minus defenceman Percy Davis, who was injured in a recent game in Lethbridge, and also winger Ross McIntyre, who has returned to California to resume his studies.

Oilers opened the scoring shortly after the 16-minute mark on a double passing play between Cousins and Martinson, with Cousins beating Pow from close range. Flyers eventually tied the score with Skinner and Brown assisting Bird and the first period ended 1-1.

Some loose playing on the part of the Flyer's defence enabled Oilers to take a 2-1 lead early in the second period. Holditch and Cairns were given assists when Atkinson picked up a loose puck and drilled it into the corner before Pow had a chance to move.

Flyers made it 2-2 late in the period when Brown passed back to Mullen and the veteran shot from the blue line. Goalie Roche's view was blocked by at least two of his teammates.

POW STOPS 'EM

Play livened up considerably about half way through the third period with Oilers doing the bulk of the attacking. Pow pulled off numerous fine saves, while a number of shots were just wide of the mark. Ettinger drew a penalty for tripping.

The offense proved costly for Flyers counted two goals within 19 seconds, Skinner getting the first on a pass from Newsome, while O'Keefe got the second on assists from Newsome and Skinner.

Oilers got one of the goals back at the 18:37 mark when Cairns passed to Flett who let go a drive that scored while Pow's vision was blocked. Oilers pressed for remainder of the game, but failed to click.

Saskatoon Junior Quakers Defeat Leafs 7-6: Trounce E.A.C. 8-3

Toronto Hands Americans 9-0 Shutout In Record Game

TORONTO, Jan. 13.—(CP)—National Hockey League officials delved through files last night in an effort to learn if two records were established when the leading Toronto Maple Leafs whitewashed the last-place New York Americans here Saturday night.

Early checks indicated the 9-0 count might stand as a high-scoring shutout mark in N.H.L. competition.

The penalty box was empty throughout the contest, same as when Leafs downed New York Rangers 3-2 Thursday. It is believed to be the first time in league history that a team has played two successive penalty-free games.

The Leafs knifed through the sieve-like New York defence almost at will. A crowd of 10,326 fans saw the Blueshirts take a 2-0 lead in the first period, add four counters in the second and three more in the final 20 minutes.

In sweeping to their lopsided triumph the Leafs registered 23 scoring points. Ten of 14 Toronto players in uniform figured in the avalanche of goals. Gord Drillon was the only player to score twice. He also earned two assists. Dave Schriner bagged one goal and helped in three others.

For Bob Davidson, Red Heron and Bucko McDonald the game meant more than a mere victory—they each fired their first goal of the season.

Bob Carse Stars As Hawks Win

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—(CP)—Chicago Black Hawks retained their fourth place position in the National Hockey League here Sunday night with a 2-1 victory over Detroit Red Wings in a game that meant much to both clubs.

Hawks now are only six points behind the second-place Wings, who faltered in the drive that has carried them close to the league leading Toronto Maple Leafs, who now have a four-point margin.

Detroit had been unbeaten in its previous seven games in its drive to catch Leafs. Chicago now is unbeaten in its last four contests.

A record crowd of 19,336 saw the game. Red Wings went ahead on Alex Motter's tally in the sixth minute of the game and the Hawks pulled up even in the furiously-fought second period on a goal by Bob Carse.

The final period was tame until the Hawks went ahead on a sharp angle shot by Bill Thoms. The victory was Chicago's first over the Red Wings in five games this season.

Jimmy Orlando, Red Wing rowdy who exchanged blows with a spectator here New Year's night, gave the officials no trouble Sunday night. He drew one penalty for interference in the first minute of play.

LINEUPS

Third period: 3—Chicago, Thoms (Chad, R. Carse), 16:40. Penalties, none.

Canadiens Lose To Boston 2-1

MONTREAL, Jan. 13.—(CP)—Boston Bruins extended their National Hockey League unbeaten streak Saturday to seven games with a 2-1 victory over Montreal Canadiens.

Beaten twice and tied once by Montreal in three previous meetings, the Bruins scored two goals in the final frame to climb into third place alone in the standings ahead of Chicago Black Hawks. Toe Blake bagged Montreal's lone tally.

The opening two periods went scoreless and then Eddie Wiseman and Art Jackson put Boston ahead 2-0.

It was Canadiens' fourth straight loss and left them in sixth position.

A crowd of 8,500 watched Wiseman put the Bruins into a 1-0 lead at 8:40 of the final frame.

A penalty to Defenceman Ken Reardon spoiled Montreal attempts for two minutes and soon after he returned the Bruins went into a two-goal lead on a breakaway.

Storming the Boston goal, Canadiens finally broke into the scoring at 19:25 when big Jack Portland gave a perfect pass to Blake.

LINEUPS

Bruins Run Wins To Eight

BOSTON, Jan. 13.—(CP)—Boston Bruins wound up the first half of their National Hockey League campaigning by battling from behind for a 7-5 victory over Montreal Canadiens before a crowd of 12,000.

The Bruins had to wipe out a 4-1 lead the visitors built up during the first 23 minutes of play, to extend their undefeated string to eight games.

Woody Dumart rapped in the tying goal just as the second period ended, and during the third session Herb Cain and Des Smith, counted to give Bruins their second victory in as many nights over Canadiens.

Murph Chamberlain, who drew two penalties, one a 10-minute misconduct, scored twice for Canadiens and the other goals were provided by Ray Getliffe, Toe Blake and Tony Demers.

LINEUPS

Canadiens: Gardiner; Portland, Coupille, Quilty; Blake, Chamberlain. Subs: Lach, Demers, Adams, Grabowski, Singbrush, Drouin, Sands, Getliffe, K. Reardon.

Boston: Brimsek; Smith, Clapper; Schmidt; Dumart, Bauer. Subs: Cowley, Wiseman, Cain, Crawford, Hamill, T. Reardon, Bruce, McReavy, Jackson.

Rangers Beat Americans 3-1

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(CP)—New York Rangers moved closer to the slowly-bunching National Hockey League leaders here Sunday night with a 3-1 victory over New York Americans.

The victory left the Americans floundering in the basement of the N.H.L.—a position they have held off and on all season. Americans lost 9-0 Saturday night in Toronto.

The game drew 12,534 fans at Madison Square Garden.

For most of the game it looked as if Dave Kerr in the Rangers' nets could finally earn his first shutout victory of the year. But young Norm Larson punched in a goal at the three-quarter mark of the last period to spoil the effort.

Lynn Patrick opened the scoring in the first period. That lead stood until the third period when first Clint Smith and then Phil Watson, beat Goalie Earl Robertson.

LINEUPS

RANGERS: Kerr; Pratt, Heller; N. Colville; M. Colville, L. Patrick. Subs: Coulter, Shibicky, Watson, Hiller, C. Smith, Hextall, McDonald, M. Patrick, Pike.

Durocher Safe From Army Draft

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Brooklyn baseball fans can stop worrying. The United States government isn't likely to prevent Leo Durocher from managing the Dodgers this year.

The selected service draft board in Brooklyn revealed today that the Brooklyn pilot had been placed in group three. This deferred classification practically guarantees that Durocher will not be interrupted in his duties as manager.

Goodman Quits

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Paul Goodman, 33-year-old veteran who has given way to Sammy Lo Presti as the Chicago Black Hawks' regular goalkeeper, announced his retirement Friday from professional hockey.

The National League Hawks planned to send Goodman to Kansas City of the American Association but Goodman said he preferred to return to his home in Winnipeg.

Stettler Trims Camrose 3-2; Wetaskiwin Defeats Red Deer

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

CAMROSE, Jan. 13—Over a thousand roaring fans turned out Saturday night to see the Stettler Imperials trim the Camrose Maroons by a close score of 3-2, in a Central Alberta league game.

The ice was good considering the 50 above weather, and with the added heat from the paying customers the rink was anything but cool.

The game got away to a fast clip, both aggregations skating fast and making end to end rushes, testing each goalie in turn but without success.

Neither club was able to score in the first period, but in the second, things warmed up and the Imperials went ahead on two goals while holding the Maroons to a singleton.

The third period was a repetition of the first although each club scored once, making the final score read, Stettler Imperials 3, Camrose Maroons 2.

The Camrose Maroons did not do so well in their new red, white and blue uniforms, they seemingly were afraid somewhat to extend themselves.

The refereeing was very ragged, both the referee and the linesman refereed from centre ice and most of the time they were not on the play. Neutral referees in this league would be more satisfying and would surely meet with approval with the players themselves. This league is hot and all players know the game.

LINEUPS

Stettler—Rudd, Harrison, Tickle, Wilson, K. Seaby, S. Seaby, Blaney, Boss, Gilbert, Falkenberg.

Maroons—Constable, Worton, Katz, Spencer, Hantiuk, Swelin, Duffield, Tory, David, Soulie, Baker.

Referee—Ken Blaney, Stettler; linesman, Vern Larson, Camrose.

First period—No score. Penalties: David, Maroons.

Second period—Stettler, Blaney (K. Seaby), 3:15; 2, S. Seaby (K. Seaby), 12:37; 3, Maroons, Duffield (Hantiuk, David), 14:17. Penalties: Stettler, S. Seaby, K. Seaby, Camrose, Katz.

Third period—4, Stettler S. Seaby (K. Seaby), 714; 5, Maroons, Soulie (Spencer), 11:06. Penalties: Katz, Worton.

Red Deer Loses To Wetaskiwin

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

WETASKIWIN, Jan. 13.—The largest crowd of the season witnessed a Central Alberta League fixture here Saturday night between Red Deer and Colonels with the locals winning 4-2.

Play was slowed to a considerable extent due to soft ice but nevertheless featured an excellent brand of hockey with Baker of the locals making several sensational saves.

Colonels' goal getters were Anderson with two on passes from Kolmatycki and Walker, Kolmatycki netted two on assists from Petasky.

Peterson from Hardy and Soley from Stanley accounted for the Red Deer markers.

LINEUPS

Wetaskiwin: Baker; Grant, Kolmatycki, Brown, Kirstein, McMurdo, Petasky, Anderson, Jackson, Alpaugh, McAuley, Walker, Chrapka.

First Tests Of Calibre Draw 7,700 Hockey Fans

OVER 5,000 hockey fans saw Saskatoon's junior Quakers ram in four goals in the last eight minutes to take an 8-3 decision from the Edmonton Athletic Club at the Arena on Sunday afternoon.

The E.A.C. had a big margin of play in the first period and retained an edge until the Watson-Weaver break came at 12:08 in the last period. From then on it was all Quakers.

It was the second game in two days for the Saskatoon boys, but they looked to be a more polished aggregation than they did the night before, when they defeated Maple Leafs 7-6, and had plenty of reserve for a rousing finish to make the count in Edmonton two straight.

The E.A.C. team looked its best in the first period which was unquestionably the fastest of the game with action galore.

Quakers went into the lead at 11:06 when Freddy Weaver, blond wingman, slapped through to beat Howard Blefgen with a blazing shot.

DAVE LaROSE SCORES

The E.A.C. squad got a break when Schmidt was sent off for using his elbow too freely and Dave LaRose put his team-mates on an even footing at 18:47 when Jack Carney gave him a perfect pass.

Within a minute Billy Maher made the count 2-1, result of a rush with Bim Barker and LaRose. Barker got the assist.

The Quaker goalie was injured and after some delay, the teams agreed to pack on the remaining 15 seconds of play to the second period.

Bim Barker, whose playing all through was exceptionally good almost beat Dartell early in the second period and was followed up with another brilliant effort, being tripped by Schmidt just as he got in the clear.

The Quakers evened up the score after four minutes, Keith Allen making a breakaway from an E.A.C. power play to go right in on Blefgen.

E.A.C. came right back and pressed, but Laycoe broke with Shabago to put Saskatoon one up at 8:26.

GETS SECOND GOAL

Dave LaRose counted his second goal of the game at 11:11, taking a pass from Jack McPherson after the E.A.Cees had been swarming all around the Quaker goal for fully a minute.

On some sloppy defence clearing Laycoe got a soft goal to again put the visitors one up.

Near the close of the period Smitten, Barker and Simpson all missed with the goalie out of the net.

Maher, Lewis and Barker each tested Dartell in the early part of the last 20 minutes, but the Saskatoon boy was really hard to beat.

Weaver, Carney and Livingstone all drew quick penalties, the latter taking exception to his and making a pass at Runge, for which he should have been given an object lesson.

Watson and Weaver combined on a fast break at 12:08 and made the count 5-3 and lacoe and Slaboda made another at 16:16 a direct result of poor defence clearing.

With the E.A.C. squad short two men against one for the Quakers, Watson and Laycoe came through with a nice goal at 18:58 and Tony Leswick soloed in 17 seconds later for a beautiful counter.

Laycoe bagged three and got two assists during the afternoon.

Quakers Defeat Maple Leafs 7-6

The Saskatoon Quakers barely managed to stave off a determined Maple Leaf rush in the closing minutes of Saturday night's game and took the long end of a 7-6 count in the first of the two junior hockey exhibitions at the Arena over the week-end. There were 2,700 paid admissions for the game.

A trifle better in finishing was about the only difference between the two teams, but what the Leafs might have lacked of the smooth passing shown by the Saskatchewan team, they made up in energy and determination and the result was a real battle.

The Leafs went into the lead at 4:35, Russell Klesko handing a perfect pass back to Walter Dutchak who beat goalie Dertell easily.

Quakers evened the score nine minutes later when Dea was off for interference. Tony Leswick got the counter unassisted.

At 15:31 Mike Shabago and Leswick put the Quakers up one on a neat and fast combination play.

The Leafs tied up the game 2-2 at 2:29 in the second period, Stan Devicq sinking a sizzler when Pete Gregor slipped him the puck from behind the goal.

Alex Pringle put the Maple Leafs one up at 13:24, but Dave Livingstone sent the game into another tie a minute later.

During the latter part of this period was really the only time the Quakers showed any superiority. Weaver, Slaboda and Laycoe combined at 17:40 to put the Saskatoon squad in the lead and Weaver took Laycoe's pass less than a minute later to boost the count to 5-3 at the end of the middle session.

Livingstone drew a penalty early the third period and the Leafs immediately put on the pressure, Allan Sneddon eventually beating Dertell at 1:55.

Eddie Watson made the score 6-4 at 2:43, but Stan Devicq and Pete Gregor again performed the hat trick with a neat and short forward to make the count 6-5.

From here to the end of the game the play was all Maple Leafs and they did everything but score. They did manage to flash the red light once but the officials disallowed the goal as one of the players was in the crease.

Henry Kwasney put up the finest exhibition he has shown this winter, back checking like a fiend and engineering some really fine efforts. Pete Gregor and Alex Pringle were also travelling well.

WHEAT SHOWS NARROW LOSS

WINNIPEG, Jan. 13—(CP)—Traders on Winnipeg grain exchange continued their general lack of enthusiasm today as wheat futures prices struggled through another dull session. Quotations fluctuated slowly within a narrow range before closing ⅛ cent lower. May wheat at 77⅝ and July at 79¼ cents a bushel.

ITALIANS ARE SHOWING SIGNS WAR COLLAPSE

LONDON, Jan. 13.—(CP)—Italy is showing "every sign of collapse," Hon. P. C. Spender, Australian war minister, said Sunday in a broadcast from Singapore, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported last night. The minister is on his way home from Egypt.

"It is time that the Italians realized that as their defeat becomes more certain, Germany will seek to take over complete conntrol of Italy," he said.

Mr. Spender expressed hope Japan would realize "that it is in her own interests to maintain friendly relations with the British Empire."

"Australia and Singapore are linked together as vital parts of the Empire defences," he said. "We have no quarrel with Japan. We in Australia fervently hope to keep the Pacific at all times true to its name."

RECRUITING FOR SIGNALLERS TO OPEN TUESDAY

Opportunities will be given many residents of this city and district to enlist in the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals, according to Lt.-Col. E. Brown, M.M., E.D., area commandant.

It was stated by Lt.-Col. Brown that at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, Capt. J. T. Freeman, district signal officer, M.D., No. 13, would be at Room 201 Prince of Wales Armory, to interview prospective recruits for the Signals Corps.

Capt. Freeman is specially anxious to obtain recruits who are experienced in servicing, troubleshooting and repairing telephones, switchboards and other devices. Men experienced in handling superheterodyne tubes and with training in short wave radio also are required. Operators, linesmen and despatch riders also will be given opportunities of enlistment.

Diesel engine, gas and electric engine experts also are required as are some technical clerks. These last might qualify even with "C" category.

PEOPLE'S PEACE CALLED FOR BY SOCIALIST GROUP

By LOUIS V. HUNTER

LONDON, Jan. 13.—(CP)—Overthrow of what was termed the "reactionary and unrepresentative" Churchill government and establishment of a "people's government" was demanded Sunday by a meeting of 2,000 workers who claim to be representative of more than 1,000,000 Britons.

The convention which ended with the singing of the Internationale had as its main object, it was explained, the establishment of a "people's parliament" to end the war and appeal to the German people over the head of Hitler in the belief the two countries can make a lasting and sincere peace. The platform also calls for close friendship with Russia.

The convention called for a "people's peace won by working peoples of all countries and the broad right of all peoples to determine their own destiny." One plank is national independence for India, the right of all colonial peoples to work out their own future, and "an end to the enforced partition of Ireland."

Chairman of the meeting was Harry Adams, London organizer of the amalgamated union of the building trades who was expelled from the Socialist Party last July. He claimed the movement for the convention developed from within the Labor party.

Tribesmen Prove Allegiance To Haile Selassie

KHARTOUM, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Haile Selassie, dethroned by the Italians five years ago, is receiving a constant stream of tribal revolutionary agents in this city 300 miles from the Ethiopian frontier.

These native tribesmen loyal to the emperor have been evading Italian border patrols to cross into the Sudan.

Here they receive guns and ammunition furnished by British authorities and re-enter Ethiopia to carry on guerilla activities against the Italians.

SOVIETS DENY KNOWLEDGE OF GERMAN PLANS

Consent Is Not Given To Nazi Move Into Bulgaria, Stated

By HENRY CASSIDY

MOSCOW, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Soviet Russia has not consented to any passage of German troops into Bulgaria nor has she been informed of such a move if it has occurred, it was announced late Sunday night.

A special communique distributed by Tass, Soviet News Agency, was broadcast by the Moscow radio at 11 p.m. (1 p.m., M.S.T.), an hour ahead of the usual news bulletin.

The Tass statement, in denial of foreign press reports, said Germany never has asked Russia's consent to the entrance of German soldiers into Bulgaria, and Bulgaria never has approached Russia with an inquiry regarding the passage of German troops through her borders.

A similar communique was issued at the time on the entry of the Germans into Rumania last fall.

FRIENDLY RELATIONS

Russia and Bulgaria traditionally have maintained close and friendly relations as "sister Slavic" nations.

(Tass denials of reports allegedly published outside Russia usually constitute the Kremlin's method of making its position known by indirect rather than direct statement.

(With German troops stationed on the Danube river across from Bulgaria, there has been speculation as to whether Germany asked Russia to permit soldiers to enter Bulgaria, a friend of the Soviets, or to pass through that country to attack Greece.)

The Tass statement said that if German troops actually are in Bulgaria and if the further dispatch of German troops to Bulgaria is under way, "all this has occurred without the knowledge and consent of the U.S.S.R. since the German side never raised before the U.S.S.R. the question of the presence or dispatch of German troops to Bulgaria."

NOT APPROACHED

"In particular," Tass added, "the Bulgarian government never approached the U.S.S.R. with an inquiry regarding the passage of troops to Bulgaria and consequently could not receive any reply from the U.S.S.R."

The Tass statement began with an assertion that the foreign press, "referring to certain Bulgarian circles as the source of information," had circulated a report that a certain number of German troops already have been sent to Bulgaria, that the dispatching of Nazi troops to Bulgaria is continuing with the knowledge and consent of Russia and that the Russian government had "replied by consent to an inquiry by the Bulgarian government concerning the passage of German troops to Bulgaria."

SOUTH AFRICA TO HELP CLEAR OUT ETHIOPIA

Hope To Help Drive All Italians From Africa During 1941

JOHANNESBURG, Jan. 13.—(CP Reuters)—South Africa's role in 1941 will be to help clear Ethiopia "of the enemy and not only Ethiopia but British Somaliland," Gen. Jan Smuts, prime minister of South Africa said in a speech Saturday.

"We hope and pray that the end of this year may see the African continent free of the enemy, right up to the shores of the Mediterranean," Smuts said.

"That is the task to which South Africa has dedicated herself and for the fulfillment of it she will use all her available resources."

During the last year South Africa has worked silently building up an army and making up grave deficiencies in production of arms and ammunition, Gen. Smuts said. He added:

"South Africa has stood on guard. The time for action has now come."

Britain Preparing Strike Major Blow

LONDON, Jan. 13—(CP)—Belief grew among observers in London today that Britain is preparing to strike a major blow in Ethiopia by land offensive and by aiding the natives to revolt against their Italian conquerors.

While naturally no one is willing to disclose plans of Britain's command in the middle east, it was considered significant that Gen. Jan Smuts, prime minister of South Africa, said in a weekend speech the time for action against the Italians had come and that "our role this year will be to help clear out Ethiopia of the enemy and not only Ethiopia but British Somaliland."

CONSTANT UNREST

Unrest in Ethiopia has been constant, and this, plus the presence of a South African army on the frontier, has helped immobilize thousands of Italians who otherwise might have been able to help the Italians who are in difficulty in the north.

In addition to Ethiopian unrest, travellers from that country report growing anti-Fascist feeling among the Italians resident there. They are worried over safety of their families and have asked the French authorities at Jibuti to shelter them as evacuees in event of a native uprising. This request has been turned down, it is reported.

HELP ETHIOPIANS

Emperor Haile Selassie has been in Khartoum for some time but British authorities have not been dealing with him alone. British policy in Ethiopia was outlined in the House of Commons last Dec. 18 by Richard Butler, foreign undersecretary, when he said:

"It is the policy of His Majesty's government to extend to Emperor Haile Selassie as to all elements within Ethiopia willing to bear arms against the enemy, all possible assistance in their fight for freedom."

Greek Families Are Abducted By Italian Armies

ATHENS, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Whole families of Greeks in the Albanian border region of Konitza were among a total of approximately 500 Greeks abducted by the retreating Italian army, the ministry of home security declared Sunday night.

"Among those abducted are men, women, children, babies, priests, scientists, and agriculturists," the communique said. "Of these families, all members have been abducted in some cases. Their fate is unknown."

Ottawa Plans North Bases For Great Aerial Highway From Edmonton To Alaska

OTTAWA, Jan. 13.—(CP)—Plans for facilities to provide an aerial highway across northwestern Canada—a purely Canadian undertaking but nevertheless linking the United States with Alaska by direct air route—are expected to be made public officially before long.

A report here Sunday night, from well-informed sources but which could not be officially confirmed, was that a new string of air bases will be built from Edmonton, already linked with the United States by air, across northern Alberta, northern British Columbia, and the Yukon to Alaska.

Already the route is in use, but the planes that fly it are commercial machines equal to long hops and adapted to this particular type of northland flying.

One source indicated the new bases would have facilities to serve the largest bombers of either the Canadian or the United States air forces. This entails construction of large runways needed for take-offs and landings.

The new route will be east and north of the Rocky mountains through sparsely settled country that now hears only the drone of the few commercial planes that fly through the area.

The understanding here was that radio beams, already installed between Edmonton and the American border, would be placed along the complete route to Alaska. Numerous lakes would make the route especially feasible for seaplane travel in the summer. As is the case at winter training fields operated under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, the snow at the Alaskan route landing fields will be rolled and packed down hard during winter operations.

COMMERCIAL LINES

The existing commercial line in this area now operates two or three times a week from Edmonton, Grande Prairie, Alta., to Fort Nelson, B.C., and then to Whitehorse in the Yukon by way of Watson Lake and Teslin. The connection with Pan-American Airways is made at Whitehorse and the Canadian line goes on to Dawson and Fairbanks.

Great Benefit To U.S. Army, Navy Seen

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Use of a string of Canadian-built airfields between the United States and Alaska, such as reported planned by Canada, presumably would be welcomed eagerly by the United States army and navy.

There was no official indication, however, that the plan represented an agreement with the United States.

General George C. Marshall, war department chief of staff, disclosed last week that the United States now has increased forces in the territory to 3,000 troops, and added the force "represents a development more important than the numbers would indicate."

He said the army's share of the new Alaskan defences was ahead of schedule.

The army is building a $13,200,000 air base at Anchorage and a $4,000,000 "cold weather experimental station" near Fairbanks. The navy is building three air bases on the Alaskan coast for which $17,125,000 has been appropriated.

The troops and naval forces are supplied now by ship and plane. There have been proposals for joint construction by Canada and the United States of a highway link across British Columbia and Yukon territory.

In the event of a Pacific war involving Alaska, official plans are understood to contemplate heavy reliance on air routes to prevent isolation of the territory's defenders.

ROBIN JUST SITS, WAITS FOR SPRING

Brakeman Harry Irwin, of the C.N.R., who lives at 12132 122 street, said Monday that Edmonton would likely have an early spring. Authority for Mr. Irwin's prognostication is a robin.

"I saw him Saturday sitting on a tree and doing nothing right near the house," said Brakeman Irwin. "May be a sign for an early spring, eh? Or did the bird get mixed up with the calendar, do you think?"

Come, come, Mr. Irwin. Some of those hardy red-breasts hang around all winter, according to our ornithology editor.

Leaders' Course Is Opened Monday

Fifty Alberta young people gathered at the Vermilion agricultural school Monday and commenced a seven weeks' course of instruction in leadership. Those selected for attendance at this course, have been attending youth training schools of two and three weeks' duration for the last three years.

The course now being offered will provide these young people with unusual opportunities for training as leaders in community work.

Five New Members Named For University Senate: Honors Are Recommended

Five new members of the University of Alberta senate and a lengthy list of recommendations for degrees among students are announced following a meeting of the senate held Friday, under the chairmanship of Chancellor Dr. A. E. Rutherford.

Resigns Position

J. K. HILL, manager of the Hudson's Bay Company store in Edmonton since 1932, who has resigned his position, it was announced Monday.

He will be succeeded by C. N. Chubb, at present manager of the company's Saskatoon store.

Mr. Hill has been with the Hudson's Bay Company since 1916, joining the staff at Calgary a year after he came to Canada from Ireland. He came to Edmonton eight years ago from Kamloops, where he had been store manager.

Mr. Chubb has many friends in Edmonton, being a former resident here. Several years ago he was a department manager in the Edmonton Hudson's Bay store, and prior to that was for several years a department manager with the James Ramsey Ltd. store.

New members of the senate are as follows: J. E. A. Macleod, representing the Law Society of Alberta; H. H. Parlee, K.C.; Dean Robert Newton; E. D. C. Thomson, representing the Chartered Accountants Association and Dr. G. S. Lord, senior principal of Alberta Normal schools.

The meeting was featured by a report from Lt.-Col. Warren, officer commanding the Canadian Officers Training Corps at the University here. This report showed that the C.O.T.C. has a strength of 513 and the auxiliary battalion totals 707, which gives 1,220 men receiving military training here.

SATISFIED WITH TRAINING

Satisfaction over the state of military training was expressed by members of the senate following reception of the report.

The senate approved the following members of the committee on smaller hospitals: Dr. W. A. R. Kerr, Dr. A. C. McGugan, Dr. M. Bow, Miss Agnes McLeod and A. E. Ottewell, registrar.

"The president was authorized to set up a permanent committee on war problems, in order that the University may keep in close touch with departments of the govern-

AUGUST LOSES ONE DAY BUT GETS IT BACK

August now has official government approval entitling it to 31 days this year as it has had in previous years. Here is how it happened.

The government this year issued a handsome calendar about two by three feet. It is attractively illustrated and contains considerable information.

But in the original draft August was allotted only 30 days and to avoid embarrassment, stickers with the figures "31" have been mailed and now the missing day can be pasted onto the calendar, directly below "24" which is on a Sunday.

"Hudson's Bay"

Canada's "Very Own" Story Comes to THE CAPITOL THEATRE'S SCREEN THURSDAY

Motion pictures cost lots of money to make. Hollywood tosses around millions of dollars as casually as the average person throws away burnt matches. So it's reasonable to assume that when Hollywood announces that it's producing one of the "Big Pictures of the Year" that's somehing which developed out of an extremely expensive background.

"HUDSON'S BAY" 20th Century Fox's "big picture of the year," is the exception that proves that rule. Kenneth Macgowan, the studio's associate producer, saw a trademark "The Governor and Company of Adventurers of England" trading into Hudson's Bay. Incorporated 2nd May, 1670." Fascinated by this Macgowan did some lengthy research and the story and central figure behind it—one Pierre Radisson, "the first Canadian"—were so dramatically appealing that Macgowan was able to sell the studio the idea of making the picture which stars Paul Muni, and which will have on Thursday, January 16th simultaneous Canadian Premieres in seven cities: Edmonton, Winnipeg, Regina, Saskatoon, Calgary, Vancouver and Victoria.

Pierre Radisson around whom most of the action in "HUDSON'S BAY" revolves, was something of a paradox. A hard-hitting and ruthless man at times, he was endowed with a certain roguish charm and depth of character which makes him an appealing figure on the screen. Driven into the Northern wastes, this fabulous man saves half a continent for the ruler who had ordered him hanged, and founded a great commercial company that exists to this day. But who was to bring the colorful Radisson to life on the screen? Conferences were held and suggestions considered. Production was delayed until the perfect man for the role—a star commensurate in importance with such an ambitious film project could be obtained. That man was Paul Muni who became most enthusiastic about this particular character. He threw his vacation plans overboard and accepted the role.

With the star problem settled a brilliant supporting cast was assembled. Lovely Gene Tierney and John Sutton were given the romantic leads. Another new comer Laird Cregar a 300-pound giant was recruited from the stage to portray "GOOSEBERRY," Radisson's colorful fur-trapper partner. Others seen in the roles are Virginia Field, Vincent Price, Nigel Bruce and many others.

Before production started two years of hard work went into research, writing and planning. Director Irving Pichel took the troupe to a wild spot on location amidst beautiful scenery, forests, rivers, rapids and waterfalls, closely resembling the primitive Hudson's Bay district as it was in the 17th century. A historian from the Hudson's Bay Company's headquarters in Winnipeg served as technical adviser.

Opening a new world for the movie goers, "HUDSON'S BAY" depicts the drama of exiled adventurers in a vast savage wilderness. Fabulous treasures ... warring Indians ... two-fisted brawling ... love that spans continents ... it all adds up to the magnificent entertainment to be found in HUDSON'S BAY which starts at the Capitol theatre Thursday of this week with a special show on Saturday morning to give every boy and girl a chance to see one of the greatest pictures of the age.

Second Forty-Niners Parade To Church

INDEPENDENTS ELECT WALKER HOUSE LEADER

Provincial Member For Warner Chosen By Caucus Here Saturday

Completely surprising even inside close observers, Independent members of the legislature, in caucus at the government buildings Saturday, elected J. H. Walker, M.L.A. for Warner, as their house leader for the coming session, which is expected to open Thursday, February 20.

Selection of Mr. Walker came unexpectedly, as advance predictions had not mentioned him as a likely leader. Election came after several ballots had been taken, with the low man dropping out after each.

In addition to electing a house leader, the caucus named four other officials.

Mayor Andrew Davison of Calgary was elected as caucus chairman; George MacLachlan, M.L.A. for Pembina was elected whip and J. Percy Page, M.L.A. for this city, was elected secretary.

Election of a provincial leader has been deferred.

MEMBERS MENTIONED

The caucus convened Saturday and sat throughout the morning and afternoon. At the conclusion, most members returned to their homes.

Four names had been prominently mentioned for the house leadership; D. M. Duggan, Alberta Conservative leader prior to casting his lot with the Independents in the provincil general election campaign last March; Mayor Davison, five times chief executive of the city of Calgary; Alfred Speakman, M.L.A. for Red Deer who had 14 years parliamentary experience behind him, and George MacLachlan, who had a similar term in the legislature as a member of the U.F.A. party.

After a series of votes, taken on the proportional representation system, Mr. Walker emerged as the house leader.

As far as can be learned from inside circles, Mr. Walker had not been seriously considered by his fellow-member until immediately prior to taking his vote, as it was felt his inexperience in political affairs would count against him.

Oddly enough, it was stated by caucus members, that it was apparently this factor that swung the ultimate vote in his direction, most of the newly-elected Independents feeling that the public would rally to their cause more rapidly if someone was at the head, who had not had previous experience.

DEFEATED MINISTER

Mr. Walker first came into the public eye after the provincial election of March 21 last, in which event, he defeated Hon. Solon E. Low, provincial treasurer, who later, was elected by acclamation in Vegreville.

Several years ago, Mr. Walker was a noted athlete and a prominent member of the Raymond "Union Jacks" basketball team.

As soon as his election was announced, it was made unanimous, on the motion of two of the runners-up.

The other three officers elected were put in by acclamation.

Apart from these appointments, entire business of the caucus was devoted to deciding on plans for the coming session, although little could be definitely decided until the sessional program has become more clearly outlined.

EIGHTEEN PRESENT

With a view to more definitely formulating policies to be adopted during the session, the caucus was instructed to re-convene on the morning prior to the session's opening.

Eighteen of the 19 available caucus members were in attendance. Dr. L. J. O'Brien of Grande Prairie was unable to make the trip and Capt. J. H. Tremblay, M.L.A. for Grouard, is unavailable owing to being on active service overseas.

Through The Mill

A fellow has to be careful in the methods he employs to square off what he considers to be a wrong and particularly when it comes to "squaring off" a debt a person considers is owed him. This was demonstrated with painful clarity to a young man who pleaded guilty Monday to the theft of a windbreaker.

"Somebody stole seven dollars from my coat pocket when I was at a party so I just took the windbreaker and sold it to even up matters," accused explained.

"I know I did wrong. I should have laid a charge of theft," he added.

The magistrate observed that the most distressing feature of the case was the admission of selling the stolen article. Accused was sentenced to 30 days in jail. On a charge of assaulting a man in an east end cafe, accused won an acquittal.

Two men who pleaded guilty to failure to give notice of changed address as provided under the National Registration scheme were fined $5 and costs or seven days.

FORTY - NINERS AT UNVEILING OF HONOR ROLL

Battalion Parades to Christ Church—Bowen Takes Salute

Parading to Christ Church Sunday morning, with the Regimental band in attendance, officers and a detachment of men of the 2-49th Bn., Edmonton Regiment, were present at the unveiling of a roll of honor of men of the parish now serving in the active service forces. The roll was unveiled by His Honor Lieut.-Gov. J. C. Bowen.

The parade was led by Capt. R. P. Fitzgerald, adjutant, and consisted of three platoons representing each company. The bandsmen were dressed in scarlet tunics and dark trousers and the soldiers in khaki battle dress.

PAYS TRIBUTE

The lieutenant governor paid tribute to the courage of the "soldiers, sailors and airmen, from this parish, and from others who were fighting that the rest of the world may enjoy freedom to worship as they see fit."

Following this brief tribute, His Honor pulled a streamer attached to one corner of a flag on the wall. The flag fell away revealing the scroll with its 80 or more names. Designed by Scoutmaster Foster, the scroll will remain in public view and, in the words of Rev. Canon G. P. Gower, rector, "be added to in the near future."

Following the service and the reassembling of the detachment outside the doors of the church, the lieutenant-governor took the salute as the men marched past on their return to the garrison. Also at the saluting base were assembled all the officers of the unit.

Leading the parade were Capt. Fitzgerald and Sergt. Major Laubman. In charge of the three platoons were Lieutenants H. R. Hammond, W. D. Batters and A. W. Watson.

"STRUCK OUR TENTS"

Rev. Canon G. P. Gower, the regiment's chaplain, in his sermon, said, "We have our commission and we cannot go back to the desert of the past 20 years. We have struck our tents and we have our marching orders."

"There is need of strength, courage and obedience to our ideal," he continued.

"One of the most effective "fifth columnists" is doubt. We must have no doubts as to our beliefs and faiths. We must not waver."

Canon Gower's text was a passage from the Book of Isaiah, "Oh be thou strong and very courageous."

Rev. Elgin G. Turnbull, B.A., B.D., was guest preacher at Knox United church Sunday, when he took as his morning and evening subjects, "A Song that Can Sweeten the World" and "Windows in the Upper Room."

Guest soloists at the morning service were Mrs. Lawrence, Miss M. Griffith, J. W. Martins and Jack Williams.

Have You Seen

Henry Pulver Svalstad, 50, and Albert Barberis, Monday were being sought by police on behalf of relatives. Svalstad is sought by his aged father, and is described as six feet in height, with blue eyes. When last heard from he was in Edmonton. Barberis was at one time a blacksmith by trade and nicknamed "Frenchie."

City Air Firm Studies Proposed New Bases In Edmonton-Yukon Project

Yukon Southern Air Transport, operators of airlines from Edmonton to Whitehorse, Yukon and to Vancouver, B.C., have been working in close touch with the national defence department for some time on plans to establish a string of air bases from Edmonton to the Yukon, it was learned Monday from Grant McConachie, general manager.

Mr. McConachie said the Dominion government planned to assist the company with improvement of its fields now built or being built at Grande Prairie, Fort Nelson, B.C., Watson Lake, Teslin and Whitehorse. Besides this, plans called for establishment of emergency landing bases, between the main points, spaced at distances of 200 miles.

The company has not yet been notified officially that the line of air bases is to go ahead, but has given technical advice to the department of national defence on the nature of the country and the problems involved.

PASSENGERS, FREIGHT

The Yukon Southern Air Transport has been operating a passenger and freight service out of both Edmonton and Vancouver, B.C., to northern parts for several years.

A report from Ottawa said plans for facilities to provide new air bases across northern Alberta, northern British Columbia and the Yukon to Alaska, may be made public officially before long.

The planes for the north leave Edmonton and Vancouver, twice weekly—every Wednesday and Saturday—making two stops on their trip to Dawson Creek, B.C. Leaving Edmonton, the twin-engined plane stops are Peace River and Grande Prairie, and then on to Dawson Creek, the terminus.

NORTHBOUND SERVICE

The north-bound plane from Vancouver, stops at Williams Lake and Prince George. Another plane also leaves Whitehorse, Y.T., on the same two days, making three stops before arriving at Dawson Creek. Its first landing is at Watson Lake, Y.T., then Fort Nelson, B.C., and Fort St. John.

All planes lay over for a night before returning to their bases. The airway connects at Whitehorse with both the White Pass and Yukon Airline and the Pacific Alaska Airways, a subsidiary of the Pan-American Airlines.

The White Pass and Yukon company have a scheduled route to Dawson City, Mayo and Selkirk and several other far north villages. The P.A.A. fly to Fairbanks and Juneau. All passengers flying on these lines can make connections with the Yukon Southern for trips to Vancouver or Edmonton.

The Yukon Southern, besides operating three twin-motored planes on the runs, has a group of smaller planes at the Edmonton base.

THE QUESTION

We often hear people complaining about the weather. And then there's the pseudo "smart guy" who said that while everybody talks about the weather, nobody ever does anything about it. Okay, then. Suppose you could do something about it, what would you do?

THE ANSWERS

JOCK BELL, wireless operator: Well, I don't just know. I think I'd be inclined to leave the weather just as it is. I haven't got any kick against the weather except for the mud in the spring.

THE B.I.R.: Then you mean you'd try to do something about the mud situation?

JOCK BELL, wireless operator: Yes, I think that's the only change I'd suggest.

GEORGE SKOV, businessman: It seems to me that the winters in this country could be shortened up quite a bit, and made a lot milder. Winter should last from November until February at the most.

HERMAN BONESS, ski expert: I would make winter about two months longer and see to it that there was a lot more snow. I'd make the weather brisk but not so cold as to be uncomfortable, and do away with winds altogether. That just about covers my changes.

THE B.I.R.: But if you make the winter longer you'd have to make the summer shorter, wouldn't you?

HERMAN BONESS, ski expert: Certainly not. All you'd have to do would be to cancel spring and autumn, thus relieving us in between season hazards as mud and sleet. There's really nothing to it.

STANLEY SPALLIN, dramatist: I would make a lot more sunny summer weather so that such events as the Edmonton Exhibition and other semi-outdoor summer shows would not be ruined by rain. Then for two weeks in the summer I'd see to it that there was plenty of wind so that sailboat enthusiasts weren't let down.

THE B.I.R.: Why not do away with weather completely?

ACCUSED GETS REMAND HERE: THREE COUNTS

Logging Camp Worker Faces Trial After Robbery, Assault

Facing three serious charges, arising out of the armed robbery of Harry Lomnes and his wife at East Bittern Lake on November 19, Gordon Michael, 33, was remanded for one week when he appeared before Magistrate Millar here on Saturday.

No plea was taken to any of the three charges of robbery with violence, rape and theft of an auto.

Accused is a heavy set man of medium height and was wearing a black sweater and heavy bushman's trousers. He was working in a logging camp near Mistue in the Slave Lake district when arrested by Sgt. Baynes and Cpl. Walker of the R.C. M.P. on January 3.

Charges were merely read to Michaels by the court stenographer and the remand granted at the request of police.

Accused was removed immediately to Fort Saskatchewan jail under heavy guard.

Michaels is said to have told police he was born in Pembroke, Ont., in 1907, and came west 10 years ago.

Lomnes and his wife, both teachers at East Bittern Lake, a few miles east of Camrose, were held up at the point of a revolver, bound with wire and after which the bandit had criminally assaulted the woman and departed with $6 and a shotgun in the Lomnes car, later found abandoned not far from Bittern Lake.

RELIEF ISSUE, CRIME CHARGE TO BE STUDIED

City Council Will Deal With Questions Monday Night

Charges made by A. A. Mackenzie, provincial commissioner of public welfare, in the relief dispute between the province and city, and the result of commissioners' investigation into charges made by John Munro, city merchant, against the Edmonton police force with respect to the crime situation, will be dealt with by city council Monday night.

The relief dispute arises out of charges and counter-charges made by the province and city in connection with relief for a dead man. It was determined that while relief had been issued in the dead man's name but had been paid to his dependents.

WATCH SITUATION

A lengthy report dealing with the Munro charges will be submitted also. In the report the commissioners stated that they are constantly watching the crime situation in all phases as it affects the city, and have impressed on the chief of police and his staff never to relax their efforts in arresting and punishing offenders, and taking all possible steps to detect and if possible to prevent crime.

The report deals in detail with the different charges made by Mr. Munro and the commissioners express the hope that their report and that from Chief of Police A. G. Shute will be satisfactory to the city council and that it will allay any feeling of alarm in the public mind occasioned by the Munro charges.

The commissioners point out that burglaries committed in the city have been the work of a group of 14 known criminals, 12 of whom are now in jail. A second group of three recently arrived in the city, are suspected of breaking and entering the Commercial Printers, and the D. B. Lake hardware store. One man of this group has been arrested, and apprehension of the other two is expected shortly, the report discloses.

CALGARY FIGURES

In the commissioners report it is pointed out there were 60 safe-blowings, attempted safe-blowings, safe-punching or attempts during the two years covered by the Munro charges. In Calgary, during the same period, there were 50 crimes of a similar nature, according to figures supplied by Chief of Police David Ritchie of that city.

The report continues that the commissioners and the chief of police are continuing to discuss methods and other phases of the situation with a view of seeing that all possible efforts are continued to stamp out crime in the city and see that methods in use are adequate under the circumstances.

SHORT COURSE, SEED FAIR TO OPEN TUESDAY

Farmers from many sections of the province will attend the agricultural short course to be held at Imperial Hall, 10021 102 avenue, Wednesday in connection with the anual Provincial Seed Fair.

Among the speakers at the meeting will be Prof. E. A. Hardy, head of the agricultural engineering department of the University of Saskatchewan; Prof. A. Macgregor Smith, of the University of Alberta; Dr. F. A. Wyatt, of the soils department, University of Alberta; W. J. Elliott, of the provincial agriculture department and W. T. G. Wiener, Ottawa.

At the seed fair, which will be held in the new show rooms of Edmonton Motors, world's championship wheat and oats from the recent Chicago International Show will be on view.

The entire program has been arranged by the provincial agriculture department. The annual meeting of the Alberta Seed Growers Association will be held Thursday afternoon.

Polish Groups Raise Money For Men On Service

In an effort to raise funds for the purchase of scarves, socks and sweaters and other comforts for men on active service "elsewhere than in Canada," three Polish organizations sponsored a banquet in the Polish hall Saturday night.

Well-attended by Polish citizens, the banquet commenced at 8 p.m. and was under the auspices of the Polish Army Veterans, the Polish Canadian Society and the Polish Rectory.

The amount of money raised was Monday said to be "most satisfactory," and it is probable that similar events will take place in the future, officials of the organization said.

More than 2,000 water accounts carrying the 11.4 per cent increase to meet the cost of installation and operation of the water softener plant at the city power house were mailed to customers during the past week, it was announced Monday by E. J. Hogan, supervisor of the city's billing section.

New officers [illegible] Lodge No. 7, Norwood Lodge No. 11, Namayo Lodge No. 47, and Advance Lodge No. 97, will be installed by R. E. Leppard, Deputy Grand Master, at a meeting in the I.O.O.F. hall on Tuesday at 8 p.m. It is expected that G. E. Clark of Jasper, Alta., Grand Master of the I.O.O.F. will be [illegible] comed.

James Bill, proprietor Edmonton Printing and Publishing Co. Ltd., will leave the city Monday evening for St. Thomas, Ont., where he will be attached to the R.C.A.F. training de[illegible] the rank of Flying [illegible] of the First Great W[illegible] monton, and for a number of years was director of athletics at the University of Alberta. Tuesday morning he was the recipient of a presentation from members of the Legal Coffee Club, and on Saturday from old air force associates.

Owing to the inability [illegible] John W. Fry to attend, presentation by him on behalf of the Edmonton [illegible] of the Canadian Red Cross Society, of a cheque for $1,000 has been postponed until Monday, January 20. The presentation was scheduled to take place at an Opera Society rehearsal at the Empire theatre at 9 p.m. Monday. The mayor will be in attendance at a council meeting and the presentation has been deferred one week. The cheque represents proceeds of the production of Carmen in November and will be applied toward purchase of an ambulance for war work.

LICENSE FOR TOM-CATS IS LATEST IDEA

Whether owners of tom-cats will have to pay license for their pets will likely be decided at Monday night's meeting of the city council.

Request that such license be imposed has been sent to the city council by a Grierson Avenue resident.

In making the request for adoption of a license fee for male cats, the citizens state that "in many districts, including my own, these animals congregate in such numbers as to make a nuisance of themselves to the residents and it is my thought that if a license fee were imposed some measure of control might be exercised by the city and make for the peace of the citizens."

Harold Richards Is Installed As Lodge Commander

Harold Richards was installed as Commander of The Maccabees, Lodge No. [illegible] service held recently in Acacia hall. E. Beeby acted as installing officer, and E. P. Barnhouse was director of installation. Captain of the Guards was Mr. Keen, of Lodge No. 7, of which Mr. Beeby is also a member.

Other officers installed were, Lieut.-Com., Mrs. J. Mutter; Chaplain, Mrs. E. Zurch; Record Keeper, Miss Muriel Barnhouse; First Guard, Mrs. H. Richards; Second Guard, Mr. N. Richards; Sergeant, Miss G. Hodson; Sentinel, Mrs. C. Pollard; Picket, Mr. Welch; Deborah, Mrs. Mathews; Judas Maccabeus, Mr. Burridge; Trustees, H. Richards, A. Zurch and W. Dixon.

Following the meeting supper was served to the guests. Mrs. E. Zurch was in charge of the arrangements.

Reservists Take Long Route March

The 2nd Bn., Edmonton Fusiliers, M.G., C.A.R., on Sunday went on a seven-mile route march, accompanied by the regimental brass band and the drum and bugle band.

Marching with rifles slung, more than 400 strong, the battalion was led by Lt.-Col. H. B. Jamieson, officer commanding, and paraded from the Victoria armory to Jasper avenue, west to 142 street and the Capitol Hill bridge, and return by the same route.

Men of the 2nd 49th Bn., Edmonton Regiment, who did not attend church parade Sunday morning, took a six-mile route march from the Prince of Wales Armory to 121 street and return.

City Experiences Mild Week-End As Temperatures High

Edmonton experienced one of its mildest week-ends this winter with temperatures averaging 30 above most of the time. Low for the night was 27 above at 8.30 a.m. Monday. At that time, the barometric pressure was 27.63 decreasing, and the forecast was "continued mild." Sunday's maximum was 34 above at 1 p.m.

With 30 above at Beaverlodge and 3 above at McMurray, the near north is experiencing a variety of weather, with snow reported at Ft. St. John, Slave Lake, Dawson Creek and Pouce Coupe. It is Ceiling Zero at Ft. St. John, Beaverlodge, and House River while ceiling is as high as 5,000 feet at Hudson Hope. Visibility on a whole is reported good.

Communion Taken By Newman Club

At a special meeting in the St. Joseph's college Sunday, communion was received by members of the University of Alberta Newman Club. Rev. Dr. O'Kenny, of St. Joseph's seminary, preached the sermon, and following the mass the students were guests of Rev. Bro. Ansibert, rector of St. Joseph's College, at breakfast.

The Newman Club is made up of Catholic students and graduates of the University and the Normal school.

DOES YOUR NOSE FILL UP, SPOIL SLEEP?

3-PURPOSE MEDICINE

If your nose fills up, makes breathing difficult, spoils sleep—put 3-purpose Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril. Va-tro-nol does 3 important things for you: (1) shrinks swollen membranes; (2) soothes irritation; (3) helps flush out nasal passages, clearing clogging mucus, relieving transient congestion. It brings more comfort, makes breathing easier, invites sleep.

When a Cold Threatens, use Va-tro-nol at first sniffle or sneeze. Helps to prevent colds developing.

Dorothy Dix Says:

The other day newspapers told of a couple who remarried eight days after being divorced from each other. That is, perhaps, the shortest time in which a husband and wife ever found out that if they could not live together, neither could they live apart, but it emphasizes the crying need there is for trial divorces.

For divorce is like a great many other things in life It is more alluring in prospect than it is in realization. If the matrimonially disgruntled could be forced to sit for a while amidst the desolation and ashes of their wrecked homes and find out just how miserable and uncomfortable and disappointed they were, they would get up and dust off their petty grievances and return to their mates. And when they got back, their two-by-four flats would have turned into palaces and their Johns and Marias into glamour boys and girls.

No one will deny that there are marriages that are unendurable and for which divorce is the only cure, but it is not often that a man or woman has the misfortune to marry a fiend or a brute. Most husbands and wives are pretty decent people. They have committed no unforgivable crime against the men and women to whom they are married, and when they rush into the divorce court it is merely because they are temporarily fed up with each other or bored, or they have got angry about something.

Maybe it is a man who, after the honeymoon has set and marriage has settled down into the routine of going to work in the morning and coming home at night, day after day, decides that marriage isn't worth what it costs. His wife in a bungalow apron doesn't look as pretty as she used to in a pink chiffon when he was courting her.

It grouches him to see all the money he earns going for household bills instead of for his own pleasures. He chafes at the restrictions of domesticity and yearns for his bachelor freedom, and to him a divorce decree looks like a ticket to Paradise.

Or, perhaps, it is a woman who looks at her stodgy husband, who is getting fat and bald and who spends his evenings dozing over his pipe and paper and only grunts when he is spoken to, and wonders why on earth she ever married anything like that.

But when they get their decrees they find out that it is not the panacea for all their ills that they thought it would be. It has not brought them the happiness they expected, but only bitter regret for the homes they broke up and the wives and husbands they discarded.

Undoubtedly the domestic yoke galls at times and husbands and wives need to slip it for a while and give the sore places time to heal, and if this could be done, if we had trial divorces, most of them would cheerfully go back to home and mother.

Meet the new champions! For the past three years the Philadelphia team of Mrs. R. C. Young, Charles H. Goren, John R. Crawford and Charles J. Solomon have held the national open team-of-four title. Ironically, they lost it in their own home city to the team of Jeff Glick of Miami, Fla., Morry J. Glick and Harry Feinberg of Cleveland, and Louis Newman of Washington, D.C.

This team took the lead in the first session and remained out in front in all three sessions. The Philadelphia team finished in a tie for third place.

The new champions are all exceptionally fine card players. I have always recognized Harry Feinberg as one of the outstanding players of the country, and today's hand proves it.

The ace of spades won the first trick and dummy led a spade which Feinberg (North) ruffed. At first sight a straight cross-ruff of the black suits seemed indicated. Feinberg led a low club to the king. When the queen fell, he had to decide whether this was a false card. If it was not, he could not continue clubs without losing the contract through a ruff.

Feinberg decided to play safe. He led a third spade from dummy and ruffed with the king of trumps. A low trump lead was passed by East, dummy winning with the trump queen. East overruffed with the ace of trumps and exited with his small trump. Dummy won with the jack and cashed the other two trumps.

In the end Feinberg was able to read the situation in the minor suits and the finesse of the club ten made the slam contract.

By IDA JEAN KAIN

One of the major problems of the overweight is created by the susceptibility of the busts to the deposit of fatty tissue. In most cases, over-development in this area is not due to glandular activity. It merely goes along with overweight.

Want an exercise to improve the upper portion of the figure? Take a tip from Lynne Carver, lovely MGM actress, and do this one: Stand erect with arms held in the position illustrated, then rhythmically jerk elbows backward, forcing shoulder blades together.

The only way this measurement can be reduced is through a general reduction of the weight. A protective diet restricted to two-thirds your calorie allowance will enable you to take off one to two pounds per week, with a gradual loss of weight in this measurement.

Exercise does not help to reduce the bust, but it is needed for its tonic effect on muscles and skin. The greater the excess weight in this area and the more pronounced the lack of muscle tone, the worse the measurement.

NO VALUE

No lotions or ointments of any kind are of the slightest value in normalizing the bust. Astringents are supposed to firm a sagging contour but what they do is tone the skin and the effect is temporary. Cold water stimulates the circulation and accomplishes the same result.

No apparatus, such as a vibrator, belt or massage appliance, should ever be used on these delicate tissues.

The new uplift brassieres are certainly a boon to the feminine figure—if we had had them years ago, we wouldn't be having so much trouble now. They lift and control without binding and breaking down the tissues. In purchasing your bra, always have a fitting, just as you would for a girdle. Today there are special brassieres for every type.

The overly-large bust can be gradually reduced by a general reduction in weight; the skin and muscle tone can be stimulated. Then with the aid of a well fitted brassiere, this measurement ceases to be a problem.

Pass The Time Happily Singing Western Songs

Let Everyone Pick A Favorite

Looking around for something to do these long winter evenings? What could be more fun than a songfest of old Western ditties? A few bars of "Git Along Little Dogies"—and the whole gang's singing:

"Whoopee ti yi yo! Get along, little dogies;
It's your misfortune and none of my own.
Whoopee ti yi yo! Git along, little dogies,
You know that Wyoming will be Your new home."

Everyone has fun choosing a favorite from the songbook. "Heart in the Heart of Texas" is popular. The chorus goes:

"There's a Heart in the Heart of Texas, Beating true blue just for me—"

Then launch into "The Land of the Beautiful West"—a real hit.

"I'll guard you, I'll tend you,
I'll love you the best,
And you'll say there's no land
like the beautiful West."

All the words, music and piano accompaniments for these and other lively cowboy songs are given in our songbook. Has 19 favorites, old and new—including "The Dying Cowboy," "Red River Valley," "Missouri Joe."

Send 15c in coins for your copy of Popular Cowboy Songs to The Edmonton Bulletin, 60 Front Street West, Toronto Ontario. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

THE SCOTCH ARE NOT THE ONLY ONES TO WEAR KILTS
1-13

Although we usually associate kilts with the Scottish Highlanders, they are not the only people to wear them. These short, loose skirts or petticoats, which reach down to the knees, are also the usual dress of the Greek Army. Their fullness gives a freedom of action that trousers can hardly offer. The word "kilt" means that which is "girded up or tucked up," and is likely of Scandinavian origin, rather than either Scotch or Greek. The early kilt was not a separate garment, but was the lower part of the plaid in which a person wrapped himself.

Mother: "Starting tomorrow morning, I'm not going to watch the time for you. I realize I've been taking the responsibility that you should take yourself of getting you off to school on time."

Daughter: "Oh, mother, I'm going to be late for school."

Mother: "It's your own fault. I just decided I'd quit watching the clock for you."

Daughter: "But you always have."

It is unfair to suddenly change one's methods with a child without giving him due warning.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

It's distressingly easy to get into habits of eating which succeed only in giving our children a deficient diet. It is so easy to satisfy a child's hunger, the important thing is whether at the same time we are satisfying their basic nutritional needs.

School children may exhibit their nutritional deficiencies not alone in being thin and sickly but by behavior which it seems impossible to change. We should be suspicious that a child is not being well-fed (no matter how much he eats)—when he tires easily, when he shows no natural interest in his school work and when he is chronically cantankerous for no good reason.

Mothers have heard much of vitamins and their magical properties. The difficulty is to remember in what foods they appear and to try to formulate meals with only these elements in mind.

TAKE HEART

Let them take heart. Vitamins are present in all our ordinary foods and it is foods which make up diets. In general we do have to keep in mind that we should use a variety of all kinds of foods as some may be more deficient in these vital elements than others. That is where poor habits work their evil for we may get into the habit of serving a limited selection of fruits or vegetables or cereals without trying out new kinds and types.

We should lay stress in our menus upon the so-called protective foods which by their safety elements do protect the child from the danger of nutritional deficiencies. These protective foods are the dairy products (milk, eggs, butter)—the whole-grain cereals, the green vegetables and fruits.

Meat, eggs, fish or fowl are traditionally the main dish of the main meal of the day. Raw fruits or fruit juices and eggs are standard foods for breakfast. Milk is the usual finale for all the children's meals.

Our emphasis should then be put upon the necessity to get not only potatoes and other root vegetables into the diet but the leafy green ones as well. And when we plan cereals to be sure that once a day as either bread or breakfast food we supply one made of the whole grains. The package in which cereals comes makes it plain whether these are compounded of whole grains.

Then there is only one vitamin unaccounted for and that is D, which has become familiar enough so that every mother knows that cod liver oil or some product containing vitamin D is essential in the sunless season.

Nothing really mysterious about these meals but if the mother is a conscientious meal-planner her children will get all the necessary nutritional elements when she serves them.

What To Do

I have been invited to visit my college chum during the winter holiday and wish you would tell me just how to be a good guest. I read a lot about being a good hostess, but I want to be the kind of guest who is invited again and again. Thank you. MISS A. S. M.

Answer—To be a good guest you should know the length of your stay and about what sort of festivities are planned so you won't arrive with luggage that looks as though it holds a season's wardrobe. If your friend has not been quite definite enough, don't hesitate to inquire further.

If your friend's home is one where the family does the housework, offer to help; at least you can make your own bed and keep your room in order. But if your hostess has her own system and preefrs not to be interrupted, you can help more by going off by yourself with a magazine or book until the housework is finished.

Don't keep meals waiting for you and don't monopolize the bathroom. If you want to use the telephone, ask your hostess first and if you make any toll calls by all means offer to pay the charges. When you leave be sure to take everything with you.

It means extra work and time for the hostess to bundle up your forgotten belongings and parcel post them to you. A letter of thanks for the pleasant time you had and for all the thoughtful things your hostess did for you should reach her within a few days of your visit.

Dr. D. G. McQueen Chapter Approve Many Donations

The Dr. D. G. McQueen Chapter I.O.D.E. held their meeting at the Macdonald hotel, with the regent, Mrs. Primeau, presiding. Donations were made to the Emergency War Fund and the Bay Tree School Report of a hamper to an ex-service man's family and a box of books sent to Blandis school. Nominations for officers for 1941 were held, and two new members were welcomed.

A Social evening will be held at the home of the regent, Mrs. Primeau, on January 24. Mrs. Oliver Howey was elected convener for the distribution of tickets for an operetta being sponsored by the chapter.

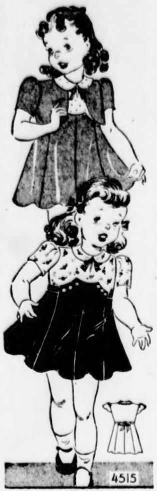
Pert Bolero-Style For Tots



Little girls will look "pretty as a picture" in this delectable style. It's Pattern 4515 and an Anne Adams design which explains its originality, gaiety and easy making. An accompanying Sewing Instructor shows you just how to proceed. The brief bolero gives extra warmth under her winter coat. The dress itself is smart, with its "upped" front waist-seam and flaring skirt that has double panels at both front and back. A ribbon tie, buttons and a back-tying belt are all lively touches. You might make one little dress of all one fabric—perhaps a printed cotton. Then, using remnants from your own dressmaking, stitch up a bolero and skirt of dark fabric, with the top of printed contrast.

Pattern 4515 is available in children's sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6, dress alone, takes 1⅞ yards 36 inch fabric; skirt and bolero, 1¾ yards 36 inch fabric and ¾ yard contrast.

Send twenty cents in coins for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

Varsity French Club Hears Address On Present-Day Europe

"Cercle Francais" of the University of Alberta held its first meeting of this term in Athabaska lounge on Thursday afternoon when Mr. M. H. Jacobs, assistant professor in the department of modern languages spoke on the topic, "In the Dictatorship Countries". He said the only solution to the present problem in Europe lay in union and in liberty. Mr. Marcel Lambert thanked him for his talk, and instead of the usual French songs, the rest of the meeting was taken up with questions and discussion.

Dr. Sonet spoke briefly on the condition of French students at the present time. The meeting was opened with Miss Jean Eagleson playing two piano selections and closed with the singing of the Marseillaise.

Tea was served by members of the reception committee, Miss Moira Law, Miss Helen Hardy, Miss Jean Eagleson, Miss Bessie Sidorsky, Miss Marcia Dower and Miss Mary Lou Smith.

First Church Choir Members Hold Their Annual Meeting

Concluding a successful year of musical activities, members of the Choir of First Presbyterian Church held an enjoyable social, after the practice hour on Thursday evening.

A resume of the year's work was given by the retiring president, Sergeant Major Carl Laubman, when he paid tribute to the efficiency of his executive, mentioning in particular that of Mrs. W. McLelland and her social committee.

Brief remarks were made by the Rev. J. MacBeath Miller, and by Mr. Henry Atack, choirmaster. A group of solos by Mr. Arthur C. Fleming with Mr. Atack at the piano, was much enjoyed. Messrs. James Clements and Laubman led the community singing.

The slate of officers for the forthcoming year was anounced as follows: President: Mr. Ivor Matthew; First V.P., Mr. Thomas Fyfe; Second V.P., Mr. James Clements; treasurer: Miss Eleanor Stewart; secretary, Miss Jessie Morris; librarian, Miss Rose Remnick; flower secretary, Mrs. Drummond; gown secretary, Mrs. Redpath; social convener, Mrs. A. C. Fleming, assisted by Miss Rita Speer and Miss May McClellan, historian, Mrs. Robert O. Shaw.

Combine Meats, Other Items To "Stretch" It

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

Meat extenders play a delicious role in the economy menu, by using cheese, dried beans, spaghetti, noodles, breadcrumbs and milk sauces, you can make your meat, fish or poultry allowance go much farther. The extenders for a well-balanced menu must not only make two servings of the main dish where there was only one, but must also increase the nutrition of the main dish. The nutritional, as well as flavor value of the extender, is very important.

Creamed left-over chicken served on hot cornbread is a good example. The cream sauce for the chicken contains butter, flour and milk—all good foods. The cornbread contains a cereal, butter, milk, plus an egg. Therefore this dish is a valuable source of first-class nutrients, as well as being a delicious way of making a small amount of chicken go a long way.

Chicken pie is always big news for the family. It's also big economy news as a well-balanced extender one-dish meal, containing protein of chicken and assorted vegetables.

To boil fowl for chicken pie or other chicken extenders, cook whole. Single and clean a 5-pound fowl. Place in large pot, half cover with boiling water. Add 2 celery stalks, a small onion, 1 small carrot, 1 bay leaf, 1 sprig parsley, 2 whole cloves, salt and pepper. Cover and simmer over low heat until meat is tender, about 2½ hours. Let fowl cool in pot.

CHICKEN PIE

(Serves 6 to 8)

One 5-pound boiled fowl, 1½ cups diced cooked carrots, 7 small boiled onions, ½ cup cooked peas, 1 cup cooked potato balls, 4 tablespoons butter or chicken fat, 2 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, dash or pepper, 1 cup chicken stock, 1 cup thin cream, ½ recipe standard pastry.

Remove meat from a chicken that has been boiled whole. Cut meat in as large pieces as possible. Arrange chicken with vegetables in 2-quart casserole. Melt butter or chicken fat, stir in flour and seasonings, and when well blended, add chicken stock an cream slowly, stirring constantly over low heat until mixture thickens and boils. Season to taste. Pour sauce over chicken and vegetables. Cover casserole with rolled pastry, press down on moistened edges of casserole, and trim. Make several slits in center and bake in a moderately hot oven (425 degrees F.) for 12 to 15 minutes.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Sliced bananas in orange juice, mixed hot cereal with raisins and butter, toast, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Cheese souffle, watercress sandwiches, baked apple, tea, milk.

DINNER: Tomato juice cocktail, chicken pie with vegetables and potatoes, hot biscuits, lettuce and green pepper salad, fresh grape gelatin, custard sauce, coffee, milk.

A population three and one-half times that of the United States is fed in China from cultivated land only 50 to 60 per cent as great in area as that of the former country.

Minute Make-Ups

Slim aristocratic ankles are one of the first hallmarks of beauty and, if you weren't born with them try some of these tricks to make the ankles appear smaller than they actually are:

Always wear high-heeled opera pumps, as low cut as possible.

Do not select too light a shade of hosiery. Make sure that your stocking seams are scrupulously straight with never the slightest suggestion of a wrinkle around the ankles. Do not stand or sit with the feet too close together. Pose them carefully when you wish to show off, preferably with a front rather than a back or profile view. Don't go in for shocking short skirts that will call needless attention to your underpinnings. Choose a flared hemline rather than a narrow straight one.

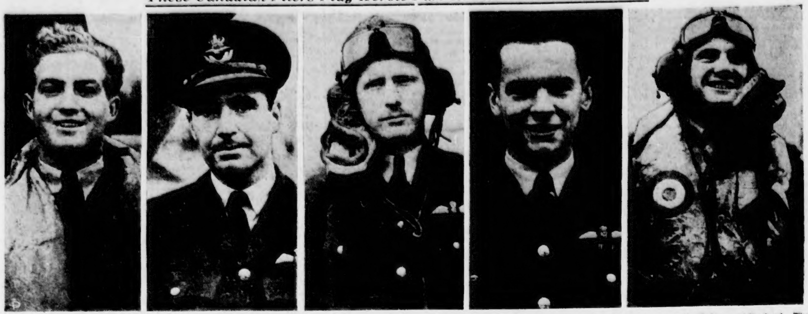
Iceland Children "Snitch" A Ride

Iceland children seem to have found a use for British and Canadian soldiers stationed there—at least these five have. They are shown getting a free ride with soldiers unloading a ship at an Iceland port.

These Canadian Fliers Play Heroic Part In The Defence Of Britain



These officers of No. 1 Royal Canadian Air Force Squadron now serving with the Fighter Command of the Royal Air Force have played a great part in the defence of England. They are, left to right, Flying Officers D. Russel, D.F.C., of Montreal; Flying Officer Nesbit, of Montreal; Flying Officer N. R. Johnstone, of Winnipeg; Flying Officer C. W. Trevena, Regina, and Flying Officer F. Hillock, of Toronto.

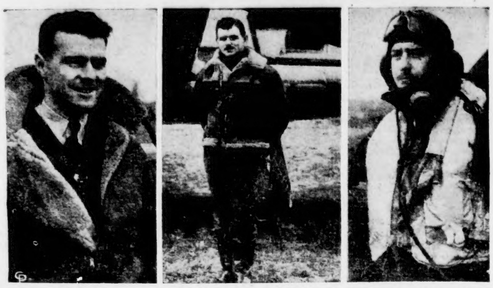
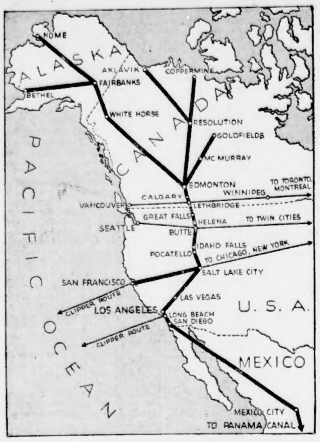
The fountain of flame lighting up London's blackout in this photo is a German incendiary bomb. It is being extinguished by firemen playing hose from across the street.



No. 1 Royal Canadian Air Force Squadron has been serving with the Fighter Command of the Royal Air Force for many months. They have played a prominent part in the defence of England and especially in the protection of the London area. There are three D.F.C.'s in the squadron which has brought down more than 70 raiders. Flying Officers J. B. Morrison, of Regina; Laughlin, of Ottawa, and P. Brown, of Regina, are shown above.



New International Air Route

Western states will be linked to Canada and Alaska over inland terrain known as the international "Sunshine Route" as a result of the Lethbridge Extension which gives Western Air Express the right to extend its route from Great Falls, Montana, to Lethbridge, Alberta, a distance of 170 miles, which completes an unbroken skyway from California to Nome, Alaska.

War Brings Strange Sights To England

A British couple, enjoying a morning walk along the beach on an unidentified section of England's coast, stop to gape at the unusual sight of an Indian army service corps unit, let by a single native piper, moving supplies to an anti-invasion outpost. The non-com musters as much dignity as humanly possible for one astride a mule. This particular outfit saw service in France and was with the B.E.F. in the now historic evacuation at Dunkirk.

Bombed Yanks Move To New Quarters

Apparently little disturbed at their narrow escape from death, girls of an American ambulance unit in London are shown moving their bedding from the ruins of the flat in which they were billeted. German raiders struck their quarters during a night raid.

Canada, Alaska Linked To United States By Air Route

Canada and Alaska will be linked to the United States by an all-land air route as a result of the Lethbridge extension granted to Western Air Express today by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The extension permits Western to fly from Great Falls, Montana, the airline's present northern terminus, via Cutbank and Selby, to Lethbridge, a distance of 195 miles, which is the last link in an unbroken skyway to the Canadian city where connections are made with airlines serving the Dominion and Alaska.

Closing of the gap, which the airline has worked for during the past ten years, completes the longest north-south air route in the world, spanning the western hemisphere from Chile to Nome, a distance of 11,250 miles.

William A. Coulter, president of Western, announced that his company was completing final arrangements for the inauguration of service. According to the president, a definite date for the first flight will be set after details are worked out with the Canadian government and Dominion Post Office Department.

"Always important because poor ground facilities hindered trade and travel between United States and the rich areas of Western Canada and Alaska, the inauguration of air service is more vital than ever before due to national defense," Coulter observed.

"It also means that Canadian deliveries of military planes from California's aircraft factories will be greatly speeded up. Pilots ferrying planes to Canada will be able to complete a fast return trip over the scheduled Western route to Los Angeles in half the time required under present airline routings to Canada."

LOCK UP MY HEART

By Rob Eden

"Miss Denton was on the same train with Joe—the same car, Ruby. She saw him escape," Frank told Ruby.

Showing more interest she leaned forward and asked Cam, "Say, how was he—on the train, I mean? Did he seem happy? The cops hadn't beat him up any, had they?"

CAMILLA DENTON of Chicago, Ill., obtains a temporary position as traveling companion to elderly MRS. NORTH, who is going to Los Angeles, Cal. FRANK KIRKWOOD, a newspaperman, informs Camilla that on the same train with them JOE RAYMOND, in custody of the police, is being taken to Los Angeles. The train stops abruptly. Raymond slugs and chloroforms his guard and escapes past Camilla to an automobile that has followed the train for several miles. Mrs. North tells Camilla that she was knocked out of bed by the sudden stop, but Cam notices that the covers of Mrs. North's bed hadn't even been turned down. The police question Cam and Mrs. North regarding Raymond's escape, but learn nothing. While Frank and Cam are talking about the escape, Cam thinks she hears a door click shut. Helping Mrs. North pack her toilet case, Cam notices a bottle is missing. The older woman explains it contained witch hazel which she used on her bruises after the train stopped suddenly. They arrive in Los Angeles. Cam's job is completed and after saying goodbye to Mrs. North, the girl goes to the station restaurant to have a cup of coffee with Frank. Afterward he takes her to her hotel and she gives him permission to call her. An hour later LUCIA FLEMING, Mrs. North's secretary-companion, delivers to Cam an envelope with a $100 "bonus" check enclosed. Again Cam suspects Mrs. North knows something about Joe Raymond's escape. Frank takes Cam to the horse races, and points out Mrs. North's nephew, MARK CHENEY. Cam notices his resemblances to Joe Raymond, the fugitive. Frank escorts her to a small cafe where Joe's girl, RUBY OSBORNE, sings.

CHAPTER VII

CAM and Frank were only three tables away from the platform, so Cam had a good chance to size Ruby up as she sang her song. Even at that distance, her face seemed hard although she had been liberal in applying makeup.

Cam examined her critically and decided that once she had been beautiful, for there were still traces of beauty in her face. If she hadn't had the misfortune to fall in love with Joe Raymond, she probably still would have been a favorite in the choice spots frequented by society people and the Hollywood crowd.

Her voice, too, showed the effect of her surroundings. It was husky and not always true, but it seemed to satisfy the crowd that patronized the Ceylon Inn.

They applauded wildly when she finished her number, and then flocked to the small cleared space in the center of the room as the band plunged headlong into its version of a rhumba.

HESITATES

Ruby was making her way between the tables, when she caught Frank's signal, stopped for a moment in hesitation, and then came toward them.

"Hello, Ruby," the newspaper man greeted her. "Sit down and have a drink."

"Hello," she answered, and seated herself. "Don't mind if I do." She motioned to a waiter and when he came, ordered whisky.

"This is Miss Denton, Ruby. Miss Osborne, Cam," Frank introduced the girls as formally as though they were in a ballroom.

"Pleased to meet you," Ruby mumbled, accepting a cigarette from Frank's proffered package.

"What do you hear?" he asked.

"About what, for instance?"

"Joe. Heard from him since he made his break from the train?"

"I suppose you expect me to say sure—I know right where he is," Ruby's eyes narrowed.

"As a matter of fact, I haven't seen nor heard from him. The cops seem to think I do know something. They've been around here half a dozen times, trying to pry something out of me. But if you don't know anything, you can't very well blab, even if you would. Maybe I'm talking too much as it is."

She glanced significantly at Cam.

"Miss Denton was on the same train with Joe—the same car, Ruby. She saw him escape."

Ruby seemed much more interested in the quietly dressed girl across the table, and leaned forward.

"Say, how was he—on the train, I mean? Did he seem happy? The cops hadn't beat him up any, had they?"

SMILED ONCE

"I only had a couple of glimpses at him," Cam explained. "The door to the stateroom wasn't always open. He seemed all right to me. He actually smiled, once."

Ruby shook her head.

"Doesn't sound much like Joe with bracelets locking him to a cop. He's not too good tempered under ordinary conditions. Sure it was him?"

"Of course," Frank cut in. "I was on the train, too, and I got a look at him. I saw him in Chicago, too, before they put him on the train. If it'll ease your mind any, they didn't rough him up.

"At least not where it would show. He'd have squawked to me if they had when I interviewed him in his cell."

"I'm glad of that much, anyway. I hate to see 'em go after him with a loaded hose. He's taken some fierce beatings in his day."

"Maybe they were saving that for when they got him home," Frank suggested.

Ruby arose to her feet.

"I'll have to leave you folks now. Boss doesn't like to have me camp too long with any of the customers." She laughed, bitterly. "He says it might give the place a bad name."

Cam decided, as Ruby strolled away, that despite the woman's tawdry appearance and the sordidness of the place where she sang for a living, there was something about her that she liked.

"Did you notice the way her eyes lighted up when she was talking about Joe?" she demanded.

"Sure. I told you she's a sucker. Oh, I see why she left us. She's talking to Lefty Sidel."

HAWK FACED

The girl examined the hawk faced man seated at a nearby table, leaning over speaking to Ruby. His hair was slicked back on his head, and his striped necktie was of the same material as his well fitting shirt.

His suit was dark, and rather inconspicuous. One of his neatly shod feet was in a ring of light from the shaded lamp and Cam noted, idly, that his shoe lace was untied.

"And who might Lefty Sidel be?" she asked.

"He's the big shot in the gang Joe runs around with when he isn't locked up. He does all the planning, and mugs like Joe do the actual work."

"How's it happen, then, that he isn't in prison, too?"

"Too slick. He has an alibi for the bank robbery. He's always got a perfect alibi for everything. The cops get tired of picking him up after every big crime that's pulled off, but they do it anyway as a matter of routine.

"So far as I know he's never spent more than a couple of nights in jail when he was being held incommunicado and his bond broker couldn't get him out."

"He must be one of the master minds you read about."

"Not much of a master mind, but he's sly and cunning and cute enough to let the other boys take the raps when trouble comes along."

"Why don't his friends tell on him when they're caught? They know they're headed for the penitentiary unless they do."

NOT HEALTHFUL

"They wouldn't be in his outfit if they were likely to cave in and squeal when a little pressure is applied. Besides, it probably wouldn't be healthful."

"You mean—"

"I mean they'd probably wake up some fine morning with a couple of lead slugs in their backs. That has happened, you know, and I have an idea that Lefty is just the boy who wouldn't hesitate to put a pal on the spot if he thought he was in the slightest danger."

Cam glanced at her wrist watch. It was nearly two o'clock.

PRETTY LATE

"What do you say we go home," she suggested. "It's pretty late."

"Had your fill of slumming already? Okay. They'll be breaking up pretty soon anyway. One thing they do observe here, and that's the two o'clock law. No booze sold after two. They're scared to death of losing their license."

Frank motioned for the waiter and after he had paid their bill, the two of them arose to go. When they were half way to the swinging doors leading to the bar, a cigarette girl hurried up and touched Cam on the arm.

"Beg pardon, Miss," she said, "but Ruby wants to know if you'd mind stopping in her dressing room for a minute."

"What for?" Frank demanded, suspiciously.

"I don't know, Mister. She just said she wanted to see the lady before she left."

"Will you show me the way, please?"

Frank put out his hand and caught Cam by the arm.

"I don't know about this, Cam," he said. "Maybe I'd better go with you."

ALONE

"Ruby said she wanted to see the lady alone," the cigarette girl put in. "Coming?"

Cam nodded.

"I'll wait outside for you," Frank said. "Don't be too long, and if you want me, holler. I'll hear you, somehow."

Cam followed the girl through a hallway at the side of the platform.

"Here we are, Miss," the girl said, stopping at a door at the far end.

Cam knocked lightly and when she heard Ruby's voice, turned the knob and walked in. Ruby was seated in a chair facing the door.

There also were two men in the room, both of them masked. One stepped over to the door effectively blocking the exit.

STATEMENT IS ISSUED ABOUT RELIEF CASE

Dr. Cross, A. A. Mackenzie Report On Dispute With City

Certificates presented by the city of Edmonton to the provincial government classed the late R. Thorpe as a person capable of being employed and were accepted by the province and paid, according to A. A. MacKenzie, chairman of the Alberta Bureau of Relief and Public Welfare.

Mr. MacKenzie, in commenting on the case of Mr. Thorpe and the dispute with the city over relief issued in the name of this man for 13 months after his death, said:

"1—The city of Edmonton submitted certified statements for thirteen months, from July 1939 to August 1940, making application for the senior governments' grant in the name of one R. Thorpe who died on the 22nd of June, 1939.

"These certificates classified him as a person deemed capable of being employed, and were accepted by the province and paid.

"2—The provincial auditor reports that (approximately 100) relief vouchers were issued by the city in the name of R. Thorpe after the date of his death, and cashed by the city. The majority of these orders were receipted by members of the family as having received the relief services. A number of the vouchers for which the city paid cash, were not receipted for by anyone.

"3—If after R. Thorpe's death, the city had taken a new written application from the widow as head of the family, it would have been revealed that she was a non-employable person and the city would not have been entitled to any grant on her behalf."

Hon. Dr. W. W. Cross, minister of health and relief, on Saturday forwarded the following letter to Mayor J. W. Fry to this case:

"Dear Mr. Mayor: On receipt of your letter of the 21st of December stating that Mr. A. A. Mackenzie's statement re relief to the late R. Thorpe was obviously libellous and asking that he retract the same, my reply to you was that I was having a thorough investigation made of this case and would communicate with you again when the report of the investigation was in my hands.

"UNJUST, UNFOUNDED"

"The report was handed to me on January 6. I forwarded it to you and also to the press on January 8, without any comment from me, but noticed that a statement purporting to be from you appeared right under the auditor's report, to the effect that Mr. A. A. Mackenzie's statement re this case was unjust, unfounded and untrue.

"If this is your interpretation of this report, I feel it is my duty to point out to you, and also to the public, what I consider to be the proper interpretation based on the report in its entirety, and substantiated by records checked by the provincial audit department.

"Clause 1 states that at my request the provincial audit department is having an investigation made.

"Clause 2 states that the information in the report is based on records of the city and from vouchers retained in the auditor's office.

Clause 3 states that the recipient died on June 22, 1939. It also states that a notation of his death was recorded on the city files.

CUT OFF RELIEF

Clauses 4 and 5 state that the recipient was cut off in the month of June, 1939, from the senior governments' relief contribution, as an unemployable person, and further that on requests made by city officials a number of recipients who had been cut off were reinstated and the name of R. Thorpe was included in those reinstated.

Comment: The only reason why he would be reinstated would be that he was represented as being an employable or partially employable person and, as the report states, the name of R. Thorpe appears on a supplementary claim covering each of the months June to October, 1939, inclusive.

Clause 6 states that on claims submitted by the city for the period November, 1939 to July, 1940 inclusive R. Thorpe appears on each monthly statement.

Comment: From this it is evident that the Bureau of Public Welfare was led to believe that he was an employable person during all these months.

Clause 7 points out that after his death a new application should have been made by the widow and if this had been done it would have changed the status of the family, giving the relief commissioner an opportunity to adjudicate the claim.

Comment: This simply means that if relief claims from the city had been submitted in the name of the widow the Bureau would have had an opportunity of determining whether the new recipient was eligible for the senior governments' grants, but this was not done and consequently the name R. Thorpe was continued on our relief list as an employable person.

ISSUED IN NAME

Clause 8 states clearly that certified claims submitted by the city for the period June, 1939 to July 1940, were issued in the name of R. Thorpe.

"Mr. A. A. Mackenzie's statement was that the City of Edmonton had sought from the provincial government reimbursements for relief paid to dead persons. I maintain that the report clearly points out that the city did. There is nothing in his statement claiming to know who benefitted from the relief given, but it is quite evident from the various statements submitted by the ciy that the relief was issued in the name of a dead person and the city did try to obtain reimbursements from the province for relief vouchers issued in the name of R. Thorpe for a period of thirteen months after his death."

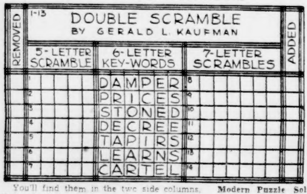
TWO 1940 CHAMPIONS



You'll find them in the two side columns, after you solve this puzzle. First remove one letter from each KEY WORD; scramble the remaining letters to make a new word at the left; and print the letter you removed, in the left-hand column.

Then add one letter to each KEY WORD; scramble the 7 letters to make a new word at the right; and print the letter you added, in the right-hand column. Read the names in the side columns, and decide the appropriate sport for each of the two champions.

RURAL RESIDENTS ATTEND MEETING OF FREE FRENCH

Most enthusiastic and best attended meeting to date was held recently by the "France Forever" organization in this city, when more than 100 city and country residents laid plans for further organization. Country points, with the town and district of Legal, well to the fore, are setting up sub-committees and it is expected that French-Canadian districts in other parts of the Edmonton area will fall into line in the near future.

A stirring address by W. R. McLaren, provincial president of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., and president of the Edmonton branch, featured the meeting.

Several members of the Edmonton Cutty Sark club, under the leadership of Skipper Roger McPherson, attended. This club is demonstrating its support of the Free French movement to a fellow member, E. N. Michaud, chairman of the Free French organization.

Citizen's Kin Dies At Coast

Brother of J. L. Arnett, 10924 123 street, Edmonton, William C. Arnett, 52, of 1175 West 10th Avenue, Vancouver, died at his home Saturday following a heart attack. Well-known in the west as a contractor, Mr. Arnett had been engaged in the same business in the coast city. He took part in the construction of the Grand Trunk railway lines in the west. J. L. Arnett left the city early Sunday for the coast to be with the bereaved family. Funeral services will be held in Vancouver Tuesday.

Jewelry Is Stolen In Home Burglary

Mrs. E. East, 11708 95A street, reported to police Monday that her home was burglarized recently and a quantity of jewelry, including a watch and diamond ring, stolen.

Entry was made by way of a rear door, a wrecking bar being used to break the lock. An attempt had first been made to enter by the front door as a broken skeleton key was found in the lock by police who investigated the complaint.

Police are investigating.
